U.S. Switches Giant Airlift To Guam

Prime Minister Quits In Saigon

CLARK AIR BASE, the Philippines (AP) — The United States abruptly switched its Vietnamese airlift Wednesday from its huge base here 1,500 miles eastward to the U.S.-administered island of Guam.

There were indications of possible friction between the United States and the Philippine government over handling of the refugees.

But State Department spokesman Robert Anderson in Washington said the move was taken because the large number of refugees "exceeded our ability to deal adequately with them" at Clark Air Force base on the Philippines.

The government of Prime Minister Nuyen Ba Can resigned and President Tran Van Huong is seeking to form a government "of negotiation," a government spokesman announced Thursday.

The spokesman told newsmen the Can cabinet submitted its resignation Wednesday and it was accepted immediately by President Huong. He said Huong "now is consulting to form a government of negotiation," but there were no other details.

Huong took over as president Monday night from Nugyen Van Thieu

Two Japanese newspapers reported Thursday from Saigon that a U.S. Marine battalion has landed at Vung Tau to help evacuate Americans and South Vietnamese, but both the White House and Pentagon flatly denied the report

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman, Maj Gen. Winant Sidle, said the report was "absolutely unture." He added that no landings were imminent

The air evacuation of South Vietnamese from Saigon is building toward one of the biggest movements of refugees ever undertaken, military sources said Wednesday.

The Pentagon has been told to plan for the transporting of up to 175,000 Vietnamese citizens whose lives may be endangered by a Communist takeover in Saigon In the highest estimate previously, the Justice Department said Tuesday that 131,000 persons might be evacuated from Indochina to the United States.

For now, an estimated 2,000 persons a day are traveling aboard Air Force transport planes and military charters to Andersen Air Base on the island of Guam.

If there is no interference from the North Vietnamese, an estimated 18,000 Vietnamese are expected to arrive on Guam during the next 9 or 10 days. Before facilities at Clark Air Base became overtaxed, some 7,041 Vietnamese had been flown to the Philippines.

Air Force C141 and C130 transport planes are landing at Tan Son Nhut Airbase outside Saigon, then keeping their engines running before loading up and taking off again.

A Pentagon spokesman, meanwhile, discounted for the moment reports of North Vietnamese or Viet Cong gunfire on planes leaving Saigon in the evacuation.

Army Maj. Gen. Wynant Sidle acknowldged that pilots reported seeing gunfire flashes and tracer bullets. But he said there has been no indication so far that any planes have been fired upon

About 10,000 Americans and their Vietnamese dependents had been flown from Saigon to Clark. An Air Force spokesman said 6,000 persons were still housed there but would be flown to Andersen Air Base on Guam, the most westerly U.S. possession, or directly to the United States. Some were staying on cots in a tent city and others were living in gymnasiums.

"I am told that Guam will have adequate facilities," Anderson said.

He denied that the switch had anything to do with objections from the Philippine government, which is trying to establish new relations with North Vietnam.

Military planners were reported to have been told to expect a maximum of 50,000 persons on Guam and plans were reportedly under way for the use of other islands in the Pacific where the United States has military bases

Territorial Gov. Ricardo J. Bordallo has endorsed a resolution by his Council of Economic Advisers to make Guam a home for as many as 25,000 South Vietnamese refugees and a processing point for others should South Vietnam fall to the Communists

The Guam Legislature failed to act on a similar resolution, but Sen Tomas Tanaka, who sponsored it, said recently it would be discussed further

Between April 3 and Tuesday, Air Force planes leaving Saigon have carried 7,041 Vietnamese, 2,204 American civilians, 111 U.S. military personnel and one Cambodian national.

Crews remained on the ground slightly more than an hour, then headed back to Clark and on to Saigon for more shuttle work.

Authority To Use Troops Supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday night supported President Ford's request for authority to use U.S. military forces to evacuate South Vietnamese as well as Americans from South Vietnam.

The President's request was approved earlier by the Senate as part of a bill that would provide a total of $250 million for Indochina humanitarian aid and an evacuation contingency fund

As the House debated into the night on a similar measure, it rejected 262 to 151 an amendment that would have denied Ford's request for authority to introduce U.S. forces into hostilities in South Vietnam if necessary for evacuation operations.

The House bill would authorize evacuation of South Vietnamese "to whose lives a direct and imminent threat exists" — but only to the extent that U.S. forces were already being used to evacuate Americans, their dependents and relatives.

In a clear test of sentiment, the House voted 272-146 to authorize $327 million in humanitarian aid for South Vietnam and to give the President authority to use U.S. forces for evacuation purposes

However, the vote was immediately nullified because of a technical violation involving House rules

The House began again from scratch on the $327 million authorization bill, taking up a series of amendments, and after more than an hour's debate rejected by a narrow 208-196 vote an effort to put a 30-day time limit on use of U.S. forces for evacuation operations.

Curtis, Hruska Back Bill On Troops Use

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, Republicans from Nebraska, Wednesday voted in favor of a proposal to give President Ford the power to use U.S. troops to rescue Americans and some Vietnamese from South Vietnam.

The proposal cleared the U.S. Senate on a 75-17 vote

Waterbed Might Save Infants

San Diego (UPI) — A tiny waterbed and a recorded heartbeat are being used by university hospital doctors to simulate a mother's womb in an experiment aimed at reducing the 8,000 "crib deaths" reported annually in the nation.

The physicians believe many of the premature infants killed by the mysterious disorder — the causes of which are unknown — die because they are born before their nervous sytems are developed enough to keep them breathing.

If the waterbed proves successful in helping babies become strong enough to live free of danger from the syndrome, the beds will be installed on a large scale in its infant intensive care unit, the hospital said

"What do we do with these kids right after they have come out of a nice, warm environment?" said Dr. Louis Gluck, in charge of the project "We put them on a hard slab with the light shining 24 hours a day and we don't comfort them, we keep hands off

"So we decided to recreate the kind of environment where they would be if they weren't born prematurely, the atmosphere of the womb

Gluck, who is director of the hospital's division of neonatology, said the baffling disorder also known as sudden infant death syndrome strikes suddenly and silently when the baby invariably is alone

He said the hospital found the syndrome killing infants between the first and 18th month after birth and had "several near misses" when babies stopped breathing before being prodded back to life

Gluck and Chuck Gerson, a San Diego designer and retailer of waterbeds, worked out an atmosphere for premature babies they believe is as close to that of the womb as is possible

The small water mattress provides a sense of weightlessness which infants experience in the womb, while a slow oscillator gives it a constant sense of motion A recording of a mother's heartbeat was installed underneath and transmitted through the waterbed, which is kept at constant body temperature

Soft, cooing female voices later will be interspersed with the recorded heartbeat and eventually replaced by music and talking as the infant grows

Senators Angered By Exon

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State senators Wednesday generally reacted with anger or dismay at Gov J James Exon's personal warning against legislative spending plans

Exon called for a week's moratorium on further legislative consideration of spending proposals He is not likely to get it

"Not unless there is a demand or a request from members of the Legislature," Speaker Jules Burbach of Crofton said

To Continue Scheduling

Burbach said he will proceed with scheduling plans which call for consideration next week of individual senators' priority bills

"If they are money bills, then they are money bills," Burbach said.

Shortly after the governor returned to his offices, lawmakers conducted second stage debate on a $15 million school aid proposal — as scheduled.

While he could agree with some of what Exon said, Burbach suggested the governor "lost the effectiveness of anything he was attempting to do by threatening too strongly"

Chambers Sees 'Insult'

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha called the governor's talk "condescending, patronizing, contemptuous of the members of the Legislature, an insult he implied that we are stupid"

Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said Exon is "supporting what we are already trying to do in the Legislature

Legislature stories on Pages 5, 6

His committee has already supplied the Legislature with periodic reports on revenue projections and spending proposals, Marvel said

"I got up and said we were in trouble" he noted "I felt so strongly about it that I already called a moratorium in the committee — and I was criticized for it," he noted

Put Load On Property

In later floor debate on a school aid bill, Sen Jerome Warner of Waverly said the governor "wants property to carry the tax load" in Nebraska

By opposing increased state aid to schools and legislative proposals to fully support community colleges with state funds, Exon "loads the tax on property," Warner said

Yet, he said, Exon has succeeded in creating "this myth that he is opposed to taxes

Sen Frank Lewis of Bellevue said one answer to the governor's concern over possible state sales and personal income tax increases is to hike the taxes on corporation income

One senator who found himself "in agreement" with Exon's speech was Robert Clark of Sidney vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee

'Don't Give Doggone'

I think he's right Some senators don't give a doggone what they're spending Clark said

"People are not asking for added services I know my people don't want a spender down here

The spending issue could come to a head soon

Sen George Syas of Omaha filed a motion directing the speaker to place all revenue bills and spending proposals for more than $25,000 at the top of the list for floor debate

The Syas motion may be debated Thursday

Only With Invitation

Meanwhile Chambers filed a motion to provide that the governor would not be permitted to address the Legislature in the future except after a vote of a majority of the elected members to extend him a formal invitation"

Chambers accused Lt Gov Gerald Whelan of attempting to "protect the governor from legislative criticism

Whelan ruled Chambers out of order when he attempted to respond to the governor's speech after Exon left the legislative chamber Whelan's ruling was overturned by a legislative vote, and Chambers delivered his remarks

"Rulings by the lieutenant governor cannot silence me," he declared

Licensing Site Cheered, Booed

A proposed location for the driver licensing office drew both praise and protests as University Place residents, businessmen and local politicaians debated the merits of the 47th and Baldwin site Wednesday night.

University Place businessmen appeared divided on the site, but neighbors overwhelmingly spoke against the proposal which would bring an additional 200 cars a day into their neighborhood, during a public discussion sponsored by the University Place Community Organization (UPCO).

"This would be an excellent oppoortunity for Uni Place to once again be on the map and be counted," said Charles Knight of the Citizen's State Bank. He presented a petition "wholeheartedly supporting" the 47th and Baldwin site and signed by 22 businessmen

The merchants feel that the possibility of gaining new customers will offset any parking problems caused by the increased traffic flow to the area.

Another University Place businessman, Ken Thomsen of Thomsen Music, disagreed, saying that the current parking problem is killing the business area.

"I don't think we're helping our community by bringing in 200 cars a day If our local businesses need this to support their business then they'd better relocate," he said.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf also came out against the proposed University Place location in a press release Wednesday. The serious parking problem and traffic flow problems were listed in the release

The 47th and Baldwin location and an alternative site at Gateway Shopping Center are both under consideration by the Lancaster County Board, Commissioner Jan Gauger explained

The University Place location would be one of two county sites while the larger space at Gateway would mean a single driver licensing office for the county

The two-year search for a licensing office to replace the one currently housed in the County-City Building was also explained by Mrs Gauger

The licensing office averages about one accident a week and wanted out of the congested location, said Mrs Gauger, who has personally looked at close to 100 locations over the past two years

The site must be accessible to the handicapped, not directly on a busy arterial but adjacent to one and must have nearby parking, she explained

Though the driver licensing office is a state function and staffed by state employes, the county is responsible for providing the office space

Gap Between Teachers, School Board Narrows

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The gap between demands and offers to increase teachers' salaries in 1975-76 contracts was narrowed to $500,000 Wednesday, and Lincoln Board of Education negotiators proposed a sweeping new package of options for insurance benefits.

In its third counter-proposal, the board offered the Lincoln Education Association (LEA) an 8.6% or $1.4 million increase in the salary budget, and a 1.3% or $222,500 more in estimated costs for fringe benefits.

The board earlier had offered 8.1% more salary dollars.

Counter Immediate

The LEA team immediately countered with a drop from its last 12.5% overall pay hike demand, to 11.4% or a $1.9 million increase.

Base pay for a beginning teacher would be $8,370 under the LEA request, compared to $8,325 under the board's latest proposed salary schedule Current base is $7,825.

In a new insurance benefits section, the board proposed that starting this fall, teachers may apply the school district's contribution — from $5 to $30 monthly — to health insurance, or they may choose to take it as part of salary

The proposal also included a teacher income protection insurance plan allowing teachers the option to apply all or part of the board's dollar contribution to health insurance, to income protection or to paychecks

Cafeteria Fringe Benefits

"We are excited that the concept of cafeteria fringe benefits is being proposed by the board's team," said LEA Executive Director Robert F. Peterson.

But the board's surprise offer and willingness to administer it "places us (teachers) in a difficult situation" in relation to the total package, Peterson said. He explained, "We still think the salary part of it is most inadequate

"And we'll have to do some serious soul-searching" to determine whether increases should be spread among salaries and fringe benefits, or mostly applied to salaries, he said.

The teams reached consensus Wednesday on concepts of a new retirement incentive plan. The LEA held out for a larger incentive amount the first year, for teachers age 62, and pressed for the option to be put into effect on July 1, 1975, instead of one year later as the board proposed

2 Items Agree To

Final agreement was reached on two items, a forced staff reduction policy, and a joint study with the University of Nebraska to review placement of student teachers and staff development. The report deadline is Dec. 31, 1975

The team members squabbled amicably about the board proposal to pay summer school teachers $8.50 per instructional hour, which the LEA maintains is too low and should be awarded instead according to a percentage of salary.

The board team held to its earlier proposals to allow building staffs to deviate from the salary schedule, to award 12 paychecks, to require teachers to notify the district of student tutoring for pay, and proposed no changes in the district's sick leave and emergency leave policies.

The LEA countered with a new leave category, allowing teachers up to five days annually for professionally related activities. Approval of the teacher's coordinator, department chairman and principal would be required, and teachers would pay the cost of a substitute if required.

Final agreement was reached on two items, a forced staff reduction policy, and a joint study with the University of Nebraska to review placement of student teachers and staff development. The report deadline is Dec. 31, 1975.

The team members squabbled amicably about the board proposal to pay summer school teachers $8.50 per instructional hour, which the LEA maintains is too low and should be awarded instead according to a percentage of salary.

The board team held to its earlier proposals to allow building staffs to deviate from the salary schedule, to award 12 paychecks, to require teachers to notify the district of student tutoring for pay, and proposed no changes in the district's sick leave and emergency leave policies.

The LEA countered with a new leave category, allowing teachers up to five days annually for professionally related activitites. Approval of the teacher's coordinator, department chairman and principal would be required, and teachers would pay the cost of a substitute if required.

Ford Urges Americans To Write 'New Agenda'

New Orleans, La. (AP) — President Ford declared Wednesday night that the Indochina was was over for the United States, and he called on American's to "write a new agenda for the future."

The President told an audience of Tulane University students that he was saddened by the events in Indochina, but he wsaid "they do not portend the end of the world nor the end of America's leadership in the world."

In a prepared speech that a White House spokesman billed as the first of the post-Vietnam era, the President said that "America can again regain the sense of pride that existed before Vietnam."

"But it cannot be achieved by refighting a war that is finished — as far as America is concerned," he said.

"The time has come to look forward to an agenda for the future, to unity, to binding up the nation's wounds and restoring it to health and optimistic self-confidence."

Seven times in the 20-minute speech he used the phrase "agenda for the future" and told the students in the audience that they can play a major role in rebuilding the confidence of America.

"In New Orleans tonight, we can begin a great national reconciliation ...," the President asserted. "I ask that we accept the responsibilities of leadership as a good neighbor to all peoples and the enemy of none I ask that we strive to become, in the finest American tradition, something more tomorrow than we are today."

The speech highlighted a busy day of presidential activity in New Orleans.

Earlier, he participated in a groundbreaking ceremony, made a helicopter trip to an oil rig 35 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico to promote his energy program and made a strong plea for his defense policies in an address before the 73rd annual conviction of the Navy League.

Ford picked a college campus, which had been the scene of some anti-Vietnam protests two years ago, as a forum to launch his new post-Vietnam agenda for America.

In the Tulane speech, the President said, in an apparent reference to Indochina:

"Some seem to feel that if we do not succeed in everything, everywhere, then we have succeeded in nothing, anywhere I reject such polarized thinking. We can and should help others to help themselves. But the fate of responsible men and women everywhere in the final decision, rests in their own hands."

The President said, "America's future depends upon Americans — especially your generation which is now equipping itself to assume the challenge of the future.

"I ask tonight that we stop refighting the battles and recriminations of the past," Ford said. "I ask that we look now at what is right with America, at our possibilitites and our potentialities for change, in growth, and achievement and sharing.

"It is in this spirit that we mush now move beyond the discord of the past decade," he said

The President told the Tulane audience that he would like to share his own views of America's future with them.

"I envision a creative program that goes as far as our courage and capabilities can take us — at home and abroad," he said.

"My goal is for a cooperative world at peace, using its resources to build, not to destroy."

"As President, I am determined to offer leadership to overcome economic problems," he said "My goal is for jobs for all who want to work and economic opportunity for all who want to achieve."

Ford said he is determined to seek self-sufficiency in energy as an urgent national priority and said he will pursue interdependence with other nations and a reformed international economic system.

Thais Deploy Troops To Head Off Refugees

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand sent 1,000 reinforcements Wednesday to its frontier with Cambodia to stem the flow of refugees and weapons into the country, the Thai government said

About 4,000 border police have guarded the 400-mile frontier since the Communist-led Khmer Rouge took over Phnom Penh on April 17. Several thousand refugees have sought shelter in Thailand and fleeing Cambodian soldiers and pilots have brought in a large number of weapons and aircraft, to the embarrassment of the Thais, who do not wish to alienate the new government of Cambodia.

Meanwhile, Cambodia remained under a blanket of silence and informed diplomatic observers speculated the new Khmer Rouge leadership might have encountered difficulties in organizing the country and its capital.

"How can 60,000 Khmer Rouge handle two million people?" one observer noted, referring to the small size of the victorious army and the large and unwieldy population of Phnom Penh.

Reliable sources in Bangkok said employes of Western agencies were safe inside the French consulate in Phnom Penh, but that the compound was surrounded by Khmer Rouge soldiers and that there was a shortage of food and water. However, a French government spokesman in Paris said Phnom Penh authorities agreed that food could be delivered and a supply plane had been dispatched.

Some 400 Cambodians left the consulate after the Khmer Rouge demanded that all Cambodians leave the compound, the sources said, but about 600 Cambodians remain with Western journalists, members of international relief agencies, and the United Nations, as well as private citizens.

The Khmer Rouge radio continued to play revolutionary songs and repeated a speech given Tuesday by Khieu Samphan, the commander in chief of the Khmer Rouge armed forces and presumably one of the top leaders of the movement. A mass celebration has been scheduled to begin Thursday to mark the victory and mourn for those who died in the five-year war.

In a delayed report, sources in Bangkok said six of Cambodia's top military commanders fled the country after the fall of Phnom Penh last Thursday and now were in Thailand.

The sources said the former commander of the 7th Division, Gen. Deng Layon, shot himself after the surrender of Phnom Penh. Layon was reputed to be a corrupt, inefficient and dissolute commander and had been replaced as head of the 7th Division several months before the fall.

The Thai government has refused asylum to political or military leaders, including Gen. Sak Suthsakhan, the former army chief of staff and last head of the Phnom Penh government. Thailand grants all Cambodian refugees only a one-month permit to stay in the country.

Thai Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj said the weapons and aircraft brought to Cambodia would be returned as soon as possible. Thailand has already recognized the new regime.

Mobster's Daughter, Daley Son To Wed

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — John Daley, son of Mayor Richard J. Daley, is engaged to marry the daughter of a crime syndicate hoodlum.

John and Mary Lou Briatta, both 28, have set their wedding date for June 26 in Our Lady of Pompeii Church.

Mary Lou's father is Louis Briatta, a downtown Loop gambling boss for the mob and a brother-in-law of John D'Arco, 1st Ward Democratic committeeman and former alderman of the ward, which includes the Loop.

Romance Blossoms

Friends of the couple said that their romance blossomed during the mayor's primary and regular election campaigns.

John was in charge of the mayor's campaign headquarters and Mary Lou worked there as a campaign aide.

The couple also were together during vacations at Grand Beach, Mich., where both the Daley and Briatta families have summer homes.

Col. Jack Reilly, the mayor's director of special events, said John announced the engagement at a gathering last Thursday.

Briatta was named in 1963 U.S. Senate Rackets Committee hearings in Washington as being among 300 men who devoted their full time to keeping Chicago crime syndicate operations running smoothly.

Federal investigators said Briatta still has an active role in mob gambling in the Loop area.

His headquarters is a near West Side family-owned barber shop, which is also the family's home address, investigators said.

Mrs. Briatta is an officer of Maxwell Liquors Inc., located a short distance from the barber shop, investigators said Briatta once operated the old Rush Liquors store, which was located in the Rush St. night club strip, they added

Briatta also operated Uncle Lou's Discount Store until about a year ago, investigators added. Briatta is one of four brothers, all of whom have held city jobs.

John Daley and another brother, William, 26, operate the Daley & Daley insurance agency a short distance from the Mayor's Bridgeport neighborhood home John still lives with his parents.

John was thrust into the public spotlight twice during the last three years — once over a massive shift of insurance to the Heil & Heil agency and again over his state insurance broker's exam

Earned $100,000

John earned more than $100,000 in commissions in 1972 when the mayor ordered more than $2 million in insurance on public facilities shifted to Heil & Heil, which then employed John.

Investigators said that both John and William were issued state insurance broker's licenses, although neither deserved to receive passing grades on their exams

Water Shortage Ahead?

Washington (UPI) — Government and private experts warned Wednesday the U S drive to solve the energy shortage may trigger an even worse national water crisis.

What the United States must rapidly develop, the experts told the National Conference on Water, is vastly improved water use planning on the federal, state and local level

Poor planning today, they said, can have a profound impact a decade from now in such seemingly unrelated areas as energy production, food growing, city water supplies, flood control and the prevention of pollution.

Energy figured heavily in the conference because virtually every one of the proposed methods of boosting domestic energy production places heavy new demands on U.S. water supplies

"Today, our water requirements are snowballing, the water resources Congress said in a report presented at the government-sponsored conference.

"As we evaluate requirements to 1985, we can already see that a water crisis is in the making. We have moved too slowly, or our requirements have escalated almost unnoticed"

If the United States were to stop water development now, the report said, by the year 2,000, there would be few areas of the country with an ample water supply at all times and many areas with a chronically short supply.

Men, Women Inmates Housed In Same Prison; Idea Working

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "I become somewhat incensed when I hear it said that in some quarters our institution is thought to be the scene of rampant sexual misconduct.

"This is nonsense ...

"We are involved in a highly significant social experiment. We are conducting it in a responsible, cautious manner with promising results thus far"

That's how Warden Charles Campell defended the Federal Correctional Institution (FCI) here against criticism over the housing of men and women inmates under the same roof.

Campbell's comments were made about a year after the U.S. Bureau of Prisons opened the experimental facility and he added that a "drastic departure from the conventional is certain to become controversial."

He was right; there was controversy aplenty after FCI opened in 1971. But a recent study suggests the coed, or cocorrectional, concept is sound and workable and could be used elsewhere.

Elizabeth Krippel, an Illinois sociologist who spent 14 months at the prison as part of the study funded by the Bureau of Prisons, calls the mingling of male and female prisoners healthy and humane, though she says it is not without occasional illicit sex and certain problems.

Miss Krippel said the residents, as they are called here, feel that "if you have to do time, this is the place to do it." She interviewed nearly 100 residents and said that though reactions were mixed, less than a third felt FCI was "a bad story all the way."

FCI has innovations going for it other than the coed program. There are no guards as such, just unarmed "correctional employes." The guardhouse is vacant, the gate open and the visiting area park-like and informal.

Living quarters are separate for men and women — sexual contact is prohibited but does exist — and rooms resemble those in modest college dormitories

Although all inmates are convicted felons, some residents attend college classes or have jobs outside the prison, and others take special vocational training on the inside.

The women's unit is locked at night, but otherwise residents do most things together: eat, work and attend school, church, movies, counseling and supervised recreational activities.

'Bloodied' Chamber Will Still Urge Voting

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, its "nose bloodied" by some criticism of prior politicking, picked up the electioneering theme again Wednesday.

Before engaging in an off-the-record discussion of the chamber's role in the upcoming city election, board president Paul Amen noted that because of some comments of a political nature by chamber directors at a previous board meeting, "we kind of got our nose bloodied." He referred to criticism of some of the comments in the press.

But, he said of chamber involvement in local government affairs, "I think it is well worth the effort."

After a lengthy off-the-record discussion, the board agreed that the chamber under its letterhead, will publish a letter advertisement prior to the May 6 general election urging Lincolnites to vote and pointing out issues which the chamber thinks are important. The letter will be signed by Amen and other board officers.

Candidates will not be endorsed by the chamber.

Individual endorsements would jeopardize the chamber's tax exempt status, it was pointed out.

Other chamber business:

— It was announced that a committee will be formed to explore the idea of holding an annual meeting for the entire chamber membership — some 1,500. It was suggested that a speaker of national recognition be scheduled for such a meeting.

— Bill Bennett, vice chairman of the aviation committee, noting that Air Wisconsin starts serving Lincoln this coming Sunday, said that commuter air carrier will provide "as good service as we can get between Lincoln and Minneapolis." Air Wisconsin sales manager Watson Whiteside told the board that the airline has already booked 100 Lincoln passenger reservations for its first week of operation.

— Directors Jack Hart and James Kamas challenged the executive board and staff decision not to hire a replacement immediately for the resigning conventions manager. Both directors feared a loss of momentum in attempts to attract new conventions to Lincoln if the post remains vacant. Amen said the executive board would re-evaluate its decision.

— Chamber financial officers reported that the organization faces a $12,500 deficit by the end of the year despite a pledge that 1975 would end with a balanced budget. A new budget for 1975 will be presented to the board next month which takes into account the anticipated shortfall of income.

— An ad hoc committee evaluating the chamber's work and which will make recommendations regarding the chamber's future issued its first report. Director Leo Beck said the committee is considering hiring a public opinion service to determine "where the chamber stands in the community and what the members should be doing."

ROTC, Vreeland Awards Scheduled

Upcoming awards presentations at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln include the spring awards to Army ROTC cadets on Thursday and the Vreeland Awards for creative work in art, English and music, on Friday.

ROTC awards will be made at 12:30 p.m. in Room 202 of the Nebraska Union. The Vreeland presentation is at 1:30 p.m. at the Sheldon Art Gallery Auditorium, when six students will be honored.

Earlier in the week, Russell McCreight Memorial Awards recognizing outstanding prospective elementary teachers were presented at UNL's Department of Elementary Education Convocation.

McCreight was in charge of the student teaching program in elementary education until his death in 1967. Two $50 scholarships are given along with 10 certificates of recognition.

Winners of the scholarships were Sharon Kay Deras, daughter of Mr George Deras of Valley and Sally Ann Shaffer daughter of Mr and Mrs Eugene Lee Shaffer, Omaha Deras was a student teacher at Prairie Lane Elementary School in Westside, and Shaffer was a student teacher at Belmont Elementary School in Lincoln.

Whoopers Symbolic

Pity the poor ducks and geese. Fifteen thousand of them die from cholera in one game management area in Nebraska recently, the corpses are burned and they are a matter of only secondary concern. But, then, there are millions of ducks and geese.

Attention is instead focused — and what attention: network news, national wire and news magazine reports — on the possibility that the fowl cholera might infect the migratory whooping crane. Forty-nine of the cranes are known to exist in natural surroundings. Some others are held by game biologists in a captive breeding program aimed at increasing the crane's diminishing numbers. In the wild there are 48 adults and this year only one rusty-colored juvenile, perhaps the last great hope of the species.

Last week Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service personnel tried to scatter nine whoopers which had settled near the Sacramento Game Management Area near Wilcox to rest and feed. The wildlife management people didn't want the whoopers to be infected by avian cholera. They threw M80s at them, they shot shell crackers over the area, they buzzed the birds with light aircraft, they had "zon" guns which amplify small explosions — all to little avail, although at one point they moved seven of the cranes from the water to crop land. In their own good time, after 36 hours, the cranes took off for Canada, having hopefully avoided the cholera bacteria.

What is important is the care and attention devoted to the whooping crane. It is hard to imagine any other form of wildlife in which man is so interested. Cranes are monitored, coddled and protected all across the longitudinal expanse of two nations — from their winter home on the Texas gulf coast to the summer breeding and nesting grounds in Canada's Northwest Territories and Alberta. If by chance the cranes pick up the disease, and if sick birds can even be found in the remote areas of Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park where the cranes summer, the U.S. government stands ready to fly a veterinarian with antibiotics to the site to treat them. Wildlife management specialists at the Aransas game refuge in Texas anxiously await the return of the whoopers in the autumn so a head count can be taken.

The elegant crane — standing four to five feet tall, white feathered with black tips on wings which spread to seven feet, with a red tufted head — are symbolic of all the endangered species.

The attention devoted to the whooping cranes we hope indicates that awareness is growing among the people of this nation and others that the endangered species must be protected and encouraged to flourish. And we hope a broader understanding of why this must be can be obtained.

A Good Green Rain

It is amazing what a soft, warm spring rain can do.

Sure, Mother Nature did her blitzkrieg bit for a little while Tuesday night. It crashed and banged, thundered and hailed.

But in the main it was a gentle rain, oozing life and color.

Did you notice how green the lawns were Wednesday morning? And it seemed like every blade of grass, every flower and plant grew twice its size overnight

Tuesday night we had a row of radishes emerging. Wednesday morning another row, and lettuce, too. And a row of onion tops looking like a file of marching soldiers.

The rain may delay the farmers' planting plans a little longer, but we don't think they'll argue that the moisture isn't welcome.

It was a boon to the backyard farmer. That half inch or so of rain did more for the health and appearance of lawns and gardens than a like amount of moisture from a sprinkler or hose could ever do.

Help For SUN Blocked

A majority of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee this week followed the recommendations of the legislative fiscal analyst's office and rejected state tax support for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) program. SUN is a new multimedia educational program in which Nebraskans can earn college credits at home. The concept which originated here led to the creation of a regional program of similar design.

The legislative fiscal office said SUN funding was rejected in a judgment decision on university priorities. That may not be an acceptable explanation to SUN advocates but it is reasonable as an explanation.

What bothered us was the fiscal aide's statement to senators that SUN has "not yet established itself as to whether it is or is not a viable program."

It seems to us that cutting down a program's nourishment does not do much for its viability. If the Legislature wants to see if the program can work, it should give it a little help.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

The clouds have lifted and there is a warm radiance of sunshine that overwhelms the sky, land and the pond and, yes, I must say, the people. With this day, thoughts again turn to making garden

One lady told me they had their seed potatoes cut and if they soon didn't get them planted, they were going to start to eat them. Many gardeners are in the same plight.

Cutting seed potatoes when I was a girl was always a happy time for it meant the beginning of a new season . . . a verification that spring had arrived and a spanking new season was opening.

Dad cut the potatoes for seed on the back step. From a bushel basket he took each potato, looked it over carefully to decide where to make the cuts so each piece would have the desired number of eyes in it, then the pieces were put into buckets nearby.

Usually our old farm dog would be nearby, sniffing about or stretched out on the bottom step, head between his paws, ears alert and eyes wide open just in case something exciting would take place.

My sister and I sat on the steps watching the leisurely work, adding plenty of small talk while the minutes melted away softly under a warming sun.

The following day the larger buckets of cut seed would be subdivided into two little buckets. My sister and I walked down the open row and dropped the potatoes in place, spaced just so far apart so each hill would have enough room to develop. Dad would take the larger bucket and also start down the row. He would finish his row long before we did for there were always so many things we had to investigate in the fine open countryside.

Often we were assigned the task of picking potato bugs from the plants. Later dad applied Paris green. Once around the patch picking the bugs was enough for us . . . there was certainly no romance nor fun in this job.

The rhubarb is unfolding its small crinkly leaves above the ground and the peonies are breaking through with red pointed tips like red hot pokers. The iris too have decided to make their push into the spring air. Having tested it, they like what they see and since have shown their gratitude for another growing season by opening their green fans.

Last fall I set a chrysanthemum plant out of doors to overwinter. It was a potted plant that bloomed beautifully from the florist's shop. Not knowing if it were winter hardy, I decided to put it next to the basement foundation of the house, hoping enough heat would escape through the walls to keep it alive.

I pulled the mulch away from it today and found the small curly leaves already pushing up toward the light. The plant looked most vigorous. Now I am anticipating more lovely autumn flowers.

The old hen and chicken plants are clustered together in a myriad of new shoots, almost growing one on top of the other. When the ground warms and can be tilled, one of my first tasks is to divide the plants.

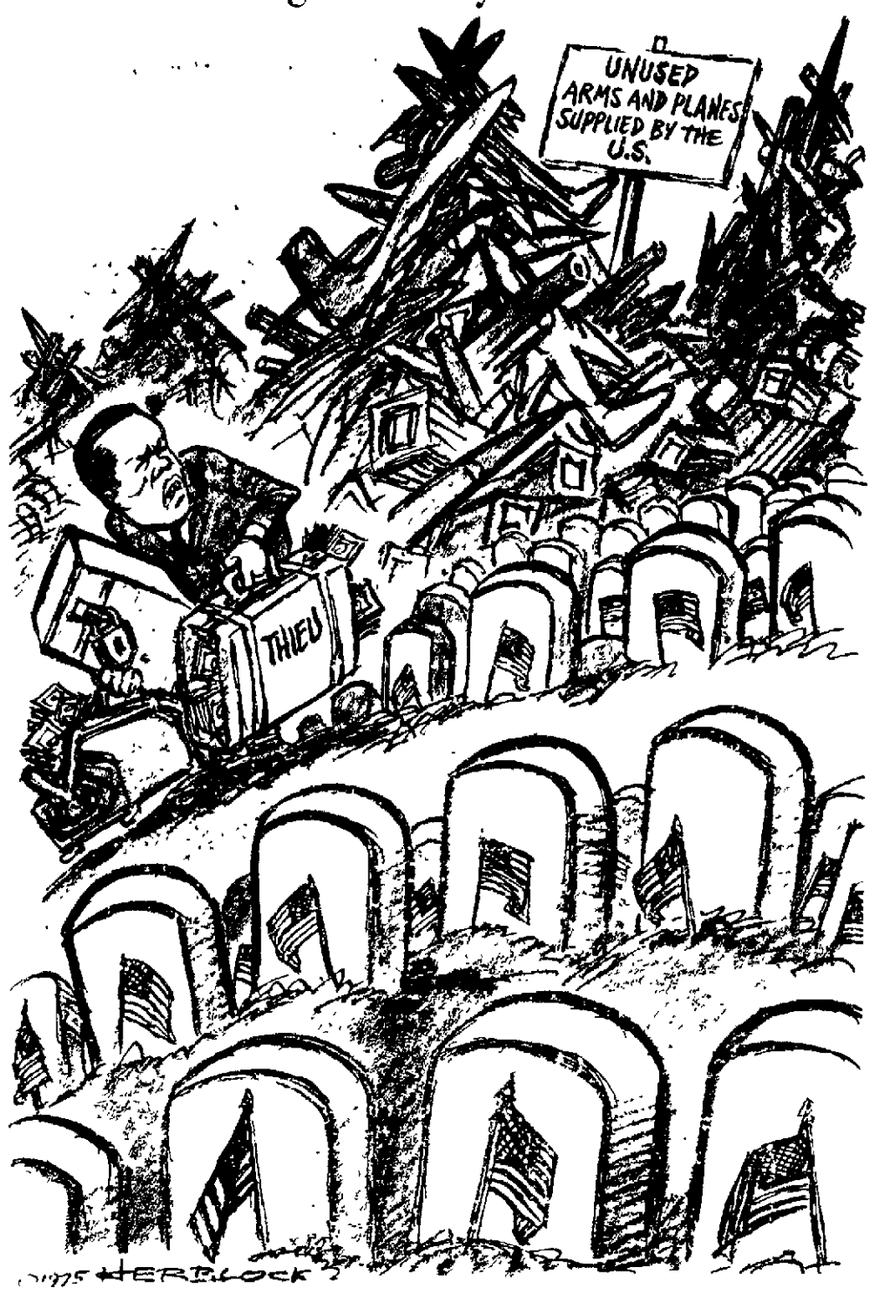
A friend gave me a vigorous plant from her Christmas cactus In fact she has started three plants from her very large parent plant. Her plant blooms not only at Christmas time but a couple of times throughout the year with well over two hundred flowers

My grandmother had such a cactus, big, draping and filled with deep pink-red flowers each holiday season. I tried once to nurture one along and met with failure. However, this time I seem to be doing much better for already many new leaves have pushed out from the ends of the original leaves. I might add, the plant is still in the container in which it was planted so I suppose I should take no credit for the success thus far.

The friend remarked that she attributes her success in getting them to bloom and grow so vigorously to the fact that she feeds them a commercial fish emulsion from the florist's shop. When I transplant the cactus I, too, am going to add some to the potting soil. After all, who can argue with success?

"Damn Americans! What have you done for me since the last eight or ten years?"



By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — Hard to guess what ex-President Thieu will do now, except look for a safe place to hide and open a Swiss bank account. All things considered, he had a good life in the South Vietnamese ruling party after getting off to a shaky start. He was the youngest of ten officers the CIA chose to unseat Diem in early November, 1963, and the lowest ranking — colonel. His job was to take the palace in Saigon and seize Diem. He showed up late, for some unaccountable reason, and Diem and the well-hated brother who was married to Madam Nhu, escaped to what turned out to be their deaths the next day.

Thieu managed to keep his equilibrium through a series of military governments that followed. In time, he was the lesser of the two top South Vietnamese military-political figures when we imposed an American-style election on the country. "Captain Midnight," as the colorful Air Marshal Ky was called, was Numero Uno. But he mysteriously announced in mid-campaign that he was running for vice president, not president, and Thieu overwhelmingly won the rigged election. The top civilian candidate had been thrown in the jug . . . and may still be there.

Thieu was a puppet of the CIA and Presidents Kennedy, who was killed three weeks after he approved Diem's overthrow, Johnson and Nixon. President Ford was still trying to persuade Congress to ship him the better part of a billion dollars in arms when — after a TV speech denouncing the U.S. — Thieu blew.

The Wrong Lesson

WASHINGTON — The defeat of American policy in Cambodia and Vietnam underscores the need for a clearer understanding of this nation's world role. It is necessary to look beyond the guilt, the disappointment and the recrimination of today.

The military intervention in Indochina marked the farthermost extension of this country's involvement in every remote and peripheral struggle against communist power. For years the United States has been trying to undo that mistake and retract to strategic positions around the world that are clearly in accord with national interests and are therefore viable and defensible.

The need is for a coherent foreign policy that is based on something less than the flamboyant globalism of the Truman Doctrine of 1947 but that is not retreat into American First isolationism. The United States cannot "go it alone" but neither can it be the world's policeman, investigating every political mugging and every ideological altercation on every block. Former President Nixon tried to reformulate American foreign policy but, in rhetoric and in practice, his Nixon Doctrine was President Truman's globalism warmed over.

In several recent speeches, President Ford has done more to demonstrate the need for a restatement of American policy than to answer that need. Instead of cutting past losses, he has dwelled on them and even magnified them. Thus, in addressing newspaper editors last week, he reiterated his view that if only Congress had appropriated all the military aid funds requested for South Vietnam over the last two years, the "tragic situation" there might never have occurred.

Such analysis and such speculations are worse than fanciful They are unbecoming to an American president. Undoubtedly, the Soviet Union and China have continued to be zealous in aiding their political clients in Indochina, while the United States has gradually reduced aid to its clients. But at the reduced level, American aid was still substantial. Moreover, the sudden spectacular collapse of South Vietnam's armed forces was not caused by any immediate or prospective lack of weapons and equipment. This rout was due to poor generalship and a crumbling of morale in the army.

Unlike the Russians and the Chinese, Americans could not fight a war by proxy in Indochina because aid alone was not enough to sustain its political clients. Intensive bombing by the United States Air Force and support by United States ground troops were necessary as well. In light of those facts, President Ford is reading the wrong lesson in the Indochinese defeats.

The President also misses the mark in his recurrent criticisms of a "new isolationism" and his warnings that the United States cannot "withdraw from One World and go it alone."

Americans are seeking — more earnestly perhaps than at any time since the interventionist vs. isolationist debate of 1939-41 — to define the scope and character of their country's involvement in world affairs. Instead of clarifying this complex problem, President Ford overshoots the mark by urging the impossible or warning against the implausible.

Whether President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger find it congenial or not, they can in the next two years shape American foreign policy successfully only if they genuinely share the intellectual and political burden with the opposition-controlled Congress. Such sharing need not be a prescription for weakness. President Truman, as politically beleaguered in 1947-48 as Ford is today, cooperated successfully with the opposition-controlled 80th Congress. Republican leaders were closely consulted in making policy with respect to the Marshall Plan, and there was as much of Republican Arthur Vandenberg as there was of Democrat Harry Truman in the Truman Doctrine.

If it is to work with Congress in evolving an American foreign policy backed by a broad bipartisan consensus, the Ford administration has to recognize that popular support for the old policies in Southeast Asia has vanished. The Democratic majorities in Congress are not being blind or willful in disregarding the Ford-Kissinger recommendations. They are responding to the readily perceived course of public opinion. In place of the ghosts of yesterday's policies, the administration and Congress together can create new and viable policies for the future on the basis of equality and cooperation.

Keeping Promises

Blair, Neb.

Governor J. J. Exon has proceeded, without "waffaling or wavering", to provide this state with the kind of statesmanlike leadership so lacking in our political headship in Washington, D. C. In the face of strong pressures, he opposed the ill-advised reduction of personal income tax rates, preceding an election year. The wisdom of his position becomes more evident every day now.

How many states in this great nation now pay their part-time lieutenant governors the same as they pay their governors? Just Nebraska, and this for partisan reasons, plus our governor's adamant, open position opposing the far too liberal salary increases voted for our state department heads a couple of years back.

In my opinion, our present governor has to this point kept every political pledge he ever made in the heat of campaign, which should stamp him as a rare kind of person in this modern-day political jungle dominated by self-seeking phonies.

Donald Brantz writes about everyone's being out of step with him. His day (with the wrong hymns, beer at the church reception, aggravating clerks) sounds like most of mine, but thanks to a great organization called "Recovery, Inc." I have learned a little better way to cope with life's irritations.

Recovery, Inc., the Association of Nervous and Former Mental Patients (don't let the name scare you) meets all over the United States, in Canada, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Ireland, teaching people how to "spot" these trivialities as being dangerous to our mental health. We learn that we are not to judge who is right or wrong in these trivial everyday happenings and to "drop" our tempers in order to avoid the working up process.

Recovery's founder, a wise and wonderful psychiatrist, Dr. Abraham A. Low of Chicago, developed the Recovery method which is helpful to anyone who is having trouble adjusting to life as it is.

The Bounty Concept

Lincoln, Neb.

The article, "Education Board Okays Revised Special Education Rules," Thursday, April 17, indicated that I said that the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens objected strongly to the "bounty concept" of LB 403. That was not what I said in written and oral testimony presented to the State Board of Eduction. I did say that we object strongly to the "bounty concept" of the proposed rules and regulations.

The difference is major. LB 403 passed in 1973 does not divide handicapped persons into categories for purposes of levels of reimbursement for school districts. The proposed rules and regulations for LB 403 do impose such categories.

We call it the bounty concept because it places a dollar reimbursement factor on each handiapped person. Some — not all — school districts would tend to place handicapped persons in the most severe possible category, whether justified or not, in order to receive the most possible state aid. Further, it would become more difficult to move a person from a more severe category to a less severe one because it would mean loss of some state aid.

State School Aid

Omaha, Neb.

I would like Governor Exon to stop performing like a typical politician at least long enough not to veto the state school aid bill. The state legislators for the most part realize that public schools must have state aid to remain open in the future. When you ask the stupid public to vote for approval of more taxes to support schools, they will vote "no" every time. Many voters couldn't care less about the public school system.

Don't ever ask the public for permission to raise their taxes. By and large, the public is an irresponsible, ignorant lot, but they ain't that dumb.

Governor Exon beams as he says he will veto the bill because it is the people's wishes, but he offers no alternative as to where the public schools shall get more support. I would like to hear just one politician say what the union leaders have been saying for 30 years: "The public be damned!"

Since the governor has strong support from the Catholic Church, I suspect he is waiting for the time when state aid would include private schools. Under those circumstances, he wouldn't veto a state aid bill. I predict that in 10 years we will see state aid to private schools. The public schools will go begging and diminish while private schools will thrive.

Transportation For Disabled

Lincoln, Neb.

This is a letter in support of Helen Boosalis.

Working both with and for persons who have disabilities has given me an opportunity to meet many people in city government. Mrs. Boosalis has been open and helpful when asked for advice or support.

At a time when transportation was non-existent for the disabled, Helen Boosalis was the person who had enough courtesy to inform a small group of the proper protocol and channels of communication in asking the city to accept the federal grant which would provide transportation for the disabled. Her encouragement helped this small group keep enough courage for the year's struggle while the question of bus transportation hung in the balance. I really felt Mrs. Boosalis was the only source available and willing to interact with the disabled.

Through this experience, I came to respect her sensitivity to human needs, honesty in dealing with people and good judgment. I think she would be responsive to the human needs existing in the Lincoln community.

Whoopers Symbolic

Pity the poor ducks and geese. Fifteen thousand of them die from cholera in one game management area in Nebraska recently, the corpses are burned and they are a matter of only secondary concern. But, then, there are millions of ducks and geese.

Attention is instead focused — and what attention: network news, national wire and news magazine reports — on the possibility that the fowl cholera might infect the migratory whooping crane. Forty-nine of the cranes are known to exist in natural surroundings. Some others are held by game biologists in a captive breeding program aimed at increasing the crane's diminishing numbers. In the wild there are 48 adults and this year only one rusty-colored juvenile, perhaps the last great hope of the species.

Last week Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service personnel tried to scatter nine whoopers which had settled near the Sacramento Game Management Area near Wilcox to rest and feed. The wildlife management people didn't want the whoopers to be infected by avian cholera. They threw M80s at them, they shot shell crackers over the area, they buzzed the birds with light aircraft, they had "zon" guns which amplify small explosions — all to little avail, although at one point they moved seven of the cranes from the water to crop land. In their own good time, after 36 hours, the cranes took off for Canada, having hopefully avoided the cholera bacteria.

What is important is the care and attention devoted to the whooping crane. It is hard to imagine any other form of wildlife in which man is so interested. Cranes are monitored, coddled and protected all across the longitudinal expanse of two nations — from their winter home on the Texas gulf coast to the summer breeding and nesting grounds in Canada's Northwest Territories and Alberta. If by chance the cranes pick up the disease, and if sick birds can even be found in the remote areas of Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park where the cranes summer, the U.S. government stands ready to fly a veterinarian with antibiotics to the site to treat them. Wildlife management specialists at the Aransas game refuge in Texas anxiously await the return of the whoopers in the autumn so a head count can be taken.

The elegant crane — standing four to five feet tall, white feathered with black tips on wings which spread to seven feet, with a red tufted head — are symbolic of all the endangered species.

The attention devoted to the whooping cranes we hope indicates that awareness is growing among the people of this nation and others that the endangered species must be protected and encouraged to flourish. And we hope a broader understanding of why this must be can be obtained.

A Good Green Rain

It is amazing what a soft, warm spring rain can do.

Sure, Mother Nature did her blitzkrieg bit for a little while Tuesday night. It crashed and banged, thundered and hailed.

But in the main it was a gentle rain, oozing life and color.

Did you notice how green the lawns were Wednesday morning? And it seemed like every blade of grass, every flower and plant grew twice its size overnight.

Tuesday night we had a row of radishes emerging. Wednesday morning another row, and lettuce, too. And a row of onion tops looking like a file of marching soldiers.

The rain may delay the farmers' planting plans a little longer, but we don't think they'll argue that the moisture isn't welcome.

It was a boon to the backyard farmer. That half inch or so of rain did more for the health and appearance of lawns and gardens than a like amount of moisture from a sprinkler or hose could ever do.

Help For SUN Blocked

A majority of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee this week followed the recommendations of the legislative fiscal analyst's office and rejected state tax support for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) program. SUN is a new multimedia educational program in which Nebraskans can earn college credits at home. The concept which originated here led to the creation of a regional program of similar design.

The legislative fiscal office said SUN funding was rejected in a judgment decision on university priorities. That may not be an acceptable explanation to SUN advocates but it is reasonable as an explanation.

What bothered us was the fiscal aide's statement to senators that SUN has "not yet established itself as to whether it is or is not a viable program."

It seems to us that cutting down a program's nourishment does not do much for its viability. If the Legislature wants to see if the program can work, it should give it a little help.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

The clouds have lifted and there is a warm radiance of sunshine that overwhelms the sky, land and the pond and, yes, I must say, the people. With this day, thoughts again turn to making garden.

One lady told me they had their seed potatoes cut and if they soon didn't get them planted, they were going to start to eat them. Many gardeners are in the same plight.

Cutting seed potatoes when I was a girl was always a happy time for it meant the beginning of a new season . . . a verification that spring had arrived and a spanking new season was opening.

Dad cut the potatoes for seed on the back step. From a bushel basket he took each potato, looked it over carefully to decide where to make the cuts so each piece would have the desired number of eyes in it, then the pieces were put into buckets nearby.

Usually our old farm dog would be nearby, sniffing about or stretched out on the bottom step, head between his paws, ears alert and eyes wide open just in case something exciting would take place.

My sister and I sat on the steps watching the leisurely work, adding plenty of small talk while the minutes melted away softly under a warming sun.

The following day the larger buckets of cut seed would be subdivided into two little buckets. My sister and I walked down the open row and dropped the potatoes in place, spaced just so far apart so each hill would have enough room to develop. Dad would take the larger bucket and also start down the row. He would finish his row long before we did for there were always so many things we had to investigate in the fine open countryside.

Often we were assigned the task of picking potato bugs from the plants. Later dad applied Paris green. Once around the patch picking the bugs was enough for us . . . there was certainly no romance nor fun in this job.

The rhubarb is unfolding its small crinkly leaves above the ground and the peonies are breaking through with red pointed tips like red hot pokers. The iris too have decided to make their push into the spring air. Having tested it, they like what they see and since have shown their gratitude for another growing season by opening their green fans.

Last fall I set a chrysanthemum plant out of doors to overwinter. It was a potted plant that bloomed beautifully from the florist's shop. Not knowing if it were winter hardy, I decided to put it next to the basement foundation of the house, hoping enough heat would escape through the walls to keep it alive.

I pulled the mulch away from it today and found the small curly leaves already pushing up toward the light. The plant looked most vigorous. Now I am anticipating more lovely autumn flowers.

The old hen and chicken plants are clustered together in a myriad of new shoots, almost growing one on top of the other. When the ground warms and can be tilled, one of my first tasks is to divide the plants.

A friend gave me a vigorous plant from her Christmas cactus. In fact she has started three plants from her very large parent plant. Her plant blooms not only at Christmas time but a couple of times throughout the year with well over two hundred flowers.

My grandmother had such a cactus, big, draping and filled with deep pink-red flowers each holiday season. I tried once to nurture one along and met with failure. However, this time I seem to be doing much better for already many new leaves have pushed out from the ends of the original leaves. I might add, the plant is still in the container in which it was planted so I suppose I should take no credit for the success thus far.

The friend remarked that she attributes her success in getting them to bloom and grow so vigorously to the fact that she feeds them a commercial fish emulsion from the florist's shop. When I transplant the cactus I, too, am going to add some to the potting soil. After all, who can argue with success?

NEW YORK — Hard to guess what ex-President Thieu will do now, except look for a safe place to hide and open a Swiss bank account. All things considered, he had a good life in the South Vietnamese ruling party after getting off to a shaky start. He was the youngest of ten officers the CIA chose to unseat Diem in early November, 1963, and the lowest ranking — colonel. His job was to take the palace in Saigon and seize Diem. He showed up late, for some unaccountable reason, and Diem and the well-hated brother who was married to Madam Nhu, escaped to what turned out to be their deaths the next day.

Exon Urges Senators To Stop Spending

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon exhorted state senators Wednesday to apply the brakes on state spending before legislation enacted exceeds even the tax increase he said is necessary.

In an unusual appearance before the Legislature, his third this session, Exon called on senators to suspend for the week any further consideration of bills requiring increases in state expenditures.

Exon cautioned senators that they are on the verge of forcing state sales tax up from 2.5% to 3.5% and the income tax up from 10% to 17% by January 1976. (Such an increase in the sales tax would mean that Lincoln, Omaha and Bellevue would pay 4.5 cents on every dollar of purchases.)

School Aid Bill

Although Exon did not mention specific pieces of legislation, one of the bills he is concerned about would increase state aid to public schools by $15 million.

In his own budget proposal, Exon has endorsed an increase in the income tax to 13% in order to fund necessary programs. That was contained in his Feb. 14 budget address to senators.

"As of this moment your body has advanced towards passage or your Appropriations Committee has approved expenditures in excess of $32.6 million over my suggestions . . . to say nothing of an additional minimum of $4.7 million waiting in the wings for your approval," he said.

"Unless you stop, look and listen today, it may be too late tomorrow."

Must Be Equal

Since state law requires that income and sales taxes each raise half of the revenue the state needs, expenditures exceeding what Exon has proposed could leave no choice but to raise the sales tax.

Exon said, "I have been concerned about triggering an increase in the sales tax, the most regressive tax of all, especially during these uncertain economic times.

"With high unemployment and heavy losses in . . . our agricultural economy, many will not be paying income tax, and I think it unfair to increase their sales tax, which they must pay regardless of their income."

Because of this, Exon urged legislators to repeal the requirement for a balance in sales and income tax revenue to head off a sales tax increase.

The one-week moratorium, Exon said, would give senators time to consider individual spending measures and how they fit into the total financial picture.

The moratorium would also give senators an "opportunity to learn from Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Nebraska back home rather than those who claim your attention day after day here in Lincoln, the lobbyists and other special interest groups," he said.

His past calls for tightening the reins on spending have apparently had little effect, he said.

Some Did Not Hear

"While many listened, some did not hear," he said. "Others refused to believe. Still others went on their merry spending ways, not being deterred by needed restraint or concern.

Increased spending, Exon said, is coming at a time when revenue has not expanded as it has in the past. The Department of Revenue has revised its revenue projections downward based on preliminary tax receipts for March.

For the first time in years, he said, the state's income tax revenue is declining instead of growing.

In addition, the state's general fund balance as of April 18 had dropped to $22.6 million compared to a $54 million balance one year ago. That he said is the lowest balance the state has experienced in six years, except for one month.

Bills Passed

By The Associated Press

Bills passed by the Legislature Wednesday:

LB8 – Permits state employes to use own cars on state business when it is convenient for them or for the state agency 47-1

LB481 – Harmonizes existing law with Uniform Probate Code 43-0

LB530 – Eliminates property taxes on fleets of trucks engaged in interstate commerce and substitutes a $32 per ton registration fee 35-8

Ag Unit To Introduce Bill That Could Aid Stockmen

The members of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee agreed Wednesday to introduce a bill which Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit said could aid livestock producers holding bad checks from American Beef Packers, Inc.

Schmit, chairman of the committee, said it could help livestock producers to obtain $12 million.

The bill would amend the Uniform Commercial Code to void sales to insolvent purchasers.

It would be a major revision of the rights involved in bankruptcy cases, sources said.

The bill would allow sellers to ask for the return of their goods if the purchaser was insolvent. If the goods were used, altered or damaged, the seller could receive cash.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp, vice chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said the right to the money would override any rights of the parties in a bankruptcy action.

Schmit said the bill possibly could be made retroactive.

Senators Back Away From Pay Showdown

By The Associated Press

The Legislature backed away from a challenge from Gov. J. J. Exon Wednesday, and dropped a plan to provide some $1 million to allow merit pay raises for state employes.

Senators amended LB588, striking a section that would have called for 1% of each agency's salary budget to be used for possible merit pay raises for deserving state workers.

The bill, which was passed twice and twice called back from Exon's desk, would now in effect recommend that the Appropriations Committee write into its budget bill a $12 million pay hike for state employes. That raise would be in the form of a $468 annual raise, plus 5%.

Exon promised to veto the bill as it was initially passed by the Unicameral. That version recommended $2 million for merit that would have required a minimum cost of $14 million.

Senators recalled the bill and cut that to $13 million in the face of Exon protests.

Exon insisted on the $12 million raise, and promised to veto anything above that. The bill was recalled again Wednesday and amended to provide that figure.

The major difference between the Exon and legislative pay plans now is their effective date. LB588 would give employes the raises July 1, while Exon's plan would have them take effect on an employe's anniversary date.

Lincoln Sen. Shirley Marsh offered the amendment to strike the merit pay plan, saying that unless it was stricken the bill could not get the 33 votes needed to adopt the emergency clause, which would put the bill into effect before the beginning of the fiscal year July 1.

After the merit pay section was stricken, senators added the emergency clause. The bill would become effective upon Exon's signature if it is again sent to his desk.

'Meals On Wheels' Bill Not So 'Wide Sweeping'

The Legislature amended a bill Wednesday which experts said could have given local governments almost unlimited authority to enter into contracts to spend tax dollars.

The measure, LB307, was passed 46-0 on April 7. It was recalled from the governor's desk after the Associated Press reported on what Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas called the "wide sweeping" powers it might have given local governments.

The bill was designed to allow local governmental subdivisions to participate in a food for the elderly program called "Meals on Wheels."

But initially the 14-line measure, offered by Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel, said "any municipal corporation may contract with any person to provide public services." It defined municipal corporations as counties, townships, cities or villages.

Douglas said the bill could have been used to contract to build roads, construct buildings or other things.

In striking the "wide sweeping" language from the bill through an amendment Wednesday, Marvel referred to LB307 as "that innocent bill that has been so maligned."

The bill was amended to apply specifically to the food for the elderly program, then advanced to the final floor stage.

Legislature Fails To Pass Support Of South Viet Aid

The Nebraska Legislature Wednesday failed to pass a resolution supporting humanitarian aid to South Vietnam.

The vote on the resolution was 19-18, six short of the 25 votes needed for approval.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers said the resolution could be a method of aiding wealthy Vietnamese "to deliver them and their ill gotten wealth into this country."

The Legislature rejected a motion to kill the resolution on a vote of 7-17.

Sen. John DeCamp, introducer of the resolution, said "If you vote to kill it, you're saying Nebraskans do not care about humanitarian aid."

Supporters of the resolution joined with opponents to delete a portion of the resolution which urged Congress to give military aid to the South Vietnamese. But the compromise did not gain enough votes to pass the resolution.

DeCamp said he may bring up the resolution again.

Exon Urges Senators To Stop Spending

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon exhorted state senators Wednesday to apply the brakes on state spending before legislation enacted exceeds even the tax increase he said is necessary.

In an unusual appearance before the Legislature, his third this session, Exon called on senators to suspend for the week any further consideration of bills requiring increases in state expenditures.

Exon cautioned senators that they are on the verge of forcing state sales tax up from 2.5% to 3.5% and the income tax up from 10% to 17% by January 1976. (Such an increase in the sales tax would mean that Lincoln, Omaha and Bellevue would pay 4.5 cents on every dollar of purchases.)

School Aid Bill

Although Exon did not mention specific pieces of legislation, one of the bills he is concerned about would increase state aid to public schools by $15 million.

In his own budget proposal, Exon has endorsed an increase in the income tax to 13% in order to fund necessary programs. That was contained in his Feb. 14 budget address to senators.

"As of this moment your body has advanced towards passage or your Appropriations Committee has approved expenditures in excess of $32.6 million over my suggestions . . . to say nothing of an additional minimum of $4.7 million waiting in the wings for your approval," he said.

"Unless you stop, look and listen today, it may be too late tomorrow."

Must Be Equal

Since state law requires that income and sales taxes each raise half of the revenue the state needs, expenditures exceeding what Exon has proposed could leave no choice but to raise the sales tax.

Exon said, "I have been concerned about triggering an increase in the sales tax, the most regressive tax of all, especially during these uncertain economic times.

"With high unemployment and heavy losses in . . . our agricultural economy, many will not be paying income tax, and I think it unfair to increase their sales tax, which they must pay regardless of their income."

Because of this, Exon urged legislators to repeal the requirement for a balance in sales and income tax revenue to head off a sales tax increase.

The one-week moratorium, Exon said, would give senators time to consider individual spending measures and how they fit into the total financial picture.

The moratorium would also give senators an "opportunity to learn from Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Nebraska back home rather than those who claim your attention day after day here in Lincoln, the lobbyists and other special interest groups," he said.

His past calls for tightening the reins on spending have apparently had little effect, he said.

Some Did Not Hear

"While many listened, some did not hear," he said. "Others refused to believe. Still others went on their merry spending ways, not being deterred by needed restraint or concern.

Increased spending, Exon said, is coming at a time when revenue has not expanded as it has in the past. The Department of Revenue has revised its revenue projections downward based on preliminary tax receipts for March.

For the first time in years, he said, the state's income tax revenue is declining instead of growing.

In addition, the state's general fund balance as of April 18 had dropped to $22.6 million compared to a $54 million balance one year ago. That he said is the lowest balance the state has experienced in six years, except for one month.

School Aid Hike Funding Hits Snag

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

An appropriations rider to fund the proposed $15 million increase in state aid to schools ran into trouble during second stage floor consideration in the Legislature Wednesday

After a lengthy debate, senators moved the bill to boost state assistance on its way toward final reading on a 25-18 vote.

But a later effort to send the $15 million appropriations rider along with the bill failed on a 22-22 tie vote At least 25 votes were required to move the bill on its way

Sen Wally Barnett of Lincoln filed a motion to kill the funding rider, and it was scheduled for debate on Thursday

Earlier, Barnett attempted to kill the state aid bill, LB368, but was rebuffed on a 16-27 count

LB368, sponsored by Sens Herb Duis of Gothenburg and Gerald Koch of Ralston, would boost state aid in annual increments of $15 million until it pays for 40% of public school operating costs

In 1975-76, the initial hike would increase state aid from the current $55 million to $70 million

Barnett said the Legislature would "ignore" the voice of the people if it increases state aid after the November referendum vote throwing out a 1974 bill mandating a massive increase in state assistance

"I respect the people's decision," he said

Duis argued that the current proposal is different than the 1974 bill, both in size and scope

Last November's vote was influenced by "the massive misinformation program" which opponents used to mislead the electorate, Sen Jerome Warner of Waverly said

"Nebraska is the last stronghold for a regressive type of financing" for the schools, Sen Frank Lewis of Bellevue contended

Increased state aid would reduce the inequity of the school financing program which now finds local school property tax levies ranging from nearly zero to 100 mills, and per pupil assessed valuations from $3,500 to $100 000, Lewis said

If school boards are forced to "cut programs" because of inadequate financial support, Koch argued, that will "diminish educational opportunities" for school children

Sen James Dickinson of Millard said it is improper for the Legislature to allow last November's vote to dictate its action

If other laws — including an increase in funding for aid to dependent children or state salary hikes — had been placed on the ballot, they would also have been repealed, he said

Senators must "face our own responsibility," Dickinson said

After Barnett's kill motion failed, Sen John Cavanaugh III of Omaha attempted in vain to hold LB368 at its second stage floor position But his motion fell on a 21-21 count

Should LB368 ultimately pass without its appropriations rider, LB368A, it would be ineffective In any event, it faces a gubernatorial veto, and would need to find 30 supporting votes to survive that blow

Sen Harold Simpson and Barnett were the only two Lancaster County senators voting to kill LB368

Corporate Farm Bill Goes To Floor

The Legislature's Agriculture Committee sent a corporate farm reporting bill to the floor Wednesday, but it avoided any prohibition against land ownership by corporations

The bill, an amended form of Sen Jules Burbach s LB203 requires corporations involved in agriculture to file annual reports with the secretary of state

Earlier drafts of corporate farm bills would have prohibited large corporations from owning agricultural land

The information required by the bill includes the acreage and location of the corporation's land, names and addresses of officers and large shareholders, and the extent of foreign involvement in the corporation

The forms provided by the secretary of state would also ask the per cent of the corporation owned by the persons farming the land and their relatives

There is a maximum fine of $1,000 for failing to comply with the act

Sen Loran Schmit, chairman of the committeee, said others could attempt to add floor amendment to call for stricter control of corporatons

Schmit said he expected Burbach, who is the legislature's speaker, to schedule the bill for floor debate soon

Sen. George Delays Action On Soybean Program Bill

Second-round approval of a bill to set up a program to promote soybeans was delayed Wednesday after Blair Sen Walter George moved to kill the bill

Legislative rules require that George's motion be laid over for one day

The motion came after senators rejected a motion to table the bill, LB74

George said action on the bill should be delayed because Sen Jerome Warner, who was not present, would like to offer an amendment to the bill

Springfield Sen Orval Keyes, who has also proposed an amendment, was also absent

The Legislature approved an amendment offered by Sen Richard Maresh, sponsor of the bill to require that no more than four of the seven members of the proposed Soybean Development Utilization and Marketing Committee be of the same political party

Senators also approved a Maresh amendment to lower from $50 to $30 the daily compensation for members of the committee

Mahoney Asks Funds For Metro Tech Campus

Sen Eugene Mahoney of Omaha Wednesday asked the Legislature's Appropriations Committee to approve funding for acquisition of a South Omaha campus for the Metropolitan Technical Community College

The proposal, which will be offered to the committee by Sen Glenn Goodrich of Omaha, would require $1 6 million to acquire a site at the stockyards over a two-year period

Some $920,000, which was appropriated by the 1974 Legislature for a state office building in Omaha, would be diverted to the Metropolitan project

A $300,000 site acquisition appropriation already approved for the school for this fiscal year would then be combined with a $449,000 appropriation in fiscal 1976-77 to complete funding for the plan

Some $40,000 would be retained for planning for the proposed new state office building

The South Omaha site has become "a depressed area" because of the closure of packing plants, Mahoney said, and could be used to provide Omaha students with industrial training

The land is now owned by the Omaha Industrial Foundation and private individuals, Mahoney said

Sen Harold Simpson of Lincoln wondered how Omaha priorities "change so fast "

Last year, he said, he remembers "how hard Omaha fought for funding for the office building

Now, he said, Omaha senators suggest "stealing that money" from the state office building project for the community college

The committee continued its action approving life safety maintenance and preservation of property improvements at state facilities

Decisions on new capital construction proposals were deferred until Thursday

Legislative rules require that George's motion be laid over for one day.

The motion came after senators rejected a motion to table the bill, LB74.

George said action on the bill should be delayed because Sen. Jerome Warner, who was not present, would like to offer an amendment to the bill.

Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes, who has also proposed an amendment, was also absent.

The Legislature approved an amendment offered by Sen. Richard Maresh, sponsor of the bill, to require that no more than four of the seven members of the proposed Soybean Development, Utilization and Marketing Committee be of the same political party.

Senators also approved a Maresh amendment to lower from $50 to $30 the daily compensation for members of the committee.

Mahoney Asks Funds For Metro Tech Campus

Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha Wednesday asked the Legislature's Appropriations Committee to approve funding for acquisition of a South Omaha campus for the Metropolitan Technical Community College.

The proposal, which will be offered to the committee by Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha, would require $1.6 million to acquire a site at the stockyards over a two-year period.

Some $920,000, which was appropriated by the 1974 Legislature for a state office building in Omaha, would be diverted to the Metropolitan project.

A $300,000 site acquisition appropriation already approved for the school for this fiscal year would then be combined with a $449,000 appropriation in fiscal 1976-77 to complete funding for the plan.

Some $40,000 would be retained for planning for the proposed new state office building.

The South Omaha site has become "a depressed area" because of the closure of packing plants, Mahoney said, and could be used to provide Omaha students with industrial training.

The land is now owned by the Omaha Industrial Foundation and private individuals, Mahoney said.

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln wondered how Omaha priorities "change so fast."

Last year, he said, he remembers "how hard Omaha fought for funding for the office building."

Now, he said, Omaha senators suggest "stealing that money" from the state office building project for the community college.

The committee continued its action approving life safety, maintenance and preservation of property improvements at state facilities.

Decisions on new capital construction proposals were deferred until Thursday.

Economist Has Plan To Slow 'Roller Coaster'

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The U.S. government was urged Wednesday to slow down the roller coaster of inflation and unemployment. The American people want to get off.

Speaking to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln audience, a Maryland economist presented his plan to do just that.

Dr. Melville Ulmer pointed out that unemployment is currently "public enemy No. 1." But not too long ago, inflation was the villain.

It's either one or the other, he said, noting that the pattern is predictable and repetitive — that of a roller coaster taking dangerously steeper dips and climbs at every turn.

Over the years, "we've developed this political-business cycle and keep moving back and forth between the 'twin evils,'" he said. And each time the strings are pulled in the opposite direction, the roller coaster swings a little farther off course.

Dr. Ulmer said the public realizes the government can and does manipulate the economy by raising or lowering interest rates, raising or lower taxes and increasing or reducing government spending.

"The public is convinced now there's something wrong with what we're doing," he said.

Dr. Ulmer's solution to the inflation-unemployment dilemma involves applying an even heavier hand on the economic strings than the government has in the past.

First of all, he said, the government should dampen the economy and slow down the rate of inflation, even though unemployment in the private sector increases to 10-12%.

Then, when inflation hits or nears zero, there must be some controls to stop unjustifiable increases in prices and wages, he said. At this point, Ulmer would invoke temporary price and wage controls, but with the warning these temporary controls would become permanent if any powerful groups or big businesses "get out of line" and are "obviously going to exploit the public."

Next, to solve the unemployment problem, Dr. Ulmer suggests putting three million of the unskilled and semi-skilled workers in government jobs — such as cleaning up the environment, caring for aged and mentally retarded or expanding recreational areas.

He estimates this employment plan would cost the government as much as $12,000 per person or $36 billion a year. But on the other hand, he figures the government could save $24 billion annually on welfare, unemployment benefits, housing subsidies for the poor, food stamps, Manpower training programs, etc.

The net cost of the employment program, he said, would be around $12 billion. But that $12 billion becomes inflationary only when spent, he pointed out.

To offset increases in spending, Dr. Ulmer's plan includes a provision for a 4% across-the-board tax increase.

Admittedly, Ulmer doubts that President Ford will adopt his program tomorrow. However, he said, several members of Congress have expressed interest in his proposal.

Dr. Ulmer said he realizes most Americans have little or no faith in wage and price controls, but he said he thinks controls could work if applied the right way at the right time.

In the past, "they've been invoked when they couldn't possibly work," he said, "like when prices are skyrocketing." During World War II, however, "controls did a miraculous job of keeping prices in line."

Parks Commission, Union Hit Snag On Employe List

Contract negotiations between the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and a labor group have hit problems before talks can even get started.

Roger Schulz, executive secretary for the Nebraska Association of Public Employes (NAPE), said Wednesday Game and Parks Director Willard Barbee so far has not responded to requests for a mailing list of employes in the bargaining unit.

NAPE recently won the right to be the exclusive bargaining agent for 248 nonsupervisory employes of the Game and Parks Commission through an election.

Schulz said NAPE wants to begin negotiations; however, he said members of the bargaining unit must be polled first on what types of improvements they want.

He said 160 people in the unit are NAPE members so contacting them is no problem. However, he said NAPE must also poll nonmembers whose addresses NAPE does not have.

Schulz said he has written Barbee giving him until April 29 to supply the mailing list, or else NAPE will begin bargaining without the list.

"They just haven't responded to our requests," Schulz said.

If any problems result from the fact NAPE could not contact all members of the bargaining unit, he said NAPE will hold the commission administration responsible.

Schulz said Game and Parks administration is relying on an attorney general's opinion which says the information is privileged. However, that opinion was subsequently amended.

Special Ed Law Draft Completed, Awaits Approval

The State Department of Education completed the final draft of the rules to implement Nebraska's special education law, and delivered it Wednesday to the state attorney general and the governor, according to Education Commissioner Anne Campbell.

The set of rules, to operate schools' programs for handicapped children under LB403, becomes effective if the attorney general approves and the governor signs it.

The rules were approved last week by the State Board of Education, in a special meeting following a public hearing.

'Pickle Machines' Seized, But Are They Illegal?

Omaha (AP) — Are "pickle machines" legal in Nebraska, or are they illegal — the question is now up to the courts.

Omaha police Tuesday night seized two "gambling" machines in a southside auditorium, and booked the manager of bingo game there on suspicion of providing gambling facilities and possession of a gambling device.

For 25-cents, the machines dispense printed cards known as "pickles" or "breakopens." Each card has five pictures covered by pull tabs.

The purchaser of a card has five chances of winning cash prizes, depending on what picture is revealed when the tab is pulled. The prizes are paid by the house.

The picture combinations are much like those on a slot machine, but because the machines do not pay money themselves, police had to check legal counsel to find out if they were illegal before moving in.

Arrested was Leonard E. DePorte, 42. He told police the pickle machines had State of Nebraska occupation tax stamps, and that because of the stamps they were apparently approved by the state.

Exon To Ask Governors Help In R. I. Case

Gov. J. J. Exon said Wednesday he plans to ask the governors of the 13 states served by the Rock Island Railroad to join efforts in getting directly involved in bankruptcy proceedings

Exon said he had planned, as a result of a meeting Tuesday, to bring the matter up during the Democratic governors meeting in Minneapolis. That meeting was scheduled to begin Wednesday but was cancelled for lack of a quorum

However, the governor said, he would go ahead with his plans.

Exon said he will be asking the 13 states to get together and select one person to represent them in Bankruptcy Court proceedints in Chicago.

In addition, he said he would "continue to provide any other assistance I can to help the railroad and its employes."

The Tuesday meeting in the governor's office involved representatives of Rock Island employes, the AFL-CIO and others.

Exon said he's particularly interested in getting directly involved in the Rock Island matter because the line "primarily serves the agricultural sector of the 13 states and the line is vitally needed to meet or overall transportation needs

CONGENITAL DEAFNESS

Do you know that congenital deafness is a common disease with an incidence of approximately one congenitally deaf child per thousand live births? The high incidence of congenital deafness presents a problem not only to the individual, but to the entire community.

Analyses of the causes of congenital deafness in several communities in different countries have resulted in similar findings, i.e., that there are two major causes. Approximately half is acquired as a result of Rh incompatibility, infection with rubella during embryonic life, ototoxic drugs, prematurity, injury and various diseases. The other half because of specific genetically carried diseases.

Economist Has Plan To Slow 'Roller Coaster'

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The U.S. government was urged Wednesday to slow down the roller coaster of inflation and unemployment. The American people want to get off.

Speaking to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln audience, a Maryland economist presented his plan to do just that.

Dr. Melville Ulmer pointed out that unemployment is currently "public enemy No. 1." But not too long ago, inflation was the villain.

Omaha (AP) — Are "pickle machines" legal in Nebraska, or are they illegal — the question is now up to the courts.

Omaha police Tuesday night seized two "gambling" machines in a southside auditorium, and booked the manager of bingo game there on suspicion of providing gambling facilities and possession of a gambling device.

For 25-cents, the machines dispense printed cards known as "pickles" or "breakopens." Each card has five pictures covered by pull tabs.

The purchaser of a card has five chances of winning cash prizes, depending on what picture is revealed when the tab is pulled. The prizes are paid by the house.

The picture combinations are much like those on a slot machine, but because the machines do not pay money themselves, police had to check legal counsel to find out if they were illegal before moving in.

Arrested was Leonard E. DePorte, 42. He told police the pickle machines had State of Nebraska occupation tax stamps, and that because of the stamps they were apparently approved by the state.

Exon To Ask Governors Help In R. I. Case

Gov. J. J. Exon said Wednesday he plans to ask the governors of the 13 states served by the Rock Island Railroad to join efforts in getting directly involved in bankruptcy proceedings.

Exon said he had planned, as a result of a meeting Tuesday, to bring the matter up during the Democratic governors meeting in Minneapolis. That meeting was scheduled to begin Wednesday but was cancelled for lack of a quorum.

However, the governor said, he would go ahead with his plans.

Exon said he will be asking the 13 states to get together and select one person to represent them in Bankruptcy Court proceedints in Chicago.

In addition, he said he would "continue to provide any other assistance I can to help the railroad and its employes."

The Tuesday meeting in the governor's office involved representatives of Rock Island employes, the AFL-CIO and others.

Exon said he's particularly interested in getting directly involved in the Rock Island matter because the line "primarily serves the agricultural sector of the 13 states and the line is vitally needed to meet or overall transportation needs.

CONGENITAL DEAFNESS

Do you know that congenital deafness is a common disease with an incidence of approximately one congenitally deaf child per thousand live births? The high incidence of congenital deafness presents a problem not only to the individual, but to the entire community.

Analyses of the causes of congenital deafness in several communities in different countries have resulted in similar findings, i.e., that there are two major causes. Approximately half is acquired as a result of Rh incompatibility, infection with rubella during embryonic life, ototoxic drugs, prematurity, injury and various diseases. The other half because of specific genetically carried diseases.

For City Council . . .

Mrs. Rogge Only Woman Candidate

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A four-year concern about the risks she sees in nuclear power plants led Mary Rogge into the Lincoln City Council race.

After Mrs. Rogge fought in behalf of People United For Responsible Energy (PURE), people kept asking her, "When are you going to run for office?"

She soon became the only woman to seek a City Council spot this year.

Raised on a farm near Pilger, Mrs. Rogge moved to Lincoln in 1960, and graduated from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln with a degree in pharmacy in 1965. She was one of seven women in a pharmacy class of about 35.

In the primary election she finished eighth in a field of 15. Only the eight top finishers are on the ballot for the general election May 6, and four of those will be elected.

Mrs. Rogge's first major involvement in government started about four months ago when, as spokesperson for PURE, she helped organize testimony in support of a Unicameral bill delaying construction of more nuclear plants until their safety and economics can be proven.

Mrs. Rogge reels off her worries about nuclear power plants — the storage of contaminating waste products for 250,000 years, the possible sabotage or theft of hot fuel rods — with the same proficiency that she fills prescriptions in her part-time job at Bradfield Drugs.

Mrs. Rogge runs a one-woman campaign. She writes her own press releases, figures out her own campaign expenditure reports, and in her spare times bones up on city issues.

In the past few weeks she has plowed through massive reports and studies and now talks with ease about "comprehensive plans, zoning, land use."

Running on a shoe-string budget ($40 contributed, none spent) Mrs. Rogge's campaigning has centered around those groups which invite all the candidates. Like her college speech class experience, Mrs. Rogge found the first few meetings a tense experience. Now she is more relaxed. "The last few times I didn't get nervous at all."

A large land use map under one arm, Mrs. Rogge sat in on part of this week's City Council meeting, paying particular attention to zoning questions. She feels that the council has not been responsive to the objections of single family residence owners who want to preserve their neighborhoods.

Mrs. Rogge's own family — husband Robert, a social studies and English teacher at Mickle Junior High School, and 8-year-old twin sons, Robert and Ronald — share their home with a miniature Schnauzer and three cats. The boys' pony lives on their grandmother's farm.

Mrs. Rogge is chairman of the board of trustees for the Humane Society.

She relaxes with gardening and is also active in the St. Andrew's Lutheran Church as a Bethal teacher (Bible study class).

Election Report

For School Board . . .

Sandberg On Ballot Because Of Children

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

When Oscar Sandberg's daughter Kim ran for lieutenant governor in a school mock election, her campaign slogan urged votes for "the short stuff with big ideas."

Oscar Sandberg

The 11-year-old's study of government "was a very living experience for the kids," Sandberg said, because at 5-feet-8, he was simultaneously running for a seat on the Lincoln Board of Education.

The Ashland native and University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate said he's on the May 6 general election ballot "because of the kids," including his own. He and his wife Judy also have two sons, Tim, 5, and Todd, 3.

Sandberg, 37, of 2453 Sewell, stressed that the school board must examine better communication, local input and board accountability in decision-making, giving teachers time to teach and improving principals' effectiveness.

A stockbroker, Sandberg said the board must "explain to people, better, the things that they're doing. Increased public confidence would lead Lincolnites to identify problem areas more readily, he said.

The board "ought to look at" the possibility of "one or two meetings a year with no agenda," to allow parents and others to "air their views."

Lincoln's schools are good, Sandberg said. As a board member, he would emphasize that the atmosphere in a school that shapes teachers' and students' attitudes is directly a result of the principal and administrators.

Teachers, parents and students must "know the boundaries" so they can "work without stress" where discipline prevails and due process is guaranteed. Because teachers are forced "to do things that other people can do," and the schools" must use our people as well as we can," he suggested inviting parents to assist them. "They'd be willing," he predicted.

Sandberg said he views a four-year board term with "open-mindedness." Quality programs must be maintained, he said, and since he has "no preconceived ideas" about education, "I think that I can ask some questions that maybe others wouldn't.

The schools must emphasize teachers instead of buildings, and buildings must be kept "where the kids are," Sandberg said. If analysis shows changes or new buildings are needed, he said parent and public participation in decision-making is a must, to retain confidence in the board and happiness with the system.

J. Beardsley Held For Trial In Abductions

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — James E. Beardsley of Lincoln, Neb., has been ordered held for trial in Buchanan County Circuit Court on two charges of kidnaping.

Beardsley, 22, who is charged in the abduction Jan. 31 of two women from a St. Joseph bus station, appeared before the county magistrate Tuesday. His bond was set at $15,500 and he was scheduled for arraignment May 5 in circuit court.

Beardsley's preliminary hearing on charges of attempted jail break and felonious assault was set for May 16.

Bicentennial Unit Grants $10,483 For Two Projects

Two projects received a total of $10,483 in matching funds from the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission (NARBC) Wednesday at the conclusion of the April meeting.

The projects of the Ft. Robinson Centennial Commission received a total of $5,000 in matching funds, including $4,000 for an equestrian recreation facility, $500 for the purchase of films of the contributions of the 9th and 10th Cavalry to Ft. Robinson and $500 for an Indian dance shade.

A Nebraska phot documentary project to be carried out by Robert Starck and Lynn Dance of Lincoln received approval of $5,483 in matching funds. The photographers will document the people, environment and the way of life in Nebraska during the Bicentennial years of 1975-76. As soon as the photos have been completed, an exhibition will be held at Sheldon Gallery with additional shows scheduled throughout the state.

In other action the NARBC endorsed:

— The Junior Committees of Correspondence sponsored by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA), the U.S. Postal Service and the National Association of Elementary School Principals. The JCC projects urge students to write other students in ways similar to the original committees started over 200 years ago in the colonies.

— The Bicentennial project of the American Mothers Committee which will conduct an 18-month survey of the role of women and mothers during the past 200 years. Mrs. Hazel Stebbins of Lincoln serves as the Chairman of the Nebraska American Mothers Bicentennial Committee.

— The American Issues Forum national Bicentennial program to conduct meetings across the state. The project is coordinated by the National Endowment of the Humanities and the Adult Education Association.

— "A 200th Anniversary Party," a puppet production for the Bicentennial.

— A Great Plains Black Museum in Omaha.

— Building a Seward County Historical Society Museum.

— A "Civilization of the First Plainsmen" mural at the Hamilton County Historical Society Museum.

The NARBC also approved of special Bicentennial music offered by KLIN radio in Lincoln as background music to several slide-tape programs offered by the NARBC.

The next meeting of the NARBC will be May 16 at 10 a.m.

College Sex Habits Freer

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

College students of the 70's have taken to heart the "Make Love Not War ' slogan of their protesting predecessors of the late 60's, says a University of Nebraska-Lincoln sociology professor

While UNL students are less prone to take part in a demonstration these days, they are freer in expressing themselves sexually, Dr Joseph Julian, associate professor, found during a five-year survey of students sexual behaviors

A sexual reformation is taking place today, he says And it has not bypassed Lincoln

Old Values Modified

The change has not been of revolutionary proportions, however Old values and attitudes have been modified, not replaced, says the 40-year-old professor

And the college campus is the sexual liberator, he says

"The majority of people who come here as freshmen are virgins," Julian says, based on his findings in the survey of UNL' sociology students "But the overwhelming majority lose their virginity ' in a year's time

In the last five years, his research shows, 60-70% of UNL's incoming freshmen were virgins By the time students reach their senior years, only 15-20% had abstained from sexual intercourse

Findings Comparable

That jibes with the preliminary findings of a similar study of UNL students in human sexuality classes, says Dr James Cole of the psychology department

The old double standard just may be disappearing, Cole says Women's attitudes towards sex — and their sexual behavior — are changing at a faster pace than men's, he says Thus, attitudinal and behavioral differences between the sexes are disappearing" as women s sexual attitudes and manners are ' converging" towards those of men

Dr Jacqueline Voss found that female students are more liberal in their thinking about sex — at least by their senior years — than are their male counterparts

She studied sexual attitudes of freshmen in the UNL Colleges of Home Economics and Agriculture then followed up by asking the same students the same questions during their senior years

Marked Change

As freshmen 59% of the female students interviewed by Dr Voss said that only in marriage can sex be meaningful by their senior years only 23% still agreed with the statement Meanwhile the percentage of males agreeing shifted from 43 to 38

In the four years the female students did another about-face in their opinions regarding premarital sexual relations, Dr Voss found

Less than one fourth of the female freshmen said that premarital sexual relations are acceptable when two people of the opposite sex are committed to one another in an affectionate relationship Four years later that number jumped to 51% Males saying that was okay declined from 47% to 34% over the four-year period Dr Voss found

Likewise Julian s survey found that attitudes were liberalized by the time students reached their senior years

The 1974 fall installment of his survey found that 69% of the students said they had engaged in sexual intercourse That includes 56% of the women and 85% of the males

Not surprisingly he says only 1% of those who said they had had sexual intercourse were freshmen

Not Just Anyone

But students are discriminating when it comes to sexual partners Julian says Of the students who said they had engaged in sexual intercourse 45% reported having only one or two different partners Some however claimed eight or more partners

Promiscuity isn t running rampant among college students Julian concludes

Students today are clearly not bound by marriage as a prerequisite for sexual behavior Cole says

Of the students surveyed by Julian 89% both men and women, said that the female did not risk losing the respect of the male she was to subsequently marry if she engaged in premarital sexual intercourse with him

'Engagement A License'

In the past five years that statistic has increased steadily from 65-70% Julian says Now engagement is in a sense, a license to engage in sexual practice

The marriage rite ' is a notion people still adhere to, Julian says More than three-fourths of the students surveyed felt it was possible for a woman to be satisfied with one mate for her entire life

But female students ideas concerning the separation of love and sex are becoming more liberal, he says Asked whether it was permissible for a woman to have sexual intercourse with someone she doesn t love 45% of the female respondents answered positively 70% of the males thought so too

The survey results can t be taken as Gospel Julian warns College kids kids in general are terrific talkers he says There is a lot of show and a little go

However if the students surveyed did lie the statistics may tend to merge since men tell more than they do and women do more than they tell, Julian says

Husband Sets Alarm Half Hour Early

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful professor. I also work. About three times a week he arises early to work on a special project or to attend an early faculty meeting, so he sets the alarm for 30 minutes earlier than he really has to get up. When the alarm goes off, it awakens both of us. He then sets it for 30 minutes later, rolls over and dozes until the alarm goes off again.

Meanwhile, I am being robbed of 30 minutes of sleep.

I think he should be a big enough boy to set the alarm once for the time he has to get up.

Is there a solution? Please don't suggest separate bedrooms because I'd rather lose sleep than lose HIM.

Sign this, "For whom the bell does NOT toll" or

"TICKED OFF"

DEAR TICKED: Have you asked him to please knock off the two-alarm routine? If not, do. If he refuses, insist on a compromise whereby he sets the alarm twice every other time.

DEAR ABBY: That letter about the wife who didn't like her husband's mustache brought back memories.

Years ago, I had the same problem. I waited patiently for my husband to shave off a big walrus mustache he had grown "just to see how it looked."

Finally, one day when he was asleep on the couch, I got a scissors and nipped off one side of it! He awakened with a start, and said, "What's coming off here?"

I sweetly said, "Your mustache, dear."

He laughed and kissed me. And he never grew another mustache again.

AN 85-YEAR-OLD WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: You're lucky your husband was so good-natured. I'll bet some wives have ended up in the divorce court for less.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice about telling later-comers to come an hour ahead of the time you really want them will not work. I know. I used to be anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour late every time, and no amount of kidding or criticism would change me.

One Christmas Eve some close friends (I'll call them the "Greens") invited me to drive with them to their parents' lovely country home. I was to be at the Greens' at 6 p.m. "Please, this time, don't be late," they pleaded. "It's a long drive, and we want to leave at 6 p.m. sharp!"

Of course I was late, but as I walked up their front stairs, I looked at my watch and saw it was only 6:15 — which was "early" for me. But the house was dark and there was a note on their front door: "Sorry, Pal. We waited for you until 6:05."

I was furious. But I will say that I am grateful to the Greens for teaching me a lesson I will never forget.

That was the last time I was ever late.

ON TIME

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet a lot of people got a good laugh out of reading about the 37-year-old mama who went to stay at her daughter's home while daughter was having a baby, and ended up falling in love (and into bed) with her son-in-law. In fact, I'm sure some people thought it was a phony letter.

I didn't laugh, and I didn't think it was phony because that is exactly what happened to me! Fourteen years ago, my own mother came to stay at my home while I went to the hospital to have my second baby. Yes, my husband and my mother "fell in love," and mom left my father and two other children to trek across the country with her "true love" — my husband!

I divorced my husband and have since remarried. My brother and sister are now grown with families of their own.

We have never forgiven our mother for what she did. She no longer writes or calls any of us because she knows that we want nothing to do with her. She chose her path, and now she must walk on it.

STRANGE COINCIDENCE

DEAR STRANGE: The coincidence is even stranger than you think. Others wrote to say that when mama was sent for to keep the home fires burning, the marriage went up in smoke.

Sand Kept Her Slimming

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A 50-pound bag of sand helped Mrs. Anne Viggiani lose 50 pounds of weight.

She reduced from 191 pounds to 141 pounds during a nine-month period as a member of the Diet Workshop, a group weight-control program. At every weigh-in, she transferred the amount she lost from the 50-pound bag into an empty one until the original bag was empty.

"I wanted something that would show me how much I lost and how much more I had to lose," says Mrs. Viggiani, a high school English teacher. "When you're dieting, you need all the help you can get."

The sand is still in her laundry room as a constant reminder of the weight she no longer has to carry around.

"Originally I thought of using flour or sugar but I knew I'd want to keep the 50-pound reminder so I used sand," she says.

Opening lead - two of hearts.

Yesterday we discussed this deal from a team match where, at the first table, East doubled six spades (on a different bidding sequence) in order to coax a heart lead from West. Unfortunately, in attempting to give East a ruff, West chose a diamond lead and declarer made seven for a score of 1,860 points.

At the second table, the bidding went as shown and West was able to find the killing heart lead. He had learned much more, in the course of the bidding, about the composition of the North-South hands, and he put this information to good use.

He realized from South's four heart bid and North's leap to six that the enemy had eight hearts and that East was therefore void of the suit.

Accordingly, West led a heart against six spades doubled, which East ruffed — as expected. East had no trouble finding the low club return, ruffed by West, and West played another heart, ruffed by East. Then came another club and another heart, thus bringing East-West the first five tricks and South found himself unexpectedly going down 1,100 points due to the crossruff.

So the outcome was that the successful team scored 1,860 points at the first table and 1,100 at the second table, hammering their unfortunate opponents to the tune of 2,960 points on one deal.

Had the West player at the first table been sufficiently inspired to lead a heart instead of a diamond, the two 1,100-point penalties would have cancelled each other and the deal would have been a washout.

It all goes to show the high importance of the opening lead in bridge.

Tahitians Like To Drink Beer

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Tahitians, according to officials, boast of being the biggest beer drinkers per capita on earth. Brewing is the largest business in the islands after tourism.

Two breweries operate around the clock to quench the thirsts of the Pacific island population of only 120,000. One of the two breweries makes a strong beer especially for the French military forces in the Polynesian archipelago and for export to Vietnam.

Because ingredients for the beer come from great distances it costs from 75 cents for a 12-ounce bottle in a store to $1.25 in a bar.

A group of beer wholesalers from the United States is coming to Papeete to try to find the "secret" of Tahitian brew.

East had no trouble finding the low club return, ruffed by West, and West played another heart, ruffed by East. Then came another club and another heart, thus bringing East-West the first five tricks and South found himself unexpectedly going down 1,100 points due to the crossruff.

So the outcome was that the successful team scored 1,860 points at the first table and 1,100 at the second table, hammering their unfortunate opponents to the tune of 2,960 points on one deal.

Had the West player at the first table been sufficiently inspired to lead a heart instead of a diamond, the two 1,100-point penalties would have cancelled each other and the deal would have been a washout.

It all goes to show the high importance of the opening lead in bridge.

Tahitians Like To Drink Beer

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Tahitians, according to officials, boast of being the biggest beer drinkers per capita on earth. Brewing is the largest business in the islands after tourism.

Two breweries operate around the clock to quench the thirsts of the Pacific island population of only 120,000. One of the two breweries makes a strong beer especially for the French military forces in the Polynesian archipelago and for export to Vietnam.

Because ingredients for the beer come from great distances it costs from 75 cents for a 12-ounce bottle in a store to $1.25 in a bar.

A group of beer wholesalers from the United States is coming to Papeete to try to find the "secret" of Tahitian brew.

Anderson In Prison

Allenwood, Pa (UPI) — Former Baltimore County Executive N Dale Anderson entered the federal prison camp here to begin serving a five-year term for corruption in the Maryland office he inherited from Spiro T Agnew

Life Begins At Forty:

Readers Urged To Check House For Hazards

By JOANNE FARRIS

Did you know that 9,600 deaths last year were due directly to falls occurring in and around the home? That puts falls as a cause of death ahead of fire and burn fatalities An estimated 83 ' of the victims were 65 or older Nonfatal falls which cause injury, however, occur to persons in every age group

Falls happen to people in the house and outside with about the same frequency One of the obvious places is a step or stairs from one level to another

So a good starting place on any ' house check ' for hazards may well start with any steps or stairs Be sure all the treads are solidly anchored and easy to see.

Sometimes with outside stairs it is a good idea to paint a white stripe just at the edge of each step

If the interior steps are carpeted, check to be sure the carpet is snug and not frayed or worn through anywhere that a toe or heel might catch The stair railing should be strong, solid and smooth

Wet floors are an invitation, they say "fall for me!" Wipe up any spill as soon as you spot it Melted ice will leave a little puddle that you may not notice

Bathrooms and kitchens need special attention in this regard

Grease spills require more than a simple wipe-up Often they leave a potentially dangerous residue on the floor until you take time to do a real "clean-up "

Some shoe heels are troublemakers on bare floors. They should be replaced with nonskid lifts And a nonslip floor wax is another useful aid

Small area rugs are pretty, but not at the top or bottom of stairways. And they must be securely anchored or rendered slipproof if they are not to be fall traps This applies emphatically to bathroom rugs, too

Bathtubs are fall traps, but it is simple to make them safer First, either use a nonskid rubber mat in the tub at all times or use one of the anti-skid decorative stick-ons that most hardware stores sell.

If there are no hand-holds around your tub, install one or two where common sense indicates they will be most useful.

As the weather is moderating and we are beginning to think about working and playing out of doors, it's time to check the outside areas Beware of walking on a dew-wet lawn; it's slippery And use double caution if your shoes are wet and you are going to walk on smooth concrete, every now and then you'll feel as if you've hit a patch of ice

Check the porch or patio floor, as well as the garage floor to be sure they are clean And keep all doorways clear Tools and equipment should be kept in safe storage places, for more than one reason

Check out your ladders for structural soundness A step-stool is an important kitchen accessory and it should be light enough to be easy to carry to where it's needed, sturdy enough to bear your weight, and with rubber feet to make it slip-proof

Never attempt to over-reach from either a step-stool or a ladder Move the ladder or stool even if it does take longer Be safe, don t be a fall-guy

Gardening 1975: New Directions For City-Dwellers

Up, in or away

For the city gardener with little or no space in his yard, those are the directions

Think up — raise pole beans, train your tomatoes to climb

Think in — turn a room or a windowsill into an indoor garden

Think away — the City of Lincoln offers some vacant land to gardeners, some Lincoln employers provide garden space for employes

The Wall Street Journal estimates that 25 million Americans will grow some of their own food this year Some of them are bound to be Nebraska city-dwellers

The person who wants to get maximum produce from a garden plot of minimal size should avoid growing such goodies as cucumbers and watermelons.

They both are vine crops that take lots of space although cucumbers can be trained to climb a handy fence

Crop succession also is a boon for the small-plot gardener For instance after you harvest your cool-weather crops (radishes, lettuce) plant that ground to warm-weather vegetables such as beans and peppers

Better Homes and Gardens offers these additional pointers for a small garden plot

- Plant rows close together to grow more vegetables fewer weeds
- Plant high-yield vegetables Snap beans produce a lot for the space they occupy, sweet corn doesn t for instance
- Interplant A fast growing vegetable can be planted with a slow-growing vegetable For example lettuce can be sowed between young cabbage The lettuce will be salad before the cabbage needs the space

There also are gardening options for the apartment-dweller

An extra room or a portion of a room can be used to grow an indoor container garden (You ll need some artificial light) So can a sunny patio Even a windowsill is light enough for some vegetables or herbs

"Minigardens for Vegetables a U S Agriculture Dept bulletin gives a fairly complete rundown on containerization gardening It is available from the Lancaster County Extension Office

Some would-be city gardeners who don't have land may be able to reach outward

The City of Lincoln has some lots available for gardening again this year Most are in the near northeast part of town according to the city property manager s office and no water is furnished

To reserve a space contact the office in Room B-432 in the County-City Building or call 473-6355

You must sign a garden agreement to keep the plot free of weeds

In addition, some Lincoln employers are providing land for garden-minded employes, among them Dorsey Laboratories and Madonna Professional Care Center

Both employers plow disc and fertilize the land and furnish water for the green thumbs Most plots at Dorsey are 30 by 40 feet at Madonna 10 by 60 feet

Both programs are in their second year so some of the less than enthusiastic gardeners have been weeded out

The Public Won't Let Wayne Whitney Retire

By Betty Stevens

"What's retirement?" Wayne Whitney growls pleasantly as he checks his date book to see when and where his three speaking engagements within the next five days are.

He stopped working as horticulturist for the University of Nebraska Extension Division at the beginning of 1975.

"But we're so busy we don't have time to spit," Whitney said.

As a member of the NU Back yard Farmer television show for 22 years, Whitney and his advice on yards and gardens came to belong to the public.

And the public doesn't retire, so they just keep calling for advice. "Sometime six or seven calls an hour," Whitney's wife Lucille said.

A caller from Crete reported the blue spruce trees he had asked about earlier were doing just fine but how about some tough ground cover.

"Try KY-31 Fescue," Whitney said. "It's a rough low maintenance lawn."

A frequent question of callers is how to fertilize a tree that's just being planted.

"Never fertilize the first year. Let the roots get established first," Whitney advises.

One night two elderly men who were having an argument about growing things got Whitney out of bed at 11 p.m. to settle it.

The Whitneys live just south of Bryan Memorial Hospital in a house with two lots where they have been for the past 27 years.

Earlier this spring they planted, with a tweezers, tomato, pepper, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, salvia, petunias, marigolds and assorted other seeds.

As they became seedlings, each plant was set into a flat or separate planter.

How many?

At least millions, Lucille said.

Almost ready for gardens as soon as the ground is dry enough to work, the plants fill a small greenhouse and a cold frame five feet wide and 24 foot long.

"I think we overextended ourselves," Lucille said.

"Just a little moonlighting" Whitney said.

When Whitney isn't answering the telephone, or speaking, or moonlighting, he's teaching. A class in home horticulture at the Milford Campus Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College is being held for 10 weeks. Another, on Tuesday nights at the F Street City Recreation Center, will continue for six weeks.

"You don't plant a garden by the calendar," he said. "You plant it by soil condition and temperature."

Last fall he deep raked and aerated his lawn. Aerating a lawn, Whitney said, is a process of picking up plugs of soil at close interval. That permits easier access of fertilizer and water. It also breaks down the accumulation of duff.

Four times each day on KLIN radio you can hear Whitney giving one-minute gardening tips. He also does a 10 minute show on the station at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Whitney started into horticulture the year before he started to college in 1926.

He's been in it ever since and besides his stint on the Backyard Farmer, considers one of the highlights of his life as a gardener the year they planted 418 tomato plants.

They harvested over two tons of tomatoes and sold them for 30¢ per pound.

They were perfect, Whitney said. And the way you raise tomatoes that don't have any splits is to have a consistent moisture content in the ground they are growing in.

The Whitneys' children are Dick, Houston, Tex., and Diana Reiser, Kansas City. They have four grandchildren.

They keep the water in the bird bath at 55 degrees in the winter so they have a lot of feathered visitors on their patio shaded with a sugar maple and a quaking aspen.

Lucille, a home economics teacher when they were first married, now prefers yard and garden work.

"I've had a good teacher," she said.

The Show Must Go On

The Backyard Farmer lives—even without Wayne Whitney.

Longtime host Whitney retired this year from the Nebraska Educational Television Network production, but the show must go on.

It is aired twice a week on Channel 12: Mondays from 9 to 10 p.m. for call-in questions and Tuesdays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. for write-in questions.

Whitney was replaced by three men who take turns running the show. Brent Hoadley is a University of Nebraska Extension horticulturalist, Clark Jensen is Douglas County agent and Emery Nelson is Lancaster County extension agent.

No Garden This Year For Fords

Washington (AP) — Gerald and Betty Ford of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave won't be among the estimated six million Americans following the President's suggestion to try home vegetable gardening this year.

It's not that the President and First Lady can't afford the tools and seeds or don't have the land available.

"We talked about it a lot and were going to, but the final decision was never made. Now they say it's too late" to prepare the plot, a press aide to Mrs. Ford said.

According to one garden plan, said to have been chosen by the Fords, a plot on the South Lawn 15 feet wide and 25 feet long would have featured cucumbers, tomatoes, zucchini, peppers, snap beans, cabbage, chard, beets, carrots, spinach and radishes.

Washington area gardeners have already put most of those popular vegetables in the ground.

Nurseries Report Sales of Seed Up; Supplies Adequate

By Jane Menninga

Though most of President Ford's program to "whip inflation now" has lost America's attention, his "lower food prices — grow more' " message still bears the winning button.

Lincoln garden seed suppliers are sure 1975 will bring another bumper crop of home-grown vegetables.

In spite of the slow arrival of spring, increased sales are still a prime indication of green thumb enthusiasm.

Bob Campbell, president of Campbell's Nurseries and Garden Center, 2342 So. 40th St., said the cash register has rung up an estimated 25% increase in seed sales compared to last year.

At Earl May Garden Center, 5501 So. 48th St., manager Gary Ladman says he already has sold 100% of some varieties and is reordering. At the 71st and O Sts. store, Ladman said more seeds were sold the first two days the garden supplies went on sale in mid-January than was moved the whole month of January last year.

Similarly, Bob Berrier, manager of Williams Garden Center, 1742 No. 48th St., estimated sales there jumped 10-20% compared to last year.

Though seed sales have already reached record highs, more than the early bird will catch the worm this year. Unlike 1974, when shortages slowed some gardening efforts, seed companies believe supplies should be adequate this spring.

Local retailers are buying more heavily in anticipation of sales, too. Berrier said he already has ordered 1,000 pounds more seed potatoes than last year. Overall, he boosted his gardening supply rack by 30%.

Campbell reported seed racks at his store have been doubled since last year.

Ladman predicted an eventual short supply of broccoli and onion sets, but otherwise said supplies would be adequate. All retailers agreed certain varieties of popular items — peas, beans, carrots, etc. — might become scarce, but there would always be another variety of the same vegetable on the racks to buy.

Seed prices will not follow the same jump taken in 1974. George Hayes, manager of garden seed department of the Earl May Garden Center home office in Shenandoah, Iowa, seed prices will be 12% higher at most. That would make a 35¢ package of seeds about 5¢ higher than last year.

But even though prices for seeds and all other garden supplies have increased, Campbell says there's still a profit in growing a garden and caring for it properly.

Campbell said, "If a gardener were to raise a good garden and do some canning, he could save 40-50% of the cost of vegetables bought in the store for a year."

Berrier offered another example: "For 35¢, you can buy enough seeds to grow all the tomatoes you can eat. For that same 35¢, you could probably buy one (tomato) at the grocery store."

The advantages of gardening don't stop with economy.

Campbell said you just can't buy the taste of fresh-picked vegetables, new potatoes, vine-ripened tomatoes or fresh peas and beans at the store.

Then there's the therapeutic value. People feel better when they get out and exercise, Campbell said.

And gardening can be a family affair. Some enthusiasts contend the family that sows together grows together.

The Public Won't Let Wayne Whitney Retire

By Betty Stevens

"What's retirement?" Wayne Whitney growls pleasantly as he checks his date book to see when and where his three speaking engagements within the next five days are.

He stopped working as horticulturist for the University of Nebraska Extension Division at the beginning of 1975.

"But we're so busy we don't have time to spit," Whitney said.

As a member of the NU Back yard Farmer television show for 22 years, Whitney and his advice on yards and gardens came to belong to the public.

And the public doesn't retire, so they just keep calling for advice. "Sometime six or seven calls an hour," Whitney's wife Lucille said.

A caller from Crete reported the blue spruce trees he had asked about earlier were doing just fine but how about some tough ground cover.

"Try KY-31 Fescue," Whitney said. "It's a rough low maintenance lawn."

A frequent question of callers is how to fertilize a tree that's just being planted.

"Never fertilize the first year. Let the roots get established first," Whitney advises.

One night two elderly men who were having an argument about growing things got Whitney out of bed at 11 p.m. to settle it.

The Whitneys live just south of Bryan Memorial Hospital in a house with two lots where they have been for the past 27 years.

Earlier this spring they planted, with a tweezers, tomato, pepper, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, salvia, petunias, marigolds and assorted other seeds.

As they became seedlings, each plant was set into a flat or separate planter.

How many?

At least millions, Lucille said.

Almost ready for gardens as soon as the ground is dry enough to work, the plants fill a small greenhouse and a cold frame five feet wide and 24 foot long.

"I think we overextended ourselves," Lucille said.

"Just a little moonlighting" Whitney said.

When Whitney isn't answering the telephone, or speaking, or moonlighting, he's teaching. A class in home horticulture at the Milford Campus Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College is being held for 10 weeks. Another, on Tuesday nights at the F Street City Recreation Center, will continue for six weeks.

"You don't plant a garden by the calendar," he said. "You plant it by soil condition and temperature."

Last fall he deep raked and aerated his lawn. Aerating a lawn, Whitney said, is a process of picking up plugs of soil at close interval. That permits easier access of fertilizer and water. It also breaks down the accumulation of duff.

Four times each day on KLIN radio you can hear Whitney giving one-minute gardening tips. He also does a 10 minute show on the station at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Whitney started into horticulture the year before he started to college in 1926.

He's been in it ever since and besides his stint on the Backyard Farmer, considers one of the highlights of his life as a gardener the year they planted 418 tomato plants.

They harvested over two tons of tomatoes and sold them for 30¢ per pound.

Organic Gardener Keeps Going With Mulch, Compost

By Linda Ulrich

"I used to be a spraying fool . . ."

But, O. A. Moore, originator of that statement, hasn't been one since about 1922.

At 88, he has to be one of the oldest—and best— gardeners around.

"It's so much less work to garden or farm organically and it's less expensive," Moore said. "If we work with nature, nature works with us every inch of the road. But if you fight her, you only lose the battle."

The object of organic gardening is to increase the soil sponge, he explained.

He invites people visiting his home at 3827 So. 52nd, to test his soil by pushing an iron rod in it. The rod sinks quickly, with almost no effort. Moore's carrots don't have any twists in them because there aren't any hard spots for them to twist around.

The soil in this country is down to 2% humus now, he continued. It used to be 5%.

"Everybody says you can't grow things without chemicals. But chemicals are the very thing that's going to starve us to death. It uses up the humus and it doesn't put anything back."

Moore's soil is so porous, it can hold up to a four inch rain with no runoff. He attributes that to his mulch and compost piles.

"A million dollars worth of leaves go to the dump every year," Moore declares.

He hauls leaves for his garbage man and instead of hauling them to the dump, he hauls them to his back yard, where he has a pile 6 feet wide, four feet high and 16 feet long.

Next to that is his compost pile, 4 feet wide, 2 feet high and 16 feet long. What does he put in it? "Everything" is his reply. "And no flies, no odor." When he digs into the pile, he spades up a healthy number of worms "If it wasn't for earthworms and weeds, we'd starve to death."

The carbon-nitrogen ratio is the key to successful mulching, he said. Sawdust, for example, has a ratio of 400 part carbon to one part nitrogen Leaves have about 30 parts carbon to one part nitrogren.

The best mulch is alfalfa hay, which contains about 12 parts carbon to one part nitrogen, he said.

Moore mulches everything but his corn. When his potatoes and beans are about a foot high, he lays down his soaker nose and puts mulch on top.

He cautions against overhead sprinklers because "the city water tests alkaline and blight and spores live in alkaline water. Rain water is high acid and will kill those spores."

In the fall, he recommends sheet composting, which means rotory tilling after the vegetables are taken in and sowing rye or short red clover, thus saving the soil from being bare.

Together the mulch and compost produce the deep soil sponge. "The life of the soil is made by organic matter," Moore said.

Chemicals, on the other hand, produce an incomplete protein in plants. Thus the need for hybrid seed, he stated.

Back to spraying. If you don't spray for bugs, what do you do? White sugar or salt water on cabbage keeps bugs away, Moore said. Besides, he said, "you only have bugs in relation to the poorness of the soil."

Moore says he doesn't have any.

O. A. Moore has been an organic gardener since 1922.

Hate Weeding? Use Mulch

Want to weed and water less this year in your garden? Use mulch around the plants and between the rows. Organic mulch (straw, grass clippings) or compost should be used around the plants. Newspaper, plastic or other similar material makes a good mulch between rows. Weight it down with rocks or soil so it won't blow away

To Freeze, Can or Store Depends on Vegetable, You

By Nancy Hicks

One Lincoln family saved $1,200 last year by freezing and canning produce from their large garden And the family of 10 made an additional $900 by selling vegetables to their neighbors

But preserving your own garden vegetables is not necessarily a savings for all families, according to Esther Wyant, Lancaster County extension home economist.

It depends on the family size, the garden size and whether you already own a freezer, she said.

A homemaker who goes out and buys a pressure cooker to preserve three jars of green beans is not going to save any money, said Mrs. Wyant.

Savings also depends on the knowhow and skill of the homemaker Many vegetables are ruined by improper preserving techniques

Many vegetables, particularly green vegetables, are more apt to retain their flavor, color and texture if frozen rather than canned, Mrs Wyant said.

Freezing is particularly successful with asparagus, peas, greenbeans, corn, broccoli, cauliflower and greens, such as spinach and turnip greens. Pumpkin for future pies also freezes quite well, Mrs. Wyant said.

Beets can be frozen successfully if recommended procedures are carefully followed. Tomatoes and carrots also freeze nicely

Many vegetables can also be canned, though tomatoes, high in acid, are probably the easiest to can, according to Mrs. Wyant.

Low acid vegetables such as carrots, green beans, beets, corn and peas require a pressure canning process, she said.

Whether to freeze or can really depends on personal preference and how much freezer space a family has available, Mrs. Wyant explained

Some vegetables, including carrots, potatoes and onions, can be successfully stored in dark, dry spaces with good ventilation. Potatoes require a cool (35 to 40 degrees) area and commercial products are available to control sprouting of potatoes, Mrs. Wyant pointed out.

Onions should be hung in open mesh bags in dry, ventilated areas such as attics (not basements) Onions grown from sets are much harder to store, warned Mrs Wyant

Whatever preservation process is chosen, the homemaker should carefully follow the freezing and canning procedures Food preservation circulars are available free from the County Extension Office, 5608 So 48th, and will be mailed to individuals who call or write the office

Mrs. Wyant is also planning classes on freezing, canning and perhaps pickling and jellies. Information on these classes is available from the extension office.

Inflation and shortages have not skipped the home canning freezing supplies Costs for packaging materials are higher, and the flats needed for canning will probably be scarce again this year, Mrs. Wyant said.

Though costs may be up, packaging supplies for freezing are not something you use once and throw away, said Mrs Wyant "If people take good care of packaging materials, they will last five to seven years," she said

Grocery stores have been having problems getting flats in, although the whole sets of canning jars, lids and flats are apparently available

Three nationwide manufacturing companies have told Mrs. Wyant they hope to have flats in stores by May, June and July, the peak of the canning season.

But Mrs. Wyant urged homemakers to look for flats every time they shop, "because people are going to buy in quantity when they come in"

The increased interest in gardening is nationwide and "there is still a tremendous demand for products. It will be a while before there will be any surplus," Mrs Wyant predicted

Fruit Trees Have Many Advantages

There is nothing more pleasurable than biting into succulent, juicy fruit picked fresh from your own trees.

The fruit they bear is only a small part of the reward you get from these trees, according to the American Association of Nurserymen They give abuntant, colorful blooms to herald the arrival of spring. They provide cooling shade in the sultry summer months and they help trap dust particles from the air, buffer sound, block our undesirable sights and give off oxygen.

Blooming, fruit bearing trees are extremely important elements in a landscaping plan. Whether planted as a row to define borders, grouped orchard-style, or strategically placed throughout the landscape, they will enhance your garden plan year after year. They will also add value to your home and property, as well as beauty and livability.

Bolens Mulching Mower™ offers a new way to get rid of grass clippings.

Don't have any.

Instead of raking, bagging and hauling clippings, or watching them turn brown on the lawn, get a Bolens 22" Mulching Mower. When it cuts your grass, it also cuts and recuts the clippings into tiny mulch particles that disappear down into your lawn. Too small to contribute to thatch build-up they quickly decompose, re-cycling nitrogen back into your lawn.

So you save time and effort. And save again on fertilizer costs.

Since this mower doesn't throw out clippings, there's no discharge chute. So you mow with greater safety. And trim around trees and borders with both sides of the mower.

Other features include sure-footed front wheel drive. Grip 'n Go™ safety drive control. And your choice of manual or electric start. Also available in 22" and 18" hand-propelled models. Bolens Mulching Mower. A good yard ahead.

He invites people visiting his home at 3827 So. 52nd, to test his soil by pushing an iron rod in it. The rod sinks quickly, with almost no effort. Moore's carrots don't have any twists in them because there aren't any hard spots for them to twist around.

The soil in this country is down to 2% humus now, he continued. It used to be 5%.

"Everybody says you can't grow things without chemicals. But chemicals are the very thing that's going to starve us to death. It uses up the humus and it doesn't put anything back."

Moore's soil is so porous, it can hold up to a four inch rain with no runoff. He attributes that to his mulch and compost piles.

"A million dollars worth of leaves go to the dump every year," Moore declares.

He hauls leaves for his garbage man and instead of hauling them to the dump, he hauls them to his back yard, where he has a pile 6 feet wide, four feet high and 16 feet long.

Next to that is his compost pile, 4 feet wide, 2 feet high and 16 feet long. What does he put in it? "Everything" is his reply. "And no flies, no odor." When he digs into the pile, he spades up a healthy number of worms. "If it wasn't for earthworms and weeds, we'd starve to death."

The carbon-nitrogen ratio is the key to successful mulching, he said. Sawdust, for example, has a ratio of 400 part carbon to one part nitrogen. Leaves have about 30 parts carbon to one part nitrogren.

The best mulch is alfalfa hay, which contains about 12 parts carbon to one part nitrogen, he said.

Moore mulches everything but his corn. When his potatoes and beans are about a foot high, he lays down his soaker nose and puts mulch on top.

He cautions against overhead sprinklers because "the city water tests alkaline and blight and spores live in alkaline water. Rain water is high acid and will kill those spores."

In the fall, he recommends sheet composting, which means rotory tilling after the vegetables are taken in and sowing rye or short red clover, thus saving the soil from being bare.

Together the mulch and compost produce the deep soil sponge. "The life of the soil is made by organic matter," Moore said.

Chemicals, on the other hand, produce an incomplete protein in plants. Thus the need for hybrid seed, he stated.

Back to spraying. If you don't spray for bugs, what do you do? White sugar or salt water on cabbage keeps bugs away, Moore said. Besides, he said, "you only have bugs in relation to the poorness of the soil."

Moore says he doesn't have any.

O. A. Moore has been an organic gardener since 1922.

Hate Weeding? Use Mulch

Want to weed and water less this year in your garden? Use mulch around the plants and between the rows. Organic mulch (straw, grass clippings) or compost should be used around the plants. Newspaper, plastic or other similar material makes a good mulch between rows. Weight it down with rocks or soil so it won't blow away.

To Freeze, Can or Store Depends on Vegetable, You

By Nancy Hicks

One Lincoln family saved $1,200 last year by freezing and canning produce from their large garden. And the family of 10 made an additional $900 by selling vegetables to their neighbors.

But preserving your own garden vegetables is not necessarily a savings for all families, according to Esther Wyant, Lancaster County extension home economist.

It depends on the family size, the garden size and whether you already own a freezer, she said.

A homemaker who goes out and buys a pressure cooker to preserve three jars of green beans is not going to save any money, said Mrs. Wyant.

Savings also depends on the knowhow and skill of the homemaker. Many vegetables are ruined by improper preserving techniques.

Many vegetables, particularly green vegetables, are more apt to retain their flavor, color and texture if frozen rather than canned, Mrs. Wyant said.

Freezing is particularly successful with asparagus, peas, greenbeans, corn, broccoli, cauliflower and greens, such as spinach and turnip greens. Pumpkin for future pies also freezes quite well, Mrs. Wyant said.

Beets can be frozen successfully if recommended procedures are carefully followed. Tomatoes and carrots also freeze nicely.

Many vegetables can also be canned, though tomatoes, high in acid, are probably the easiest to can, according to Mrs. Wyant.

Low acid vegetables such as carrots, green beans, beets, corn and peas require a pressure canning process, she said.

Whether to freeze or can really depends on personal preference and how much freezer space a family has available, Mrs. Wyant explained.

Some vegetables, including carrots, potatoes and onions, can be successfully stored in dark, dry spaces with good ventilation. Potatoes require a cool (35 to 40 degrees) area and commercial products are available to control sprouting of potatoes, Mrs. Wyant pointed out.

Onions should be hung in open mesh bags in dry, ventilated areas such as attics (not basements). Onions grown from sets are much harder to store, warned Mrs. Wyant.

Whatever preservation process is chosen, the homemaker should carefully follow the freezing and canning procedures. Food preservation circulars are available free from the County Extension Office, 5608 So. 48th, and will be mailed to individuals who call or write the office.

Mrs. Wyant is also planning classes on freezing, canning and perhaps pickling and jellies. Information on these classes is available from the extension office.

Inflation and shortages have not skipped the home canning freezing supplies. Costs for packaging materials are higher, and the flats needed for canning will probably be scarce again this year, Mrs. Wyant said.

Though costs may be up, packaging supplies for freezing are not something you use once and throw away, said Mrs. Wyant. "If people take good care of packaging materials, they will last five to seven years," she said.

Grocery stores have been having problems getting flats in, although the whole sets of canning jars, lids and flats are apparently available.

Three nationwide manufacturing companies have told Mrs. Wyant they hope to have flats in stores by May, June and July, the peak of the canning season.

But Mrs. Wyant urged homemakers to look for flats every time they shop, "because people are going to buy in quantity when they come in."

The increased interest in gardening is nationwide and "there is still a tremendous demand for products. It will be a while before there will be any surplus," Mrs. Wyant predicted.

Fruit Trees Have Many Advantages

There is nothing more pleasurable than biting into succulent, juicy fruit picked fresh from your own trees.

The fruit they bear is only a small part of the reward you get from these trees, according to the American Association of Nurserymen. They give abuntant, colorful blooms to herald the arrival of spring. They provide cooling shade in the sultry summer months and they help trap dust particles from the air, buffer sound, block our undesirable sights and give off oxygen.

Blooming, fruit bearing trees are extremely important elements in a landscaping plan. Whether planted as a row to define borders, grouped orchard-style, or strategically placed throughout the landscape, they will enhance your garden plan year after year. They will also add value to your home and property, as well as beauty and livability.

Bolens Mulching Mower™ offers a new way to get rid of grass clippings.

Don't have any.

Instead of raking, bagging and hauling clippings, or watching them turn brown on the lawn, get a Bolens 22" Mulching Mower. When it cuts your grass, it also cuts and recuts the clippings into tiny mulch particles that disappear down into your lawn. Too small to contribute to thatch build-up they quickly decompose, re-cycling nitrogen back into your lawn.

So you save time and effort. And save again on fertilizer costs.

Since this mower doesn't throw out clippings, there's no discharge chute. So you mow with greater safety. And trim around trees and borders with both sides of the mower.

Other features include sure-footed front wheel drive. Grip 'n Go™ safety drive control. And your choice of manual or electric start. Also available in 22" and 18" hand-propelled models. Bolens Mulching Mower. A good yard ahead.

Feeling Meloncholy?

Meet Me at the Casaba!

By Jim Raglin

Just about anybody can grow beans. They're a snap.

And you can hardly get in a pickle growing your own cucumbers.

Beets, carrots, tomatoes, sweet corn and radishes almost grow by themselves, if you give them some weedin' and feedin' and satisfy their thirst.

What really sets one home gardener apart from another is how well you do with okra, salsify, casabas, and the never popular kohlrabi.

Or peanuts. Bring in a crop of peanuts in Nebraska and you've got a real conversational edge over the traditionalist gardener. After all, if you're trying to cut down food expenses by home gardening, attacking the cost of commercial peanut butter is a whale of a place to start.

Of course, your chances of growing peanuts in Lincoln aren't the same as they would be for a backyard gardener in Albany, Ga. However, you might get the job done if you tried okra, which, like the peanut, is a Southern specialty.

The problem with okra is what to do with it once you harvest it. There are some persons living north of Chattanooga who think it is dandy to eat. This distinct minority probably also likes kohlrabi.

Okra, for the uninitiated, produces pods that are dark green, have slight grooves and come to a point. The pods get about seven inches long. You can fry them, make soup out of them, or, donate them to a swine farmer.

Kohlrabi produces a large bulb on a stem — all above the ground. It's quite a curiosity and the bulb tastes much like a turnip. That kinship in flavor may kill kohlrabi for the majority, but the plant does have its advocates, few in number, strong in breath.

Salsify is supposed to taste like an oyster. You eat the roots, which grow to around eight inches long. That is, you eat the roots if you like oysters.

Now the casaba is a great melon. But it takes four months of ideal (warm) weather to transform a seed into a fruit. It certainly is a notable achievement if a Nebraskan gets the job done, one that makes the cantaloupe grower next door orange with envy.

If the semi-exotic plant isn't your cup of 10-4-4, try a unique variety of a standard plant.

Instead of Tenderpod, try the Romano (Italian) bush bean. Try a golden instead of a red beet. Or Barbeque sweet corn, a change from the dependable Iochief.

Then there's leeks. They have nothing to do with the garage roof but are a tasty variation of the onion.

Yes, you can make gardening even more fun by trying one or two different vegetables or fruits. And think of all the conversation you'll get from the kids (and adults) when you say, "Eat your kohlrabi. It's good for you!"

Lawn Can Become Garden

Converting a chunk of lawn into a garden patch takes a whole lot of work, says County Extension Agent Emery Nelson, but it can be done.

Patience is the first ingredient. You must wait until the ground has dried out, he says, or you may end up with a lot of hard-to-break-up clods.

Even now it's not too late to plant, he says, although you may have missed some of the early vegetables. You can still grow warm weather crops such as corn, cucumbers and beans.

It's important to turn the grass under deeply, he says, either with a plow, a rotary tiller or a spade. You can get good results by spading first and then using a tiller, he says.

After the grass has been turned under, let the soil dry out somewhat before breaking up the clods and planting, Nelson says.

He also recommends an application of vegetable fertilizer.

Trees, Shrubs Can Save Fuel

Nature can help save money and energy at the same time.

Proper use of trees, shrubs and vines can have a decided effect on heating and cooling homes, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

In recent tests in South Dakota with two identical houses, one was exposed and the other was protected by various trees and shrubs. The plants reduced wind during the winter months by as much as 71% and resulted in a 40% savings in fuel consumption.

In other tests conducted in less windy climates, the use of trees and shrubs as windbreaks accounted for a saving of 10% in fuel bills over the entire winter.

Windbreaks of evergreens or other plants on the northern and western sides of a house block cold winter winds. Even a single row of evergreens will serve as a windbreak, but a double or triple row is more effective.

Deciduous trees planted on the south side of the home will allow the sun through in the winter months when the leaves are gone, then will help cool the home and surrounding area during the hot summer months, thus reducing the need for air conditioning and electric consumption. Tests have shown that in properly shaded houses air-conditioners were needed as little as half as much as in exposed homes.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, plant materials are considerably more effective in providing protection from weather than man-made devices such as walls or fences because their flexibility lets them reduce wind velocity and stabilize currents, as opposed to solid walls which can blow down and which create turbulence on their leeward sides.

Hedges or barrier plantings, they claim, provide maximum wind reduction because the wind passes through and the effect is to dampen or cancel the effect of downdrafts as well as reduce the force of chill winds.

Certain types of clinging vines planted alongside the southern and western sun-exposed portions of a house can also result in considerable saving in cooling bills. Because the leaves of the vines absorb the sun's rays and allow a convection current to form behind them, they carry the heat up and away from the house.

These are just some of the ways nature helps us fight economic pressures. When we consider that about a quarter of the energy consumption in this country, including electricity, coal and oil, is for home heating, it is apparent that any saving in this area can be considerable.

Plantings not only reduce fuel bills but help make life more enjoyable through reduced noise, less pollution and more pleasant surroundings.

Safety First in Backyard

Garden and yard work can be enjoyable as well as good exercise if you follow some basic safety tips.

The National Safety Council recommends.

— Dress for the job. Safety shoes with metal toe caps and reinforced soles can protect your toes from being crushed by dropped objects and offer some defense for toes should they get under the mower deck in the path of the blades. Substantial soles guard your feet from nail punctures or cuts from glass, junk, etc. Don't wear thongs, sandals or go barefoot. Wear a brimmed hat and comfortable clothing that give ample skin cover in strong sun. Wear gloves when handling rough materials, and rubber or plastic ones when handling chemicals.

— Protect your eyes with safety glasses or goggles when powertilling, breaking up rocks or concrete, spraying or dusting, using strong cleaning agents, etc.

— Use heavy-duty extension cords. If your tools are grounded via the three-prong plug, the extension must be the three-wire grounded type.

— Don't run power equipment if you are ill, taking strong medications or otherwise unable to work safely.

— When lifting, do it right. Keep your back straight and nearly vertical. Lift with the leg muscles.

Yellow Watermelons Tempt Gardeners

By Lloyd Green

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Watermelons that are yellow inside instead of red may not be your thing. So maybe you'd like yard-long green beans, blue potatoes, 2-foot-long cucumbers, multicolored corn, 15-pound radishes or white tomatoes.

These and other unusual vegetables are available this summer for home gardeners, many of whom will be enrolling for the first time in Blisterology 102

Actually, some of these imaginative vegetables are not merely oddities, but actually improvements on the tried-and-true varieties.

Such is the case of the new yellor watermelon called Yellow Baby, which was picked by the All-America Selections Committee as one of its 1975 medal winners.

"Yellow Baby was chosen despite its color rather than because of it," said Derek Fell, director of the All-America seed trial organization in Gardenville, Pa. "Our judges are very conservative, but this watermelon was a lot of things going for it.

"It has a short growing season (70 to 75 days), it has a thin rind, it's sweeter than other early watermelons, and it has 50% fewer seeds."

Yellow Baby was developed by Wun-Yu Chen, a farmer and plant breeder in Taiwan.

Fell, whose organization is supported by 55 seed companies in the United States, Mexico and Canada, noted by phone that there have been yellow watermelons in the past, but none had caught on.

"Having vegetables that are a different color or shape is actually a detriment to their acceptance," he observed. "They must have added advantages. We're hopeful that winning acceptance of new vegetables will be easier this year with so many new people getting into gardening."

He pointed out that purple-podded green beans have definite advantages over regular beans.

"They turn green when they're cooked," he said, "but more important, they don't lose as much flavor when they're cooked and frozen, and they're more resistant to bean beetles."

"Breeders are now working on some things that will shake up gardens a lot in years to come," said Fell. "They're trying to develop things like 400-pound pumpkins, watermelons that can be grown on bushes like tomatoes.

Nebraska Nurserymen Dream of Green Arboretums of Home

By Jana Miller

If Roger Uhlinger had his way, "the whole doggone state" would be used for an arboretum.

For Uhlinger, horticulturist at the University of Nebraska North Platte Station, dreams of arboretums planted with trees, shrubs, grasses and perennials scattered across the state and cared for by local residents and professionals.

Uhlinger's dream has become the basis of a proposal submitted by the Nebraska Arboretum Council to the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

But the dream won't be detailed in public until the institute acts on the proposal, Uhlinger said. If approved, the arboretum council, formed in January, plans to seek endorsement of its proposal from the Legislature and the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

Duane Acker, vice chancellor of the institute, said a decision about the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum should be made next week. He emphasized that the institute was impressed with the proposal's potential, adding "we want desperately to try to get it off the ground."

Visitors, students, horticulturists and professional nurserymen will be encouraged to use the arboretums, which are intended to become "living memorials" to the nation's history. The plantings would be labeled and tended for educational and research purposes.

Finances, however, trouble the arboretum council plans.

"It's not an ideal year, in terms of the economic situation, to try to find an agency that would sponsor such a proposal," Uhlinger said, suggesting that the University of Nebraska would be a likely sponsoring body.

Talk about arboretums began in Nebraska a quarter century ago, Uhlinger said. But it was last summer when the talk turned serious. Those who were interested saw an ideal opportunity to tie the concept to the nation's bicentennial celebration and to honor the late Glenn Viehmeyer.

Mr. Viehmeyer, a one-time assistant professor of horticulture assigned to the university's North Platte station, was recognized internationally for his work with chrysanthemums.

Nebraska's arboretum project falls into the international Green Survival movement launched five years ago by the American Association of Nurserymen and recently sanctioned as an official program of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Green Survival's message centers on the easy, everyday steps everyone can take to improve the environment and the quality of life in the United States.

"The whole Green Survival emphasis is to get people to step back and become more aware of plants, their cycles, their functions and their beauty," Richard B. Campbell, general manager of Campbell's Nurseries in Lincoln, explained.

Campbell is secretary-treasurer of the 75-member Nebraska Association of Nurserymen.

The Green Survival movement is intended to create a caring attitude by use of green and white lapel buttons, litter bags, promotional literature and newspaper advertising. But Campbell explained it is up to individual communities and groups to decide if and how they want to help spread the word.

The nursery industry and the Bicentennial Administration will be there to encourage and assist.

The Bicentennial Administration also has suggested that there's no better gift for Uncle Sam's 200th birthday than a tree, a plant, a shrub, a flower.

"Our world can survive its troubled air, plundered earth, dying water, ugly sights and sounds," the Green Survival literature assures. "It depends on you."

In Nebraska, however, nurserymen and nature lovers talk more about the National Arbor Day Foundation and the statewide arboretum project than they talk about Green Survival, Campbell said.

He said some nurseries in the state are using the Green Survival material, but most are concentrating their attention on matters involving Arbor Day or the arboretums.

The proposed arboretum project, he said, has attracted the interest of five federal groups and a half dozen state agencies, as well as the university, nurserymen, garden clubs, the Nebraska Association of Resource Districts and the Nebraska Recreation and Parks Assn.

Initial talk centers around arboretums at the NU Panhandle Station in Scottsbluff, the NU North Platte Station, Arbor Lodge in Nebraska City, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus. In addition, there's talk of arboretums at selected Interstate rest stops and state parks.

Another 50 locations are mentioned in the proposal as possible sites.

Low Income Get Gardening Chance

By Linda Olig

The Lincoln Action Program (LAP) is giving low-income residents of rural Lancaster County a chance to grow their own food.

The do-it-yourself in your own backyard gardening program is designed for underemployed persons, Social Security or Aid to Dependent Children recipients or members of broken homes who reside outside Lincoln.

Ruth Egner, rural outreach worker who is heading up the pilot project, said LAP will supply seeds and plants for 25 families participating in the gardening project. Small gardening tools and two rotary tillers also are available to the amateur farmers on a checkout basis, she said.

The project is backed financially by a $1,100 contribution from the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

The size of the gardens and amount of seeds allocated is determined by the family size. Project participants range from single persons to 11-member families, Mrs. Egner said.

The backyard farmers have met with county extension agents to discuss helpful hints and timing tips.

The gardeners themselves had a hand in selecting the varieties of vegetables they will plant — potatoes and tomatoes, corn and carrots, broccoli and beets, peas and peppers, spinach and squash.

"Our objective" said Mrs. Egner, is to encourage the low-income "to have fresh vegetables in their diets."

But the gardening project will be more than a lesson in nutrition and hoeing, spading, planting and weeding, she said.

Participants are being encouraged to keep records of crop yields and make price comparisons to determine how much they saved by growing the produce themselves.

They're also getting a lesson in organic gardening, Mrs. Egner said.

Right in with potatoes will be marigolds by the dozen. Each family will be given a package of the flower seeds along with their vegetables-to-be.

The flowers aren't for beauty's sake, but to help keep potato bugs away without a spray, Mrs. Egner said.

Lush Lawn Adds To Home's Value

The lawn around a house has a measurable cost value — and it may be a lot higher than most people think, a recent random survey a real estate brokers across the nation indicates.

A recent issue of Lawn Care, O. M. Scott & Sons lawn magazine, reported the survey, made by an independent research organization, shows only 6% of the brokers questioned thought the condition of the lawn was not important in influencing a home buyer's decision; 58% thought it was important; 36% thought it very important.

Comments included: "When the lawn is taken care of, the house is taken care of, too."

"A woman looks at a house from outside. If it looks good she'll go in, if not, chances are she won't look at it."

"If we have two houses of equal price, the one with the good lawn will go faster."

One broker summed it up in four words, "First impressions are lasting."

When it came to putting a cash value on a thick, weed-free lawn, the figures varied all the way from nothing to $10,000, with an arithmetic average of $1,322. On a $35,000 house that is 3.77%. Applied to a $20,000 house, the same percentage would represent $754. On a $60,000 home it would be $2,262.

Whether these estimates are too high or too low, they do suggest that, quite apart from its beauty, a good lawn has a cash value far in excess of the cost involved in its upkeep.

Vegetable Fertilizer

A new vegetable fertilizer developed by O. M. Scott & Sons may help home gardeners get better yields during 1975.

Called Vegetable Garden Fertilizer, it can be used on all vegetables. It is applied by being shaken onto the garden in dry granular form and worked into the upper inch or two of soil.

It has the advantage of slow release nitrogen for longer residual nutrition, plus high phosphorus content to assure an early and continued supply of this root-building ingredient.

Oregold, hybrid tea winner

Rose Parade, floribunda winner

AARS Helps You Grow Best Rose on the Block

A perfect rose . .

A message of love to some.

The most beautiful of God's flowers to many

An elusive dream to those who strive to grow it

To make the growing easier, All-America Rose Selections tests new varieties for you, then selects the best for its annual award.

AARS, organized in 1938, neither buys, sells nor produces roses, a release states. It claims all you need to look for in selecting a top-quality flower is the green and white AARS tag

All-America selections for 1975 include a hybrid tea rose, a grandiflora and a floribunda

Rose parade is the floribunda selection, described as a compact, shapely, two-to-three foot bush thickly set with clusters of coral-pink, richly fragrant, 2½ inch flowers delicately highlighted with shadings of peach.

The coloring of the rose will vary with climate and soil condition, AARS says, from clear pink to a yellow-coral blend.

It features a continuous succession of bud clusters that open slowly, last well, fade slowly and drop cleanly

Oregold is the tea rose selection. It is the first deep gold hybrid to win an AARS in 13 years.

It bears its buttercup yellow five-inch blooms on single stems, many at a time, especially in spring.

It has a delicate tea rose fragrance and is very thorny.

The grandiflora winner is Arizona, a golden copper everbloomer. The blossoms are 4½ inches across.

It has a penetrating tea fragrance and makes a lovely cut flower as well as adding to an attractive rose garden.

To Show the Perfect Rose Dream of Society Members

Rose is a rose is a rose . . .
—Gertrude Stein

But not so for serious growers of roses. They hope to grow the perfect rose — whether it be floribunda, tea, climber or some other variety.

Rose growers ponder such questions as

When is the proper time to uncover bushes in the spring?

What is the best cover for roses during the winter months?

When should roses be watered and how?

And that's only a tiny bit of the information serious rose growers seek. That is why they have banded together in various cities in the state to exchange ideas and to pick the brains of their fellow enthusiasts.

At the top of the heap is the Nebraska State Rose Society C V Henkle of Lincoln is president.

Member societies include the Omaha Rose Society, Columbus Society, Blair Society and Lincoln Rose Society. The Lincoln group meets for potluck suppers at 6:30 p.m. the third Monday of each month at First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 135 No. Cotner.

Rose societies also sponsor rose shows. The Lincoln show will be June 8 at First Federal. "Anyone may enter roses. It is not required that growers are members of the society, except in certain categories," said Esther Koontz, editor of the State Rose Society Review.

The Omaha Rose Show will be a two-day event, June 7 and 8; and the Blair show will be June 15. The State Rose Show will be Sept. 21 in Columbus.

Information concerning schedules may be obtained from Mrs Koontz.

Plants Are for Kids

Nurserymen remember the day when most of their business came from the 35 to 55 age group.

Not so anymore.

One nurseryman talks about the 6- and 7-year-olds who enter his establishment "wanting nothing but plants for their birthdays."

Evelyn Brogan, store manager of Campbell's Nurseries and Garden Center, for example, remembered an exasperated mother whose teenage son was crazy about plants.

The kid wanted to grow something the mother didn't think he should.

"Well, it could be worse," the store manager reminded the mother. "He could be into other things like drugs, alcohol, shacking up."

Open-Air Produce Market Approved for Lincoln High

An open-air market where gardeners could sell their extra vegetables and fruits is being planned for Lincoln and the organizers say it will be operational by June

Nancy Cunningham, horticulture aide, Lancaster County extension office, said tentative approval has been given to operate the market in the Lincoln High School parking lot at 22nd and J Sts. The extension office had hoped to use city park land for the project.

Initial plans call for the market to be open on Saturday mornings beginning June 1. Cunningham said If consumer response indicates more marketing days are needed, she said Wednesday mornings would be added to the schedule

Gardeners offering items for sale would be responsible for bringing them to the market site and for the actual marketing Cunningham said all sellers must obtain a state sales tax number for $1 and would set their own prices for produce

Lancaster County Extension Agent Emery Nelson said similar markets in Kansas City and Minneapolis have been very successful

Cunningham said truck farmers contacted about participating in the open markets have responded enthusiastically. Businessmen and Chamber of Commerce representatives have also reacted favorably to the proposal.

Because of differences in licensing requirements, the market would be limited to fruits and vegetables, she said Dairy products and concessions — for instance, a sandwich stand — are subject to other requirements.

The Lincoln Food Co-op, called Our Store, now sells fruits and vegetables on a similar, once-a-week basis. Co-op members order wholesale quantities of produce at wholesale prices. Large orders of nonperishable staples are placed approximately quarterly.

Our Store is open Saturday mornings in the basement of Trinity United Methodist Church, 1345 So. 16th St The staples have been distributed from the Epworth United Methodist Church, 2980 Holdrege, and a northside food co-op is being organized there

Early announcements suggested the outdoor markets would be open in May when early crops such as radishes, lettuce and peas first become available. Cunningham said the cold and damp spring weather has pretty much excluded early produce, thus the likelihood of a June opening.

Produce sales at the car trunk and truck market would continue throughout the growing season, she said.

Apartment-Size Tomato Tested

Green-thumb apartment dwellers may soon be able to eat their ornamental plants.

A new cherry-type tomato that can be hung like a vine from a flower basket has been developed by horticulturists at South Dakota's Agricultural Experiment station after eight years' research

Plant developers say the new variety can provide apartment dwellers with fresh tomatoes almost year-round.

While the new plant is not yet on the market, it is expected to be tested in homes this year

It has a shallow root system which makes it suitable for pot-growing And sunlight from a nearby window will be enough to keep the plant healthy

To Show the Perfect Rose Dream of Society Members

Rose is a rose is a rose . . .
—Gertrude Stein

But not so for serious growers of roses. They hope to grow the perfect rose — whether it be floribunda, tea, climber or some other variety.

Rose growers ponder such questions as:

When is the proper time to uncover bushes in the spring?

What is the best cover for roses during the winter months?

When should roses be watered and how?

And that's only a tiny bit of the information serious rose growers seek. That is why they have banded together in various cities in the state to exchange ideas and to pick the brains of their fellow enthusiasts.

At the top of the heap is the Nebraska State Rose Society. C. V. Henkle of Lincoln is president.

Member societies include the Omaha Rose Society, Columbus Society, Blair Society and Lincoln Rose Society. The Lincoln group meets for potluck suppers at 6:30 p.m. the third Monday of each month at First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 135 No. Cotner.

Rose societies also sponsor rose shows. The Lincoln show will be June 8 at First Federal. "Anyone may enter roses. It is not required that growers are members of the society, except in certain categories," said Esther Koontz, editor of the State Rose Society Review.

The Omaha Rose Show will be a two-day event, June 7 and 8; and the Blair show will be June 15. The State Rose Show will be Sept. 21 in Columbus.

Information concerning schedules may be obtained from Mrs. Koontz.

Plants Are for Kids

Nurserymen remember the day when most of their business came from the 35 to 55 age group.

Not so anymore.

One nurseryman talks about the 6- and 7-year-olds who enter his establishment "wanting nothing but plants for their birthdays."

Evelyn Brogan, store manager of Campbell's Nurseries and Garden Center, for example, remembered an exasperated mother whose teenage son was crazy about plants.

The kid wanted to grow something the mother didn't think he should.

"Well, it could be worse," the store manager reminded the mother. "He could be into other things like drugs, alcohol, shacking up."

AARS Helps You Grow Best Rose on the Block

A perfect rose . . .

A message of love to some.

The most beautiful of God's flowers to many.

An elusive dream to those who strive to grow it.

To make the growing easier, All-America Rose Selections tests new varieties for you, then selects the best for its annual award.

AARS, organized in 1938, neither buys, sells nor produces roses, a release states. It claims all you need to look for in selecting a top-quality flower is the green and white AARS tag.

All-America selections for 1975 include a hybrid tea rose, a grandiflora and a floribunda.

Rose parade is the floribunda selection, described as a compact, shapely, two-to-three foot bush thickly set with clusters of coral-pink, richly fragrant, 2½ inch flowers delicately highlighted with shadings of peach.

The coloring of the rose will vary with climate and soil condition, AARS says, from clear pink to a yellow-coral blend.

It features a continuous succession of bud clusters that open slowly, last well, fade slowly and drop cleanly.

Oregold is the tea rose selection. It is the first deep gold hybrid to win an AARS in 13 years.

It bears its buttercup yellow five-inch blooms on single stems, many at a time, especially in spring.

It has a delicate tea rose fragrance and is very thorny.

The grandiflora winner is Arizona, a golden copper everbloomer. The blossoms are 4½ inches across.

It has a penetrating tea fragrance and makes a lovely cut flower as well as adding to an attractive rose garden.

Open-Air Produce Market Approved for Lincoln High

An open-air market where gardeners could sell their extra vegetables and fruits is being planned for Lincoln and the organizers say it will be operational by June.

Nancy Cunningham, horticulture aide, Lancaster County extension office, said tentative approval has been given to operate the market in the Lincoln High School parking lot at 22nd and J Sts. The extension office had hoped to use city park land for the project.

Initial plans call for the market to be open on Saturday mornings, beginning June 1, Cunningham said. If consumer response indicates more marketing days are needed, she said Wednesday mornings would be added to the schedule.

Gardeners offering items for sale would be responsible for bringing them to the market site and for the actual marketing. Cunningham said all sellers must obtain a state sales tax number for $1 and would set their own prices for produce.

Lancaster County Extension Agent Emery Nelson said similar markets in Kansas City and Minneapolis have been very successful.

Cunningham said truck farmers contacted about participating in the open markets have responded enthusiastically. Businessmen and Chamber of Commerce representatives have also reacted favorably to the proposal.

Because of differences in licensing requirements, the market would be limited to fruits and vegetables, she said. Dairy products and concessions — for instance, a sandwich stand — are subject to other requirements.

Low-Maintenance Lawns Seen in '75

Fertilize It, Water It, Cut It—But Not So Often

This will be the year of the low-maintenance lawn, predicts Lancaster County Extension Agent Emery Nelson.

"I may be wrong, but this year looks like it might bring less emphasis on the blue grass class culture," he said. "With the recession, people might put different values on some things, especially money spent on a lawn."

Nelson said this would mean letting the lawn go "its natural way," reducing watering and mowing.

Although fertilizer application also would be cut in the low-maintenance approach, Nelson said the plant food is still of prime importance in keeping your outdoor carpet attractive.

The extension agent recommends turf fertilization in a 4-2-1 ratio of nitrogen, phosporous and potash, respectively. For high-maintenance fertilizing, 4-6 pounds of nitrogen for each 1,000 square feet is best for bluegrass. Using the low-maintenance approach, however, the amount may be halved to 2-3 pounds.

Fertilize bluegrass, fescues and other cool-season grasses (they grow most in spring and fall and go semidormant in hot weather) in early spring and early fall. Fertilizing in the summer offers no help and may stimulate crabgrass and other weeds.

Number of applications during the growing season depends upon how rapidly the nutrients are released.

Although the slow-release fertilizers cost about 10 times more than the regular types, Nelson said, only one to two applications are required. In addition, slow-release forms of nitrogen tend to provide a more uniform rate of growth.

Those fertilizers releasing nitrogen more quickly require application about every 4-5 weeks with the exception of the hot of August, Nelson advises. These quick release blends require careful attention during application to prevent burning the grass.

When you start shopping for fertilizer you'll find the garden supply center carries a variety of brands with a variety of prices. Here are some sure price differentials:

—Fertilizers containing a high percentage of plant nutrients generally cost less a pound of actual nutrients than those containing a small percentage of nutrients.

—Fertilizers containing slowly available forms of nitrogen (water insoluble) cost more a pound than those containing quickly available forms (water soluble).

—Fertilizers containing iron or other trace elements, weed control chemicals, insecticides or other pesticides cost more than plain fertilizers.

—Fertilizers in small packages demand additional expense in packaging.

The valid test is performance of the product on your lawn.

Green Lawn to Cost More Green Bucks

Lincoln residents who like to keep their lawns soaked and green probably will be parting with more of that other green stuff when they pay their summer water bills.

The Lincoln water system recently implemented a new rate structure which will cause individual householders' bills to jump from 20% to 100%.

The new rates, under which customers will be charged more per unit for water they use over their base monthly average, are aimed at curtailing waste.

Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker estimates that as much as two-thirds of the water pumped on a hot summer day goes on lawns and gardens. "And too much of that ends up running down the gutter," he says.

Blocker and his staff hope the new rate structure will discourage Lincoln's lawn freaks from soaking their yards so thoroughly that water runs off and down the storm sewers.

He says the new rates are not meant to turn Lincoln's green landscapes to a dormant brown.

But he hopes the economic jolt of higher charges for excess usage will reduce water waste.

Blocker says he has no idea how the new rates will affect individual customers' bills. But there seems to be no doubt they will be higher than last summer, when lawn watering pushed Lincoln's water system to the limits of its 90 million gallons a day capacity.

In the winter months the city consumes 25-30 millions gallons a day. On a hot summer day that will jump up to 75-80 million, with as much as 50-60 million gallons being poured on lawns and gardens.

Lawn Seal Guarantees Good Grass

A seal of approval by the Lawn Institute attests to good composition of lawnseed mixtures. The seal is granted only if the mixture contains a high proportion of permanent, perennial grasses, which are attractive and spread into bare ground.

Lawn Sprinklers Should Overlap

How do you keep your lawn a lush green, using as little water as possible?

University of Nebraska-Lincoln ag engineer John Addink doesn't have much encouragement.

"It's hard to water a lawn right," Addink says. "Most people usually waste quite a bit of water."

Addink, an irrigation specialist, says the best sprinkler system, be it the modern, automated type or the old-fashioned kind you pull around on the end of a hose, is one that covers as large an area as possible.

The most important thing when buying an automatic sprinkler system is proper spacing and installation of the sprinkler heads he says.

Whether they are of the jet type (which send out a strong stream) or the bubbler type (which send out a difused spray), Addink says there should be 100% overlap from one head to the next. In other words, the spray from one sprinkler head should go far enough to reach the next head in line.

Lawns and gardens should get three-fourths to one inch of water once a week during the summer, he says. In extremely hot, dry weather, such as last summer's drouth, the greenery needs that much water twice a week.

Sprinkling at night could reduce water consumption 5% to 10% over a summer, Addink says, because of reduced evaporation. However, he says, night watering possibly could result in more disease problems because the grass would stay wet longer.

Even if the city repeats last year's alternate day watering schedule to conserve water, Addink says, homeowners still would be able to pour more than enough moisture on their grass.

You can measure how much you are watering your lawn by placing coffee cans at various points around the yard while the sprinklers are running. The amount of water standing in the cans after the sprinklers are shut off will be equivalent in inches to that soaked up by the lawn.

Another way to check lawn watering is to take soil samples. Addink says the top six inches of dirt shouldn't be allowed to dry out completely.

The same method can be used to check soil moisture in gardens. Addink says application of mulch to the surface soil in gardens will help hold moisture in the earth and help cut down on watering frequency.

Program For Young Gardeners

Weekend sailors and Monday morning quarterbacks now have competition from Saturday gardeners.

Green thumbs of various sizes are trickling in to a new program conceived by Emery W. Nelson, county extension agent, and run by horticulture aide Nancy Cunningham.

The youth gardening program, began modestly early this month but is gaining steam, she said. About 30 young persons are enroled and the total may top 50. She would like to see as many as 100 involved.

The program is open to any youth between the ages of nine and 18, she said, who is interested in learning to grow flowers and vegetables. About half the young gardeners are in 4-H, but that is not a prerequisite.

The young gardeners will tour Lincoln gardens and nurseries at Shenandoah, Iowa. They will receive tips on how to exhibit and judge their products in preparation for the State Fair, "which will make it more fun for them."

"I really think that gardening's great for kids," Cunningham said. Monthly meetings, generally on Saturday at 10 a.m. are held at the U.S. Department of Agriculture offices at 5806 S. 48th.

He says the new rates are not meant to turn Lincoln's green landscapes to a dormant brown.

But he hopes the economic jolt of higher charges for excess usage will reduce water waste.

Blocker says he has no idea how the new rates will affect individual customers' bills. But there seems to be no doubt they will be higher than last summer, when lawn watering pushed Lincoln's water system to the limits of its 90 million gallons a day capacity.

In the winter months the city consumes 25-30 millions gallons a day. On a hot summer day that will jump up to 75-80 million, with as much as 50-60 million gallons being poured on lawns and gardens.

Lawn Sprinklers Should Overlap

How do you keep your lawn a lush green, using as little water as possible?

University of Nebraska-Lincoln ag engineer John Addink doesn't have much encouragement.

"It's hard to water a lawn right," Addink says. "Most people usually waste quite a bit of water."

Addink, an irrigation specialist, says the best sprinkler system, be it the modern, automated type or the old-fashioned kind you pull around on the end of a hose, is one that covers as large an area as possible.

The most important thing when buying an automatic sprinkler system is proper spacing and installation of the sprinkler heads he says.

Whether they are of the jet type (which send out a strong stream) or the bubbler type (which send out a difused spray), Addink says there should be 100% overlap from one head to the next. In other words, the spray from one sprinkler head should go far enough to reach the next head in line.

Lawns and gardens should get three-fourths to one inch of water once a week during the summer, he says. In extremely hot, dry weather, such as last summer's drouth, the greenery needs that much water twice a week.

Sprinkling at night could reduce water consumption 5% to 10% over a summer, Addink says, because of reduced evaporation. However, he says, night watering possibly could result in more disease problems because the grass would stay wet longer.

Even if the city repeats last year's alternate day watering schedule to conserve water, Addink says, homeowners still would be able to pour more than enough moisture on their grass.

You can measure how much you are watering your lawn by placing coffee cans at various points around the yard while the sprinklers are running. The amount of water standing in the cans after the sprinklers are shut off will be equivalent in inches to that soaked up by the lawn.

Another way to check lawn watering is to take soil samples. Addink says the top six inches of dirt shouldn't be allowed to dry out completely.

The same method can be used to check soil moisture in gardens. Addink says application of mulch to the surface soil in gardens will help hold moisture in the earth and help cut down on watering frequency.

Program For Young Gardeners

Weekend sailors and Monday morning quarterbacks now have competition from Saturday gardeners.

Green thumbs of various sizes are trickling in to a new program conceived by Emery W. Nelson, county extension agent, and run by horticulture aide Nancy Cunningham.

The youth gardening program, began modestly early this month but is gaining steam, she said. About 30 young persons are enroled and the total may top 50. She would like to see as many as 100 involved.

The program is open to any youth between the ages of nine and 18, she said, who is interested in learning to grow flowers and vegetables. About half the young gardeners are in 4-H, but that is not a prerequisite.

The young gardeners will tour Lincoln gardens and nurseries at Shenandoah, Iowa. They will receive tips on how to exhibit and judge their products in preparation for the State Fair, "which will make it more fun for them."

"I really think that gardening's great for kids," Cunningham said. Monthly meetings, generally on Saturday at 10 a.m. are held at the U.S. Department of Agriculture offices at 5806 S. 48th.

Lawn Seal Guarantees Good Grass

A seal of approval by the Lawn Institute attests to good composition of lawnseed mixtures. The seal is granted only if the mixture contains a high proportion of permanent, perennial grasses, which are attractive and spread into bare ground.

Wilbur's Been Turning Up Dirt for Many Years

By Tom Cook

Wilbur Bryceson has been turning up dirt in people's backyards since. 1948.

Not as a nasty, big-city private detective, but as a good neighbor who found it hard to say no to friends who wanted to work the soil.

Tomatoes, beans and radishes were planted by those he worked for, but Wilbur left seeds of friendship and kindness behind his garden tractor.

"I'm 76 years old. I have lots of friends, and I've turned some land over in my day . . . I still have all I can do," Bryceson, 5334 Bancroft St., says.

"One fool makes many, many more," Wilbur says with a chuckle. "One friend tells another a relative calls me, but I enjoy it."

Wilbur has the same David Bradley garden tractor he purchased 27 years ago, although he had to put on a new engine a piece back.

He is retired from Dorsey Laboratories as a warehousing foreman.

Backyard gardening has been on the increase in recent years, Wilbur says, and he's had to turn a few people down.

"For my age, it's getting pretty hard for me to do, and I'm getting pretty independent," he says.

But a check with local garden tractor and rotary tiller dealers in Lincoln indicates others are buying equipment to follow in Wilbur's furrows.

"Tractor and rotary tiller sales are three to four times higher this year than in past years," Oscar Fiene, manager of Lancaster Implement Inc., says.

Riding garden tractors, which can be adapted for mowing, hauling and even sweeping, start at about 800, according to Fiene, while rotary tillers start at about $200.

"People of all ages are buying plowing equipment for themselves and many buy them to do lawn work for a business," Fiene says.

Neighbors are even going together to buy garden plows to defray costs, according to Ken Dunn, Dunn Power Equipment.

Dunn said sunny weather will really get sales going, and although he now has a good selection of equipment, there are indications that could change.

"We haven't received all our orders from last year yet, which indicates there could be a big demand nationally," he said.

Dunn said unless a person wants to share or sell his plowing service, three acres is usually needed to justify buying a larger riding garden tractor.

The major item of concern for the consumer when purchasing a garden plow should be dealer service, both dealers said

Wilbur says it's getting a little late to do any plowing this year, and that it's really best to plow in the fall.

"If you can get it early in the spring so it gets a freeze on it, it does okay, " Wilbur said, "Otherwise it gets too gumbo."

Besides plowing for others, Wilbur and his wife have two lots filled with a garden of their own.

"It keeps us pretty busy," Wilbur says, "And the wife is trying to get me to slow down a little."

He chuckled when he talked of slowing down, as if that would be too much like turning over a new leaf—Wilbur talks like he'd rather turn over a few more gardens.

Tiller poised, Wilbur Bryceson is ready to turn up dirt.

How I Learned To Love Herbicides And Stop Weeding

By Emery Nelson
Extension Agent

Weeding the garden becomes a tedious task by mid-summer The temperatures are high and often the soil is difficult to hoe. Besides, some of the spring enthusiasm has worn off and one searches for less exhausting ways to spend the weekend.

Some of this work can be alleviated by the use of chemical weed controls. Several are available for use in both the vegetable and flower garden. They do a good job on certain kind of weeds provided they are used properly.

Three secrets to success of herbicides in the garden are (1) select the right herbicide, (2) apply at the right time; (3) apply it at the correct rate and manner

Two herbicides recommended for use in gardens are dacthal and treflan. Both provide good control of annual grassy weeds and some of the broadleaf weeds. Dacthal is the most readily available and labeled for use on most garden plants Treflan needs to be mixed into the soil immediately after it is applied.

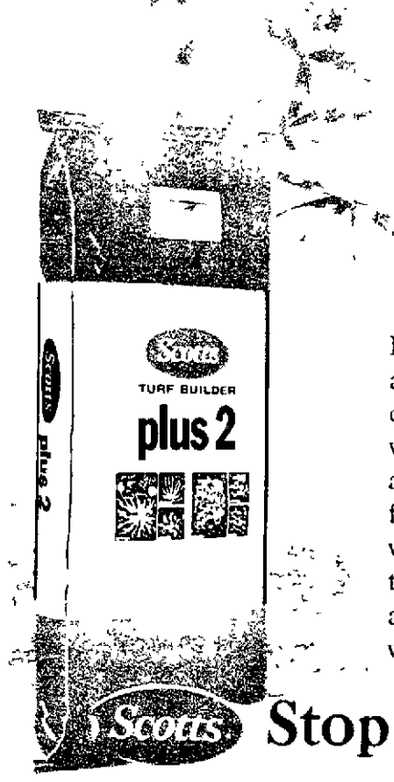
These chemicals are effective only when applied prior to the emergence of the weeds. Treflan is applied before the garden is planted and is mixed into the soil. It cannot be used on all vegetables but is successful for many.

Dacthal is applied after the garden is planted and before the seeds begin to grow. Like treflan, dacthal can be used for many vegetables but one needs to read the label carefully and follow instructions for good results.

Used at excessive rates, the herbicide may damage. When applications are at rates below the recommendation, the weeds are not controlled.

In any event some weeds may not be controlled by the herbicide. These will need to be hoed or pulled but this may be much easier than when no chemical control is used.

How to make 41 kinds of lawn weeds disappear!



It's called TURF BUILDER® PLUS 2®, and it controls dandelions, plantain, clover and 38 other common lawn weeds. Clears out weeds, roots and all. NCAA Approves China Trip

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association gave the green light Wednesday to college athletes who wish to accompany the Amateur Athletic Union track and field team that will tour mainland China next month '

After a joint meeting with Joseph Scalzo, President of the AAU, Ollan Cassell, AAU executive director and Richard Harkins, secretary-treasurer, the NCAA council gave its approval, saying that the AAU officials had made it clear that the competition in China involves "a national team " That permitted waiver of an NCAA bylaw that prohibits collegiate athletes from competing on outside teams

But Dr John Fuzak, president of the NCAA, made it clear that the athletes involved would still have to be concerned with conference rules and rules of their individual institutions

' As far as the NCAA rules are concerned, any college athlete may compete," said Fuzak "But we believe they should be fully aware of the problems involved There are conference meets, final exams and other problems The individual athlete has the right to make that decision

Fuzak said there had been a lack of communication and a lack of understanding of the impact of the tour "

Until Wednesday s meeting, the AAU never had requested that its China team be identified as a national team

The meeting between the NCAA and AAU came as a result of a letter that Fuzak sent to Scalzo expressing the collegiate body s concern 'We appreciate their cooperation and their appearance before our council, said Fuzak

Fuzak said that other mutual problems of the two bodies had been discussed and that he felt the meeting had been a positive step to try and resolve differences

Fuzak emphasized that although the NCAA now was approving participation of the athletes there might be other problems involved

In some cases, conference rules and rules of individual institutions are more restrictive than those of the NCAA he said I cannot say what the likelihood of academic people objecting might be

In effect Wednesday s ruling permits athletes who will make the May 11 May 30 tour of China to still compete in the NCAA championships in June

NU Group Gives Case

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney football coach Tom Osborne and three football players appeared before the NCAA council Wednesday at Kansas City presenting their appeal to a ruling by the infractions committee concerning player appearances in last year s Sugar Bowl football game at New Orleans

It is rumored that among the players involved are Jim Burrow, who transfered to NU from the University of Mississippi and Dean Gissler a transfer from the Air Force Academy They apparently are involved in a case regarding their eligibility to attend the Orange Bowl football game three years ago

The current case involves Vince Ferragamo and Ray Phillips who attended, but did not play in last December s Sugar Bowl game

The Nebraska group is appealing a ruling which allegedly suspended Ferragamo and Phillips for one game of the fall season

The NCAA Council, which has final jurisdiction in the matter, did not announce its decision

Hanson Gets Holdrege Post

Holdrege — Roger Hanson, who coached Lexington to its first state basketball tournament appearance in 17 years in 1974, was named head basketball coach at Holdrege High School here Wednesday

Hanson, whose team finished runnerup to Lincoln Pius X in the Class B title game that year, spent the past year farming in Lesterville, S D

The Southern (S D) State at Springfield graduate replaces Dan Arnold, who resigned last February

Sloan Shots Help Bulls Topple Kings, 101-89

By Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls blended Jerry Sloan s long and deadly corner shots with brilliant defense and methodically chopped down the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, 101-89, Wednesday night to clinch the Western Conference championship in the National Basketball Association playoffs

In other NBA action — Bob McAdoo scored 37 points and Jim McMillian 20 as the Buffalo Braves beat the Washington Bullets 102-96 and tied their Eastern Conference semifinal series 3 3

The seventh and deciding game will be played Friday night in Landover Md

In the ABA Artis Gilmore scored 23 points and helped the Kentucky Colonels withstand a 43-point performance by Marvin Barnes to record a 108 103 victory over the Spirits of St Louis and take a 2 0 lead in the Eastern Division semifinals 108 103

The teams move to St Louis for Games Three and Four in the best-of-seven series

The Bulls winning only their second playoff road game ever in 26 tests, took the series 4-2

The game turned into a brawl with eight minutes 40 seconds left in the fourth period when the Bulls who outshot outplayed and outmuscled the Kings led 81-69

The game was delayed for five minutes when a foul was called on the Kings Sam Lacey

The spectators showered ice cups and cans of deoderant which had been given away free outside the arena

The Bulls went en masse as a team into the stands to confront a loud heckler but were restrained before reaching him

The Kings could never get closer than seven points after that

This came on a layup by Nate Tiny Archibald who stole the ball and dropped it in with 2 07 remaining making the score 92 85

Immediately thereafter Tom Boerwinkle hit a field goal and converted it into a three point play opening up a 95 85 gap again

The Bulls who led 50-44 at the half held the Kings to six points during the first 5½ minutes of the third quarter and took turns firing away until they had forged an 11 point advantage

Sloan made only 16 points but all of tem came on long field goals at times when the Kings threatened to pull away in the first quarter and made bids to catch up in the second quarter

Archibald and Bob Love who peppered the basket at other crucial times each made 26 points to tie for game scoring honors

The Bulls who trailed much of the first quarter began to pull away when reserve Bob Wilson sank four consecutive free throws and a field goal breaking a tie and putting Chicago ahead 29 24

The Kings never closed it to closer than four points the rest of the first half and with 45 seconds before the intermission the Bulls enjoyed a 50-41 lead

A free throw by Rick Adelman coupled with Lacey's 35 footer at the halftime gun left the Kings behind by six points

During the first half Sloan the brawnyswing man from Evansville connected on six of nine shots from the floor and when Sloan was finally put under heavy guard Love started banging away

During the first 24 minutes Archibald guarded by Norm Van Lier made 23 points for the Kings and no other Kansas City player was able to connect in double figures

Boston scored three more runs in eighth when Tidrow walked Juan Beniquez Carbo and Evans and Lynn blasted a double off reliever Larry Gura driving in all three

In other AL action, Cleveland edged Detroit 4-3 and Chicago at Minnesota was rained out

Jack Brohamer who hit a homer, and George Hendrick each drove in two runs to give the Indians a rain-delayed win over the Tigers

Tom Buskey took over after a 65-minute rain delay and protected Jim Perry s first victory of the season with three shutout innings of relief

Gary Sutherland and Bill Freehan homered for Detroit

Baltimore was at Milwaukee, Texas at California and Kansas City at Oakland in night games

Veteran lefthander Woody Fryman of Montreal shut out Pittsburgh for the second time in a row Wednesday stopping the Pirates on seven hits for a 5-0 victory

It was Montreal s fourth victory in as many games with Pittsburgh this season

Fryman a former Pirate obtained from the Detroit Tigers in an off-season deal struck out nine walked two and hit a batter

The Expos took a 1 0 lead in the first inning when Tim Foli walked stole second and scored when Rennie Stennett was unable to pick up Barry Foote s grounder for an error

Montreal added four more runs in the second inning with the help of a passed ball an error and RBI singles by Fryman Pepe Mangual and Mike Jorgensen

In other NL games Chicago bombed Philadelphia 9 3 and New York defeated St Louis 7-1

Bill Madlock drove in four runs with a bases loaded double and a single and George Mitterwald and Rick Monday homered to lead the Cubs over the Phillies

Rusty Staub hit his sixth career grand slam to climax a six run New York fifth inning and Tom Seaver pitched a four hitter as the Mets routed the Cardinals

Seaver now 2-2 permitted base runners in only three innings and struck out seven while allowing only one walk

Cashman Stable To Ak

Omaha — From his seat on the Chicago Board of Trade E C Cashman is involved in buying and selling every day

He also buys horses as evidenced by his shopping spree in Florida this winter During meetings at Calder Gulfstream and Hialeah trainer W A Fabry bought or claimed more than 30 horses for Cashman at a total cost between $300 000 and $400 - 000

He believes in buying quality horses Fabry said this week while preparing his stable for the opening of Ak Sar Ben s 56 day meeting Tuesday

He has quality not only in the horses we bought in Florida but he also has 62 two year olds which average $20 000 each Fabry added We are racing in New York California Kentucky and Chicago in addition to here Some of the horses we got in Florida have gone to those tracks

Cashman a former policeman is not a newcomer to racing as Fabry estimates the Chicagoan has had horses for almost 20 years

The plane ride was only 3½ hours he explained and all but one came out of the trip eager to hit the racetrack If we had vanned them here it probably would have taken a week or 10 days for them to settle back into their training routine By the time they were ready to run we might have missed a week or two of the meet

Now the only problem we have is adjusting to the weather We came out of 80-90 degree temperatures an it s only been in the 30 s and 40 s here

Two Florida claims are being primed for opening week features

Red Drifter a $19 000 claim at Calder will go in Tuesday s $10 - 000 Inaugural Purse The $25 000-added Beef State Handicap next Saturday is expected to draw Ride the Curl a $30 000 claim at Hialeah

Others haltered in Florida include Kuryakin $35 000 Very Masterful $35 000 and Great Commander, $12,500 Cashman also bought Money Penny a promising three-year-old filly which had run for $25 000 claim before stepping up to allowance competition

SHORT STOPS Lyman Rollins has his entire stable here after dividing time between Ak Sar-Ben and Denver during the past several years Stable leaders include Ultra Energy, winner of seven races and $30 000 as a two-year-old, Irish, winner of two stakes in Phoenix and Brush Cutter, who missed most of 194 but has been training well this year C E Nicholas returns with six two-year-olds sired by 1969 Omaha Gold Cup winner Might Ak-Sar-Gen's 1974 juvenile champion, Ribot Bandit has been training well under Walter Pope Neil Durick of Council Bluffs claimed Delineation from Dan Lasater for $13,-500 at Oaklawn and has continued to move him up successfully

Impressive Field Ready For Blue Grass Stakes

LEXINGTON Ky (AP) — Nine thoroughbreds including the winners of three major stakes races, have been entered in Thursday s $50 000-added Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland

If all nine start in this last prep of more than a mile for the 101st Kentucky Derby the purse will gross $61 350 with $39 877 going to the winner

Avatar under the colors of Arthur A Seeligson Jr was top weighted at 126 pounds under the allowance conditions of the Blue Grass The Santa Anita Derby winner will have Bill Shoemaker aboard

Florida Derby hero Prince Thou Art and Louisiana Derby king Master Derby each will carry 123 pounds three less than the weight assigned to all horses in the Kentucky Derby

Also in the Blue Grass field are Wicked Park, Harvard Man Honey Mark, Ruggles Ferry, Sylvan Place and Decipher

Jack Mayhall s King Jody, an also-ran in six races since he won the Mountain Valley Handicap in February, was expected in the Blue Grass but has developed ankle trouble

Avvatar a chestnut son of Graustark, has won his last three races and has finished no worse than fourth in eight starts this season All of his races this year have been at a mile or more

Prince Thou Art half of a Darby Dan Farm entry with Sylvan Place, was second to Kentucky Derby favorite Foolish Pleasure in the Flamingo before winning the Florida Derby in easy fashion

Sylvan Place yet to win this season was second in the Florida Derby where Foolish Pleasure suffered the only defeat of his career finishing third

Master Derby owned by Mrs Robert E Lehmann s Golden Chance Farm has a winning streak of four all at more than a mile and two of them on tracks rated at less than fast

Grey clouds hovered over Keeneland as entries were taken for the 51st Blue Grass with the forecast calling for showers and thundershowers right up to the 4 30 p m EDT post time

My horses are bred to handle an off track trainer Lou Rondinello said of Prince Thou Art and Sylvan Place ' Both Graustark and Hail to Reason (their sires) were all right on an off track

Master Derby seeking to become the first Louisiana Derby winner to also capture the Kentucky Derby since Black Gold in 1924 drew the inside post position for the Blue Grass

Outside of him in order will be Harvard Man Wicked Park Honey Mark Prince Thou Art Decipher Avatar Ruggles Ferry and Sylan Place

The Blue Grass an eighth of a mile shorter than the May 3 Derby has produced eight of the past 13 Derby winners including four in a row in 1962-65

Injuries Curtail Scrimmage

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The fullback and I-back positions on the Nebraska football team have good depth in both talent and experience, but you couldn t have proved it by watching Wednesday s practice

"Our backs are pretty beat up," coach Tom Osborne said in explaining why the Cornhuskers didn't have their usual heavy mid-week scrimmage

Fullback Tony Davis didn't practice and Dodie Donnell had to quit early while I'back John O'Leary missed the workout and Byron Stewart also retired early

That explained why Monte Anthony, who runs at both positions, looked "bushed' at the end of the session He had to do a lot of ball-carrying along with I-back Dave Gillespie

The coaching staff used the practice as an evaluation session with Husker cameramen filming the action for future study

Instead of a scrimmage, there was a half-line workout to evaluate linemen on the running game and a live pass skeleton drill, also for evaluating both the pass rush and pass protection.

"The first offensive line is coming along," Osborne said "They played better in Sunday's scrimmage and it looked like they did well today

The virtually all new offensive line, especially the first unit, showed it is protecting the passers well, but Osborne said the Huskers don t have the depth there they ve had in past years

Freshman Steve Lindquist from Minneapolis has been moved from linebacker to offensive right guard "He wasn t a bad linebacker, but he wasn't coming up very fast," Osborne noted But he s physically capable of playing the offensive line

Lindquist is 6-6, weighs 240 and has 4 6 speed in the 40-yard dash

Another move designed to bolster the offensive line put Kelvin Clark at right tackle from defensive tackle He s a 6-4, 251-pound freshman from Odessa, Texas

Linebacker, another position where graduation took its toll, is coming along, but Osborne said "we're still not totally satisfied there Percy Eichelberger and Clete Pillen are playing better than the other because of their experience and Jim Wightman and Jeff Carpenter are showing good signs

Another linebacker who looked good before an injury sidelined him was Jim Belka He's expected to resume practice next Monday

Rivers For Everyone

If you ve never taken a daylong float trip down a river gone through a dozen nightcrawlers while fishing from a river bank taken a long walk or camped along a river lined with trees you haven t lived

Rivers are some of my favorite places All have their own personalities intamacies rewards for those who seek and can be a source of good times for everyone

I was born and raised in Iowa where river flood plains were public domain No fences blocked paths along river banks No barricades required portage and permission while floating down them for a camping fishing fun trip

Nebraska is different Nebraska has little or no public riverway system About seven miles of the Platte near Grand Island are public but the rest of our thousands of miles of riverways are in private ownership

Nebraska is rich in river systems having as much or more river mileage as any state in the nation But Nebraska is dirt poor in public recreational lands

We have a fine parks system a few national forest areas two national wilderness areas but all totaled only about 1 5 per cent of the land in Nebraska is available for non urban outdoor recreational use The rest is private

Nebraska has 23 686 miles of streams and riverways The river miles in public ownership can be counted on both hands The rest are private

Wasted Resources

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission plays a small part in the ownership of these public lands and rivers but the Commission may also be the only future hope for we river lovers

Minnesota s Department of Natural Resources recently went to bat for riverways in a state already rich in public waters with 15 000 lakes The state s legislature voted to acquire flood plain lands along certain riverways to guard against future development of the land by private interests and to provide river use and access to the public

The Upper Mississippi River a river which played a gigantic role in development of this country and among those considered for National Scenic Rivers System induction

Iowa also owns the largest share of the flood plains of its riverways So what does this all mean?

First the flood plain is a designated bank area which is considered within flooding range during a normal flood year or during a 10 25 or 100-year forecast

Second, the flood plains offer the potential for public use supreme Iowa has made extensive use of its riverways in the form of city parks, county parks, state parks, hiking trails, boating access points, you name it. Minnesota plans the same

The rivers in Iowa and Minnesota offer anyone interested the opportunity to pack a picnic lunch and head to the river for a little fishing You re trespassing in Nebraska without permission to do the same

It shouldn t be that way Nebraska s river waters are public but the banks are private Very few access points exist for canoers, boaters, hikers or backpackers

Recreation lands are at a premium and will be more so in the future Land costs are going up Lakes are expensive to develop and water recreation is a highly desireable trait for outdoor fun seekers

The riverways are there The flood plains would solve a few of our land shortage problems Let s consider this move toward expanded public river use in the not so distant future Our recreational needs demand it and rivers provide no better place to go

NCAA Approves China Trip

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Colleigiate Athletic Association gave the green light Wednesday to college athletes who wish to accompany the Amateur Athletic Union track and field team that will tour mainland China next month.

After a joint meeting with Joseph Scalzo, President of the AAU, Ollan Cassell, AAU executive director and Richard Harkins, secretary-treasurer, the NCAA council gave its approval, saying that the AAU officials had made it clear that the competition in China involves "a national team." That permitted waiver of an NCAA bylaw that prohibits collegiate athletes from competing on outside teams.

But Dr. John Fuzak, president of the NCAA, made it clear that the athletes involved would still have to be concerned with conference rules and rules of their individual institutions.

"As far as the NCAA rules are concerned, any college athlete may compete," said Fuzak. "But we believe they should be fully aware of the problems involved. There are conference meets, final exams and other problems. The individual athlete has the right to make that decision."

Fuzak said there had been "a lack of communication and a lack of understanding of the impact of the tour."

Until Wednesday's meeting, the AAU never had requested that its China team be identified as a national team.

The meeting between the NCAA and AAU came as a result of a letter that Fuzak sent to Scalzo expressing the collegiate body's concern. "We appreciate their cooperation and their appearance before our council," said Fuzak.

Fuzak said that other mutual problems of the two bodies had been discussed and that he felt the meeting had been "a positive step to try and resolve differences."

Fuzak emphasized that although the NCAA now was approving participation of the athletes, there might be other problems involved.

"In some cases, conference rules and rules of individual institutions are more restrictive than those of the NCAA," he said. "I cannot say what the likelihood of academic people objecting might be."

In effect, Wednesday's ruling permits athletes who will make the May 11-May 30 tour of China to still compete in the NCAA championships in June.

Sloan Shots Help Bulls Topple Kings, 101-89

By Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls blended Jerry Sloan's long and deadly corner shots with brilliant defense and methodically chopped down the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, 101-89, Wednesday night to clinch the Western Conference championship in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

In other NBA action — Bob McAdoo scored 37 points and Jim McMillian 20 as the Buffalo Braves beat the Washington Bullets 102-96 and tied their Eastern Conference semifinal series 3-3.

The seventh and deciding game will be played Friday night in Landover, Md.

In the ABA, Artis Gilmore scored 23 points and helped the Kentucky Colonels withstand a 43-point performance by Marvin Barnes to record a 108-103 victory over the Spirits of St. Louis and take a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Division semifinals 108-103.

The teams move to St. Louis for Games Three and Four in the best-of-seven series.

The Bulls, winning only their second playoff road game ever in 26 tests, took the series, 4-2.

The game turned into a brawl with eight minutes, 40 seconds left in the fourth period when the Bulls, who outshot, outplayed and outmuscled the Kings, led, 81-69.

The game was delayed for five minutes when a foul was called on the Kings' Sam Lacey.

The spectators showered ice, cups and cans of deoderant which had been given away free outside the arena.

The Bulls went en masse as a team into the stands to confront a loud heckler, but were restrained before reaching him.

The Kings could never get closer than seven points after that.

This came on a layup by Nate "Tiny" Archibald, who stole the ball and dropped it in with 2:07 remaining, making the score 92-85.

Immediately thereafter, Tom Boerwinkle hit a field goal and converted it into a three-point play, opening up a 95-85 gap again.

The Bulls, who led, 50-44, at the half, held the Kings to six points during the first 5½ minutes of the third quarter and took turns firing away until they had forged an 11-point advantage.

Sloan made only 16 points, but all of tem came on long field goals at times when the Kings threatened to pull away in the first quarter and made bids to catch up in the second quarter.

Archibald and Bob Love, who peppered the basket at other crucial times, each made 26 points to tie for game-scoring honors.

The Bulls, who trailed much of the first quarter, began to pull away when reserve Bob Wilson sank four consecutive free throws and a field goal, breaking a tie and putting Chicago ahead, 29-24.

The Kings never closed it to closer than four points the rest of the first half and with 45 seconds before the intermission the Bulls enjoyed a 50-41 lead.

A free throw by Rick Adelman, coupled with Lacey's 35-footer at the halftime gun, left the Kings behind by six points.

During the first half, Sloan, the brawnyswing man from Evansville, connected on six-of-nine shots from the floor, and when Sloan was finally put under heavy guard, Love started banging away.

During the first 24 minutes, Archibald, guarded by Norm Van Lier, made 23 points for the Kings, and no other Kansas City player was able to connect in double figures.

Boston Hits Hunter, Yankees, 11-7

By United Press International

Bob Montgomery's two-run double capped a five-run seventh inning outburst that knocked out Catfish Hunter and carried the Boston Red Sox to an 11-7 win over the New York Yankees Wednesday.

Hunter, winless since coming to the Yankees, was sailing along with a 7-3 lead on a fourhitter until pinch hitter Cecil Cooper tripled to open the seventh inning for Boston. When Bernie Carbo singled, reliever Sparky Lyle replaced Hunter, giving up a walk to Dwight Evans and RBI singles to Fred Lynn and Jim Wright that cut the Yankees lead to 76. Dick Tidrow replaced Lyle and was greeted by Montgomery's wrong-field double.

Boston scored three more runs in eighth when Tidrow walked Juan Beniquez, Carbo and Evans, and Lynn blasted a double off reliever Larry Gura, driving in all three.

In other AL action, Cleveland edged Detroit 4-3 and Chicago at Minnesota was rained out.

Jack Brohamer, who hit a homer, and George Hendrick each drove in two runs to give the Indians a rain-delayed win over the Tigers.

Tom Buskey took over after a 65-minute rain delay and protected Jim Perry's first victory of the season with three shutout innings of relief.

Gary Sutherland and Bill Freehan homered for Detroit.

Baltimore was at Milwaukee, Texas at California and Kansas City at Oakland in night games.

Veteran lefthander Woody Fryman of Montreal shut out Pittsburgh for the second time in a row Wednesday, stopping the Pirates on seven hits for a 5-0 victory.

It was Montreal's fourth victory in as many games with Pittsburgh this season.

Fryman, a former Pirate obtained from the Detroit Tigers in an off-season deal, struck out nine, walked two and hit a batter.

The Expos took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Tim Foli walked, stole second and scored when Rennie Stennett was unable to pick up Barry Foote's grounder for an error.

Montreal added four more runs in the second inning with the help of a passed ball, an error and RBI singles by Fryman, Pepe Mangual and Mike Jorgensen.

In other NL games, Chicago bombed Philadelphia 9-3 and New York defeated St. Louis 7-1.

Bill Madlock drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a single and George Mitterwald and Rick Monday homered to lead the Cubs over the Phillies.

Rusty Staub hit his sixth career grand slam to climax a six-run New York fifth inning and Tom Seaver pitched a four-hitter as the Mets routed the Cardinals.

Seaver, now 2-2, permitted base runners in only three innings and struck out seven while allowing only one walk.

"My horses are bred to handle an off track," trainer Lou Rondinello said of Prince Thou Art and Sylvan Place. "Both Graustark and Hail to Reason (their sires) were all right on an off track."

Master Derby, seeking to become the first Louisiana Derby winner to also capture the Kentucky Derby since Black Gold in 1924, drew the inside post position for the Blue Grass.

Outside of him, in order, will be Harvard Man, Wicked Park, Honey Mark, Prince Thou Art, Decipher, Avatar, Ruggles Ferry and Sylan Place.

The Blue Grass, an eighth of a mile shorter than the May 3 Derby, has produced eight of the past 13 Derby winners, including four in a row in 1962-65.

Harvard Man, owned by Max Gluck's Elmendorf Farm, has run in only one other stakes this season, finishing 10th in the Everglades. He hasn't won any of his five races in 1975.

Wicked Park, owned by Anthony Tornetta's Gladwyne Stable, has won half of his dozen starts this year, including the Survivor and Militia Stakes. He was a $13,000 claimer when the year began.

Induction Set For 4 Bowlers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Four Nebraskans will be the first bowlers inducted into the Nebraska Men's Bowling Hall of Fame in September at Scottsbluff.

They are Dick Winkelman of Omaha, the only Nebraskan to become president of the American Bowling Congress; Bernie Kossek of Lincoln and Fred Cusick of Fremont, both current vice presidents of the Nebraska Men's Bowling Association, and the late Ralph "Hap" Hefflinger.

Hefflinger, who died in 1968, was a Douglas County commissioner who was president of both the Omaha and Nebraska men's associations.

NWU Women Sweep Peru

Peru — The Nebraska Wesleyan's women's softball team raised its record to 3-0 here Wednesday by sweeping a doubleheader from Peru State, 6-4 and 9-6.

Cashman Stable To Ak

Omaha — From his seat on the Chicago Board of Trade, E. C. Cashman is involved in buying and selling every day.

He also buys horses, as evidenced by his shopping spree in Florida this winter. During meetings at Calder, Gulfstream and Hialeah, trainer W. A. Fabry bought or claimed more than 30 horses for Cashman at a total cost between $300,000 and $400,000.

"He believes in buying quality horses," Fabry said this week while preparing his stable for the opening of Ak-Sar-Ben's 56-day meeting Tuesday.

"He has quality not only in the horses we bought in Florida, but he also has 62 two-year-olds which average $20,000 each," Fabry added. "We are racing in New York, California, Kentucky and Chicago in addition to here. Some of the horses we got in Florida have gone to those tracks."

Cashman, a former policeman, is not a newcomer to racing, as Fabry estimates the Chicagoan has had horses for almost 20 years.

Fabry flew his stable here from Florida rather than subjecting his horses to a gruelling 38-hour van ride.

"The plane ride was only 3½ hours," he explained, "and all but one came out of the trip earger to hit the racetrack. If we had vanned them here, it probably would have taken a week or 10 days for them to settle back into their training routine. By the time they were ready to run we might have missed a week or two of the meet.

"Now the only problem we have is adjusting to the weather. We came out of 80-90 degree temperatures an it's only been in the 30's and 40's here."

Two Florida claims are being primed for opening week features.

Red Drifter, a $19,000 claim at Calder, will go in Tuesday's $10,000 Inaugural Purse. The $25,000-added Beef State Handicap next Saturday is expected to draw Ride the Curl, a $30,000 claim at Hialeah.

Others haltered in Florida include: Kuryakin, $35,000; Very Masterful, $35,000; and Great Commander, $12,500. Cashman also bought Money Penny, a promising three-year-old filly which had run for $25,000 claim before stepping up to allowance competition.

SHORT STOPS . . . Lyman Rollins has his entire stable here after dividing time between Ak-Sar-Ben and Denver during the past several years. Stable leaders include Ultra Energy, winner of seven races and $30,000 as a two-year-old; Irish, winner of two stakes in Phoenix; and Brush Cutter, who missed most of 194 but has been training well this year . . . C. E. Nicholas returns with six two-year-olds sired by 1969 Omaha Gold Cup winner Might . . . Ak-Sar-Gen's 1974 juvenile champion, Ribot Bandit, has been training well under Walter Pope . . . Neil Durick of Council Bluffs claimed Delineation from Dan Lasater for $13,500 at Oaklawn and has continued to move him up successfully.

NU Group Gives Case

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney, football coach Tom Osborne and three football players appeared before the NCAA council Wednesday at Kansas City presenting their appeal to a ruling by the infractions committee concerning player appearances in last year's Sugar Bowl football game at New Orleans.

It is rumored that among the players involved are Jim Burrow, who transfered to NU from the University of Mississippi and Dean Gissler, a transfer from the Air Force Academy. They apparently are involved in a case regarding their eligibilty to attend the Orange Bowl football game three years ago.

The current case involves Vince Ferragamo and Ray Phillips, who attended, but did not play in last December's Sugar Bowl game.

The Nebraska group is appealing a ruling which allegedly suspended Ferragamo and Phillips for one game of the fall season.

The NCAA Council, which has final jurisdiction in the matter, did not announce its decision.

UNL, Kearney Split Twin Bill

The Nebraska women's softball team and Kearney split a doubleheader Wednesday with the Capital City team winning the first game, 6-5, while losing the second, 8-2.

The UNL team, now 7-3, will play Friday in a doubleheader at Wahoo against JFK.

UNL 6-2, Kearney 5-8

FIRST GAME

Hanson Gets Holdrege Post

Holdrege — Roger Hanson, who coached Lexington to its first state basketball tournament appearance in 17 years in 1974, was named head basketball coach at Holdrege High School here Wednesday.

Hanson, whose team finished runnerup to Lincoln Pius X in the Class B title game that year, spent the past year farming in Lesterville, S.D.

The Southern (S.D.) State at Springfield graduate replaces Dan Arnold, who resigned last February.

Hanson coached at Wakonda, Jefferson and Tyndall — all in South Dakota — before moving to Lexington three years ago.

Injuries Curtail Scrimmage

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The fullback and I-back positions on the Nebraska football team have good depth in both talent and experience, but you couldn't have proved it by watching Wednesday's practice.

"Our backs are pretty beat up," coach Tom Osborne said in explaining why the Cornhuskers didn't have their usual heavy mid-week scrimmage.

Fullback Tony Davis didn't practice and Dodie Donnell had to quit early while I'back John O'Leary missed the workout and Byron Stewart also retired early.

That explained why Monte Anthony, who runs at both positions, looked "bushed" at the end of the session. He had to do a lot of ball-carrying along with I-back Dave Gillespie.

The coaching staff used the practice as an evaluation session with Husker cameramen filming the action for future study.

Instead of a scrimmage, there was a half-line workout to evaluate linemen on the running game and a live pass skeleton drill, also for evaluating both the pass rush and pass protection.

"The first offensive line is coming along," Osborne said. "They played better in Sunday's scrimmage and it looked like they did well today."

The virtually all new offensive line, especially the first unit, showed it is protecting the passers well, but Osborne said the Huskers don't have the depth there they've had in past years.

Freshman Steve Lindquist from Minneapolis has been moved from linebacker to offensive right guard. "He wasn't a bad linebacker, but he wasn't coming up very fast," Osborne noted. "But he's physically capable of playing the offensive line."

Lindquist is 6-6, weighs 240 and has 4.6 speed in the 40-yard dash.

Another move designed to bolster the offensive line put Kelvin Clark at right tackle from defensive tackle. He's a 6-4, 251-pound freshman from Odessa, Texas.

Linebacker, another position where graduation took its toll, is coming along, but Osborne said "we're still not totally satisfied there. Percy Eichelberger and Clete Pillen are playing better than the other because of their experience and Jim Wightman and Jeff Carpenter are showing good signs."

Another linebacker who looked good before an injury sidelined him was Jim Belka. He's expected to resume practice next Monday.

Rivers For Everyone

If you've never taken a daylong float trip down a river, gone through a dozen nightcrawlers while fishing from a river bank, taken a long walk or camped along a river lined with trees, you haven't lived.

Rivers are some of my favorite places. All have their own personalities, intamacies, rewards for those who seek and can be a source of good times for everyone.

I was born and raised in Iowa where river flood plains were public domain. No fences blocked paths along river banks. No baricades required portage and permission while floating down them for a camping/fishing/fun trip.

Nebraska is different. Nebraska has little or no public riverway system. About seven miles of the Platte near Grand Island are public but the rest of our thousands of miles of riverways are in private ownership.

Nebraska is rich in river systems, having as much or more river mileage as any state in the nation. But Nebraska is dirt poor in public recreational lands.

We have a fine parks system, a few national forest areas, two national wilderness areas but all totaled, only about 1.5 per cent of the land in Nebraska is available for non-urban outdoor recreational use. The rest is private.

Nebraska has 23,686 miles of streams and riverways. The river miles in public ownership can be counted on both hands The rest are private.

Wasted Resources

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission plays a small part in the ownership of these public lands and rivers, but the Commission may also be the only future hope for we river lovers.

Minnesota's Department of Natural Resources recently went to bat for riverways in a state already rich in public waters with 15,000 lakes. The state's legislature voted to acquire flood plain lands along certain riverways to guard against future development of the land by private interests and to provide river use and access to the public.

The Upper Mississippi River, a river which played a gigantic role in development of this country and among those considered for National Scenic Rivers System induction.

Iowa also owns the largest share of the flood plains of its riverways. So what does this all mean?

First, the flood plain is a designated bank area which is considered within flooding range during a normal flood year or during a 10, 25 or 100-year forecast.

Second, the flood plains offer the potential for public use supreme. Iowa has made extensive use of its riverways in the form of city parks, county parks, state parks, hiking trails, boating access points, you name it. Minnesota plans the same.

The rivers in Iowa and Minnesota offer anyone interested the opportunity to pack a picnic lunch and head to the river for a little fishing. You're trespassing in Nebraska without permission to do the same.

It shouldn't be that way. Nebraska's river waters are public but the banks are private. Very few access points exist for canoers, boaters, hikers or backpackers.

Recreation lands are at a premium and will be more so in the future. Land costs are going up. Lakes are expensive to develop and water recreation is a highly desireable trait for outdoor fun seekers.

The riverways are there. The flood plains would solve a few of our land shortage problems. Let's consider this move toward expanded public river use in the not so distant future. Our recreational needs demand it and rivers provide no better place to go.

Gruver Sets National Mark

Pending National Rifle Association authentication, Lincoln s Grantland Gruver may be the holder of a new national record for high power rifle marksmanship

Shooting in the serviceman category of the Nebraska State Special 100-yard High Power Rifle Championship at the Lincoln Izaak Walton League Sunday Gruver shot a 493 out of 500 with 21 x s

The previous mark was held by C A Pearson of Madison, Tenn , with 489-26x

Surface Difference Settled

LAS VEGAS, Nev (UPI) — A hassle over the type of surface for the Saturday's $250,000 tennis match between Jimmy Connors and John Newcombe was settled Wednesday

The present surface on the indoor court at Caesars Palace Tennis Pavilion will remain in place for the best three-of-five sets match, it was announced after a private meeting among the principals.

"The hotel is very happy the way things turned out," said Sidney Gathrid, special events director for Caesars Palace who presided at the meeting

Also present were Connors and his manager Bill Riordan and Newcombe and his manager Clarence Mabry

Connors called a news conference Tuesday to complain about the fast surface and wanted a rougher and slower one installed Riordan threatened legal action but backed down during the meeting

It was much the same situation as occurred before Connors beat Rod Laver here last February in a $100,000 match Then, too, it was Gathrid who achieved a compromise when Riordan and Pancho Gonzalez, director of tennis at Caesars, clashed over selection of officials

Connors had no complaints then about the surface which is a brand called Supreme Court and is a synthetic substance laid like a rug on the floor

The bookies here have made Connors, 22, a 7-5 favorite over the 30-year-old Newcombe despite the fact that the Australian has won their three meetings

Newcombe arrived here last week to start practicing, the same routine Laver used to no avail

Connors again was a later arrival, coming in Tuesday with the blast at the court's surface

K-State To Cut Athletic Budget

Manhattan, Kan (AP) — The athletic department at Kansas State University is scrutinizing its budget in search of a way to cut $100,000 in expenses for 1975-76 operations

Brad Rothermel, assistant athletic director, said Tuesday the Kansas State Athletic Council has ordered $100,000 cut from the proposed $2-million budget

We ll have to stand back and look at each item on the budget and do the best we possibly can to eliminate expenses related to our programs, Rothermel said.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASKETBALL

David Thompson, all-America forward from North Carolina State, won the fourth annual Adolph Rupp Trophy as the nation's outstanding college basketball player. Bill Walton won the trophy the first three years it was awarded.

Ray R. Evans, board chairman of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, will appear in federal court Friday for arraignment on charges of conspiring to misapply bank funds.

Lee Rose, who made Transylvania College an NCAA Division II basketball power, will be named head basketball coach and athletic director at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Bill Wall switched from the NBA to the Amateur Basketball Association of the United States in the capacity of executive secretary.

Steve Schall, 6-11, 230, of Kansas City, signed a national basketball letter of intent with Arkansas, according to Razorback coach Eddie Sutton.

Dean Weese, coach of the Wayland Baptist College Flying Queens, defending women's national AAU champions, was named coach of the AAU all-star basketball team that will play eight games in the Soviet Union this summer.

TRACK

Art Hall, a 28-year-old dental technician from Staten Island, won the third annual Penn Relay Marathon. His time of 2:27:32 set a meet record.

Drake athletic officials announced that tickets for the Saturday session of the Drake Relays have been sold out, but there are 2,000 tickets remaining for the Friday session. A sellout is 18,000 tickets.

In the Drake Relays decathalon, Fred Dixon of the Beverly Hills Striders led through the first half with a 4,266 point total. Steve Gough of Club Northwest was second with 4.058 points.

Distance runner Glenn Herold, a former University of Wisconsin star now running for the Chicago Track Club, has turned down a chance to compete with the AAU team scheduled to tour China because he said he was having "too good an outdoor season to leave for China."

FOOTBALL

A $1.6 million scoreboard capable of showing instant replays is scheduled for installation in the Orange Bowl in time for the post-season bowl game next year.

Pittsburgh Steeler running back Reggie Harrison, former record-setting rusher for University of Cincinnati, has been granted a court continuance on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest on his old campus.

Fran Monaco, former Jacksonville Sharks owner of the WFL, filed a multi-million dollar suit against the league, alleging unfair trade restriction.

BOXING

Heavyweight boxer Ron Stander of Council Bluffs pleaded guilty to breaking and entering an adult bookstore.

Muhammad Ali may fight former titleholder Joe Frazier, but it won't be in Madison Square Garden. Ali was offered $3 million for a Garden fight with Frazier, but turned it down because it wasn't enough.

Ali will fight two exhibition matches for charity in Orlando, Fla. against ninth-ranked Rodney Bobick and sparring partner Levi Forte. Both will be three-round matches.

Gruver Sets National Mark

Pending National Rifle Association authentication, Lincoln's Grantland Gruver may be the holder of a new national record for high power rifle marksmanship.

Shooting in the serviceman category of the Nebraska State Special 100-yard High Power Rifle Championship at the Lincoln Izaak Walton League Sunday, Gruver shot a 493 out of 500 with 21 x's.

The previous mark was held by C. A. Pearson of Madison, Tenn., with 489-26x.

Surface Difference Settled

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A hassle over the type of surface for the Saturday's $250,000 tennis match between Jimmy Connors and John Newcombe was settled Wednesday.

The present surface on the indoor court at Caesars Palace Tennis Pavilion will remain in place for the best three-of-five sets match, it was announced after a private meeting among the principals.

"The hotel is very happy the way things turned out," said Sidney Gathrid, special events director for Caesars Palace who presided at the meeting.

Also present were Connors and his manager Bill Riordan and Newcombe and his manager Clarence Mabry.

Connors called a news conference Tuesday to complain about the fast surface and wanted a rougher and slower one installed. Riordan threatened legal action but backed down during the meeting.

It was much the same situation as occurred before Connors beat Rod Laver here last February in a $100,000 match. Then, too, it was Gathrid who achieved a compromise when Riordan and Pancho Gonzalez, director of tennis at Caesars, clashed over selection of officials.

Connors had no complaints then about the surface which is a brand called Supreme Court and is a synthetic substance laid like a rug on the floor.

The bookies here have made Connors, 22, a 7-5 favorite over the 30-year-old Newcombe despite the fact that the Australian has won their three meetings.

Newcombe arrived here last week to start practicing, the same routine Laver used to no avail.

Connors again was a later arrival, coming in Tuesday with the blast at the court's surface.

K-State To Cut Athletic Budget

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — The athletic department at Kansas State University is scrutinizing its budget in search of a way to cut $100,000 in expenses for 1975-76 operations.

Brad Rothermel, assistant athletic director, said Tuesday the Kansas State Athletic Council has ordered $100,000 cut from the proposed $2-million budget.

"We'll have to stand back and look at each item on the budget and do the best we possibly can to eliminate expenses related to our programs," Rothermel said.

Queen's Turn Wins Feature

Grand Island — The Kemling Brothers Inc's Queen's Turn scored her first 1975 victory here Wednesday in the featured seventh race at Fonner Park

Ridden by Rodolfo Calderon, the 4-year-old filly overtook pacesetting Jeff's Van on the far turn and drew off to win by nine lengths. The win was the first this year for the former Fonner juvenile champion in three starts

She tallied a 1:06 clocking for the 5½ furlongs on a track rated as slow

Queen's Turn returned $10.40, $3.80 and $2.80. Lillian Simon's Vagabond Queen placed for $2.60 and $2.40 while Mr and Mrs Nial Tidball's Kota Call showed for $3.00

Leading trainer Don Von Hemel scored his 36th win of the meet when he saddled D R Coberly's Solid Mix ($4.80) for a sixth-race victory

NFL May Get CFL Rookie

Toronto (AP) — The Canadian Football League's rookie of the year in 1974 could be in the National Football League in 1976

Sam Cvijanovich, the Toronto Argonauts' outstanding middle linebacker, is threatening to play out his option

The 6-1, 225-pounder already has rejected a new three-year contract offered by the CFL team and his agent, Judge Ed Gottlieb, said two NFL teams — the Kansas City Chiefs and the San Diego Chargers — have expressed interest in Cvijanovich

Koontz Stretches Discus Lead, Takes Over Class A Shot Put

Lincoln High's Pam Koontz, who continues to close in on Nebraska's all-time discus leader Judy Johnson with weekly improvement, has shown another strong suit, the shot put

In a Tuesday dual meet with Fremont, Koontz fired the shot 40-5 to take over the Class A lead from crosstown rival Debbie Raddatz of Lincoln Northeast.

Koontz, however, yields the overall lead to Dorchester's Jeanne Boller who launched a throw of 41-4½, ranking her fifth on the all-time charts behind Raddatz' 1974 mark of 42-2.

Boller is 6-foot-3 and a Sunday Journal and Star all-state basketball selection

Koontz, an all-state volleyball standout, increased her lead in the discus to nearly six feet better than her closest competitor with a toss of 131-3 in the Lincoln Public Schools championships last Saturday

Koontz is only the second Nebraska schoolgirl to surpass the 130 foot mark.

Johnson, a former Lincoln High trackster, still holds the overall all-time best with 132-8½

Other field event leaders for this week include Battle Creek's Kim Hunt with a 5-6 high jump and Aurora's Sandra Obermeier in the long jump with a mark of 18-8¾

On the track, Liz Lee of Grand Island, Janet Sjolander, Bayard and Omaha Northwest's Pam Nicas head a three-way logjam in the 100 with 11.1 clockings.

North Platte's Cindy Tatum (220), Danis Richards of Benkelman (440), Norfolk's Deb Arter (880) and Nancy Kindig of Hastings St. Cecilia (80 hurdles) are the other individual leaders.

Hastings St Cecilia holds the lead in two of the three relays, 440 and 880, while Scottsbluff holds the mile relay best.

Tallahassee Meet Set

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A field of 147 golfers, most of them seeking their first victory on the professional golf tour, are scheduled to tee off Thursday in the $60,000 Tallahassee Open

The cast is as little known as the tournament itself, overshadowed by the $200,000 Tournament of Champions at La Costa, Calif

Only non-winners of the past year are playing in Tallahassee, where first prize is a modest $12,000

Few big names have appeared in this tournament. An exception was in 1971, when Lee Trevino made the event a starting point for his sensational year

As usual, there is no clear-cut favorite One prospect appears to be Wally Armstrong, who bogeyed on the final two holes in last week's Pensacola Open and blew a chance for his first title

Armstrong also was an early leader in the Doral Open in Miami earlier this year

Also given a good chance is Mike Morley, low qualifier Monday with a six-under-par 66 on the 7,124-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club course

Morley was runner-up in the Jacksonville Open and the Magnolia Classic, a satellite event concurrent with the Masters two weeks ago

Others in the field include 1972 winner Bob Shaw, Ray Floyd, who won nearly $120,000 last year, and Joe Inman and Eddie Pearce, runners-up here last year

Host professional Joe Donadio predicted that a 12-under-par 276 would win the 72-hole event

"Morley's 66 Monday was a great round," said Donadio "I don't think they're be that many great rounds"

Queen's Turn Wins Feature

Grand Island — The Kemling Brothers Inc's Queen's Turn scored her first 1975 victory here Wednesday in the featured seventh race at Fonner Park.

Ridden by Rodolfo Calderon, the 4-year-old filly overtook pacesetting Jeff's Van on the far turn and drew off to win by nine lengths. The win was the first this year for the former Fonner juvenile champion in three starts.

She tallied a 1:06 clocking for the 5½ furlongs on a track rated as slow.

Queen's Turn returned $10.40, $3.80 and $2.80. Lillian Simon's Vagabond Queen placed for $2.60 and $2.40 while Mr. and Mrs. Nial Tidball's Kota Call showed for $3.00.

Leading trainer Don Von Hemel scored his 36th win of the meet when he saddled D. R. Coberly's Solid Mix ($4.80) for a sixth-race victory.

Omaha Tops In Table Tennis

The LTTA 4-Person Team Invitational Table Tennis Classic was held Sunday at the University of Nebraska Student Union Centennial Room with ten teams of Nebraska and Iowa players entered in two classes. Taking top honors in Class A was the Omaha All-Stars. The All-Stars are composed of Steve Flansburg, Tom Walsh, Jim Lynum, and Diana Meyers, the eighth ranked woman in the United States.

Leading Class B was the Wisner B-1 team. Members are Scott Peterson, Randy Hall, Dick Landkamer, and Dirk Peterson.

Co-sponsored by the Lincoln Table Tennis Association and the University of Nebraska — Nebraska Union, the tournament was a round robin event, with 11 match points necessary for a team to win a match. Of the 40 players entered, none went undefeated.

Results:

Class A: Omaha All-Stars 11, Omaha Underhogs 2; Wisner "A" 11, UNL "A" 10; Omaha All-Stars 11, UNL "A" 6; Omaha Underhogs 11, Wisner "A" 9; Omaha Underhogs 11, UNL "A" 5; Omaha All-Stars 11, Wisner "A" 3.

NFL May Get CFL Rookie

Toronto (AP) — The Canadian Football League's rookie of the year in 1974 could be in the National Football League in 1976.

Sam Cvijanovich, the Toronto Argonauts' outstanding middle linebacker, is threatening to play out his option.

The 6-1, 225-pounder already has rejected a new three-year contract offered by the CFL team and his agent, Judge Ed Gottlieb, said two NFL teams — the Kansas City Chiefs and the San Diego Chargers — have expressed interest in Cvijanovich.

LPGA Duo In Omaha

Omaha — LPGA tour winners Jane Blalock and Amy Alcott will hold a golf clinic and an 18-hole exhibition here May 13 at Benson Park.

The event will be a benefit for the Nebraska Children's Home. Lincoln's Dorothy Schwartzkopf and Christie Schwartzkopf Travnicek of Wilber will complete the foursome.

Koontz Stretches Discus Lead, Takes Over Class A Shot Put

Lincoln High's Pam Koontz, who continues to close in on Nebraska's all-time discus leader Judy Johnson with weekly improvement, has shown another strong suit, the shot put.

In a Tuesday dual meet with Fremont, Koontz fired the shot 40-5 to take over the Class A lead from crosstown rival Debbie Raddatz of Lincoln Northeast.

Koontz, however, yields the overall lead to Dorchester's Jeanne Boller who launched a throw of 41-4½, ranking her fifth on the all-time charts behind Raddatz' 1974 mark of 42-2.

Boller is 6-foot-3 and a Sunday Journal and Star all-state basketball selection.

Koontz, an all-state volleyball standout, increased her lead in the discus to nearly six feet better than her closest competitor with a toss of 131-3 in the Lincoln Public Schools championships last Saturday.

Koontz is only the second Nebraska schoolgirl to surpass the 130 foot mark.

Johnson, a former Lincoln High trackster, still holds the overall all-time best with 132-8½.

Other field event leaders for this week include Battle Creek's Kim Hunt with a 5-6 high jump and Aurora's Sandra Obermeier in the long jump with a mark of 18-8¾.

On the track, Liz Lee of Grand Island, Janet Sjolander, Bayard and Omaha Northwest's Pam Nicas head a three-way logjam in the 100 with :11.1 clockings.

North Platte's Cindy Tatum (220), Danis Richards of Benkelman (440), Norfolk's Deb Arter (880) and Nancy Kindig of Hastings St. Cecilia (80 hurdles) are the other individual leaders.

Hastings St. Cecilia holds the lead in two of the three relays, 440 and 880, while Scottsbluff holds the mile relay best.

Tallahassee Meet Set

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A field of 147 golfers, most of them seeking their first victory on the professional golf tour, are scheduled to tee off Thursday in the $60,000 Tallahassee Open.

The cast is as little known as the tournament itself, overshadowed by the $200,000 Tournament of Champions at La Costa, Calif.

Only non-winners of the past year are playing in Tallahassee, where first prize is a modest $12,000.

Few big names have appeared in this tournament. An exception was in 1971, when Lee Trevino made the event a starting point for his sensational year.

As usual, there is no clear-cut favorite. One prospect appears to be Wally Armstrong, who bogeyed on the final two holes in last week's Pensacola Open and blew a chance for his first title. Armstrong also was an early leader in the Doral Open in Miami earlier this year.

Also given a good chance is Mike Morley, low qualifier Monday with a six-under-par 66 on the 7,124-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club course.

Morley was runner-up in the Jacksonville Open and the Magnolia Classic, a satellite event concurrent with the Masters two weeks ago.

Others in the field include 1972 winner Bob Shaw; Ray Floyd, who won nearly $120,000 last year, and Joe Inman and Eddie Pearce, runners-up here last year.

Host professional Joe Donadio predicted that a 12-under-par 276 would win the 72-hole event.

"Morley's 66 Monday was a great round," said Donadio. "I don't think they're be that many great rounds."

Tournament Set

Wymore — The Wymore Country Club will hold its annual open golf tournament here May 4 with the field limited to the first 100 entries and information available from Duane Stokebrand, Blue Springs State Bank, Blue Springs.

Another 4 For Handicap

Mark Gordon's graded entries picked four winners on Wednesday's nine-race program at Fonner Park. It was the third consecutive day the graded handicap has selected four winners.

Winners included Little Sandbagger ($4.60), Martini Toast ($3.60), Master Madison ($6.00) and Queen's Turn ($10.40).

Mark Gordon's Graded Entries For Fonner

Graded entries by the Lincoln Star handicapper are listed in order of expected finish with odds indicating handicapper's opinion of relative strengths of horse.

Poindexter To Challenge Legality Of Police Search

Attorneys for Edward Poindexter argued Wednesday that he should have the right to challenge the constitutionality of a search that turned up evidence used in his conviction in the suitcase bomb slaying of an Omaha policeman.

The hearing in U.S. District Court before Judge Warren K. Urbom was a preliminary to a May 2 hearing on Poindexter's request that he be released from prison or retried.

Poindexter's attorneys want to raise the constitutionality of the search as an issue during the May 2 hearing. The state is resisting that move, and the situation led to the preliminary hearing.

Urbom has already ordered the release or retrial of David Rice, the other man convicted of first degree murder in the killing.

In that decision Urbom said that police did not have sufficient reason to search Rice's home and that the search violated Rice's Fourth Amendment rights.

The Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the ruling and the state has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case. In the hearing Wednesday attorney Allan Saltzman argued that Poindexter did not waive his rights to challenge the search of Rice home under the Fourth Amendment when the case went through the lower courts.

Police found dynamite in the Rice home and it was later used as evidence in the trial of both men.

Assistant State Atty. Gen. Mel Kammerlohr, however, argued that Poindexter's attorneys had made an effort during the trial to have the dynamite thrown out as evidence.

Because of that, Kammerlohr contended, Poindexter should not now be able to raise the issue of whether the search violated his rights.

Saltzman wants to argue that Poindexter's rights were violated by the search because Poindexter had a key to the Rice home, sometimes stayed there and kept personal property there.

Store Kraft Recalls 11 Laid Off

Beatrice — Store Kraft Mfg. Co. has announced the recall of 11 of the 57 production workers who were laid off last fall due to lack of work. Normally production is slack during the winter, picking up in late spring and continuing into summer, a company spokesman explained. However, he said the 1975 peak production is not expected to hit last year's peak level.

Overton To Vote On Fluoridation

Overton — In a special election here Tuesday, May 6, voters will decide whether or not fluorides will be added to the town's water supply. The election is the result of a petition signed by more than 20% of the registered voters in Overton.

Writers To Honor Mrs. Yost

North Platte — The prestigious Golden Saddleman Award will be presented to Nellie S. Yost of North Platte by the Western Writers of America when the group convenes in Carson City, Nev., for its convention in June. Author of many stories and articles dealing with Nebraska's history, Mrs. Yost is a former president of both the Nebraska Historical Society and the Nebraska Writers Guild.

Norfolk Teachers To Get Salary Hike

Norfolk — Following action by the Norfolk Board of Education with approval of the Norfolk City Education Association, the base salary for teachers in the public schools here will increase by $563 for the 1975-76 year. The base salary will go up from the present $7,337 to $7,900.

Creighton University Only $4 Million Short Of Goal

Omaha (AP) — The Greater Omaha campaign of Creighton University's Centennial Thrust-Phase II has reached more than $12 million, or 75% of its goal, campaign chairman Ben Morris announced during a news conference Wednesday.

In addition to making the progress report, Morris announced plans for a recreation center on the campus.

Morris said Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kiewit of Omaha have contributed a major designated gift to Creighton and that contributions from the Kiewits and others will allow the school to go ahead with the construction of a $3 million multipurpose physical education and recreation building.

The new building will be called Kiewit Center and will house a swimming pool, jogging track, bowling alleys and various other athletic facilities, along with administrative offices for the university's physical education department.

The Rev. Joseph Labaj, S.J., Creighton president, said he hopes construction on the new center will begin next fall.

Officials Probe Woman's Death

Rushville (AP) — Sheridan County authorities Wednesday were investigating the death of Charlene Short Bull, 22, of Rushville.

Officials said her body was found next to a relative's house here Monday night. An autopsy has been ordered.

The sheriff's office said they were not able to determine circumstances that led to the woman's death.

Taylor To Give NWU Address

American philosopher Dr. Richard Taylor, of the University of Rochester at New York, will visit the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus Thursday and Friday.

During the two days he will meet with students in classes and informally in living units. His public convocation address at 10 a.m. Friday will be in the Olin Science lecture hall.

Rising To Speak

The Cornhusker Republican Women's Club will meet on Friday at First Federal Savings and Loan, 1235 N St., at 9:30 a.m. The speaker will be Col. Lucien E. Rising frm the University of Nebraska ROTC. His topic will be "America's Security Position in the '70s." The session is open to the public.

Former Ogallala Woman Killed In Germany

Ogallala (UPI) — A former Ogallala resident has been found stabbed to death in a U.S. Army women's barracks in Germany.

Relatives of Spec. 4 Cynthia Vasa Dickey, 20, were told this week her death occurred last week while Mrs. Dickey was on guard duty in the barracks.

She and her husband, Carl, were married March 8. Dickey also is a soldier stationed in Germany.

Dickey told relatives that his wife's apparent assailant was seen running from the barracks but no suspect has been arrested.

Mrs. Dickey was born in Ogallala in 1954 and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Vasa, Rock Springs, Wyo.

No Pencil Pusher

Polk (AP) — Edoff Erickson of Polk saves pens and pencils.

The retired 79-year-old trucker has 2,500 of them collected over a 25-year period.

The hobby began as he hauled livestock from Polk County to Grand Island, York, Omaha and other markets. As he collected pencils, he mounted them on a plywood board.

The word got around to friends who began looking for additions to the collection.

Erickson later joined the American Pencil Collector's Society and began exchanging duplicates with other members around the country.

Some of the pencils are unusual. One is a working yo-yo. Another writes five colors at the same time.

One pencil claims to contain atomic power and another has fertilizer in it. Another is a "fooler" pencil. It's made of rubber and curls over when you try to write with it.

Poindexter To Challenge Legality Of Police Search

Attorneys for Edward Poindexter argued Wednesday that he should have the right to challenge the constitutionality of a search that turned up evidence used in his conviction in the suitcase bomb slaying of an Omaha policeman.

The hearing in U.S. District Court before Judge Warren K. Urbom was a preliminary to a May 2 hearing on Poindexter's request that he be released from prison or retried.

Poindexter's attorneys want to raise the constitutionality of the search as an issue during the May 2 hearing. The state is resisting that move, and the situation led to the preliminary hearing.

Urbom has already ordered the release or retrial of David Rice, the other man convicted of first degree murder in the killing.

In that decision Urbom said that police did not have sufficient reason to search Rice's home and that the search violated Rice's Fourth Amendment rights.

The Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the ruling and the state has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case. In the hearing Wednesday attorney Allan Saltzman argued that Poindexter did not waive his rights to challenge the search of Rice home under the Fourth Amendment when the case went through the lower courts.

Police found dynamite in the Rice home and it was later used as evidence in the trial of both men.

Assistant State Atty. Gen. Mel Kammerlohr, however, argued that Poindexter's attorneys had made an effort during the trial to have the dynamite thrown out as evidence.

Because of that, Kammerlohr contended, Poindexter should not now be able to raise the issue of whether the search violated his rights.

Saltzman wants to argue that Poindexter's rights were violated by the search because Poindexter had a key to the Rice home, sometimes stayed there and kept personal property there.

Creighton University Only $4 Million Short Of Goal

Omaha (AP) — The Greater Omaha campaign of Creighton University's Centennial Thrust-Phase II has reached more than $12 million, or 75% of its goal, campaign chairman Ben Morris announced during a news conference Wednesday.

In addition to making the progress report, Morris announced plans for a recreation center on the campus.

Morris said Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kiewit of Omaha have contributed a major designated gift to Creighton and that contributions from the Kiewits and others will allow the school to go ahead with the construction of a $3 million multipurpose physical education and recreation building.

The new building will be called Kiewit Center and will house a swimming pool, jogging track, bowling alleys and various other athletic facilities, along with administrative offices for the university's physical education department.

The Rev. Joseph Labaj, S.J., Creighton president, said he hopes construction on the new center will begin next fall.

Officials Probe Woman's Death

Rushville (AP) — Sheridan County authorities Wednesday were investigating the death of Charlene Short Bull, 22, of Rushville.

Officials said her body was found next to a relative's house here Monday night. An autopsy has been ordered.

The sheriff's office said they were not able to determine circumstances that led to the woman's death.

Former Ogallala Woman Killed In Germany

Ogallala (UPI) — A former Ogallala resident has been found stabbed to death in a U.S. Army women's barracks in Germany.

Relatives of Spec. 4 Cynthia Vasa Dickey, 20, were told this week her death occurred last week while Mrs. Dickey was on guard duty in the barracks.

She and her husband, Carl, were married March 8. Dickey also is a soldier stationed in Germany.

Dickey told relatives that his wife's apparent assailant was seen running from the barracks but no suspect has been arrested.

Mrs. Dickey was born in Ogallala in 1954 and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Vasa, Rock Springs, Wyo.

No Pencil Pusher

Polk (AP) — Edoff Erickson of Polk saves pens and pencils.

The retired 79-year-old trucker has 2,500 of them collected over a 25-year period.

The hobby began as he hauled livestock from Polk County to Grand Island, York, Omaha and other markets. As he collected pencils, he mounted them on a plywood board.

The word got around to friends who began looking for additions to the collection.

Erickson later joined the American Pencil Collector's Society and began exchanging duplicates with other members around the country.

Some of the pencils are unusual. One is a working yo-yo. Another writes five colors at the same time.

One pencil claims to contain atomic power and another has fertilizer in it. Another is a "fooler" pencil. It's made of rubber and curls over when you try to write with it.

Planners Reject Normal Blvd. Rezoning Proposal

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A proposal to zone for business a small parcel of land lying south of Normal Blvd. went down to defeat at the hands of city-county planning commissioners Wednesday.

The action was expected.

The area south of Normal between 40th and 47th has been the object of zoning battles during the past few years as developers have wanted to build something more than just homes on the land.

Requirements Stricter

The problem is the land lies in the floodplain, imposing stricter building requirements on developers. People living across the street don't want businesses sprouting up in the area and instead want the city to buy the land for a park.

While most of the land south of Normal is vacant and zoned for single family use, one strip was zoned for apartments and another parcel was zoned for business.

Last year the City Council asked Planning Director Doug Brogden to come up with a compromise land use plan for the entire area. Brogden proposed single family homes.

The lawmakers rejected that plan, arguing that construction of homes under single family density requirements just won't occur.

No Solution Yet

However, while indicating they might go along with duplex or some type of multiple zoning for the entire area, they have reached no compromise.

Brogden said Wednesday he has supplied city officials with a report on the situation but that no more action has been taken. Planning commissioners said it was time to try and resolve the issue.

Since a major problem is the Antelope Creek floodplain, the commission asked that a study of the situation be made. The planners want the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District to re-evaluate the Antelope Creek watershed.

Commission Chairman George Williamson explained that if flood control measures could be taken to remove the area from the floodplain, the land could be opened up for residential development.

Change Okayed

In other action, the commission approved developer Karl Witt's request for a change of zone from highway commercial and light industry to single family near 20th and Fairfield. However, commissioners denied Witt's request for a zoning change from light industry and highway commercial to C Multiple. Instead, the planners say they want that land at 20th and Fairfield to be zoned single family.

Commissioners said multiple zoning would permit a greater housing density than is desirable for the area.

The commission also:

E. Lincoln High-Rise For Aged Splits Planning Commission 4-3

Planners failed to reach a decision Wednesday on whether a Housing Authority complex for the elderly should be built in east Lincoln.

The City-County Planning Commission split 4-3 to deny the request. Since five votes are needed to forward a recommendation on to the City Council, another vote will be taken next month.

Residents of the Taylor Park East Neighborhood Association are opposed to construction of the four-story building on the site at Haverford and L.

Out Of Character

Four commissioners picked up on the homeowners' theme Wednesday — the complex would be out of character and thus detrimental to the neighborhood, the complex would deprive homeowners of their privacy and the proposal would be rejected if a private developer were proposing it.

Commissioners favoring the complex pointed out the authority has cut the building from five stories to four and from 102 units to 83 units in an attempt to make the building fit in with the area.

Art Duerschner contended that from an overall neighborhood standpoint, the building did fit in with the character of the area. He cited the proximity of St. Elizabeth Health Center, a bank and other high-rises.

Dwarfed By St. E's

"Compared to St. E's, this would be dwarfed," Duerschner charged.

Commissioner James Hacker said he would favor the plan if the building were constructed across the street, further away from residential homes.

Commissioner Bruce Nims contended that the site was a poor location because elderly living there would not be within walking distance of Gateway Shopping Center and other amenities.

Planning Director Doug Brogden told commissioners that a church or public school on that land would be more disruptive to homeowners than the living complex would be.

The two members of the commission who missed Wednesday's meeting voted in favor of the concept last July when the commission initially favored the proposal.

Commissioners Thelma Miller and Bob Allington changed their votes from last summer — Miller voted for it then and against it Wednesday, while Allington voted against it last time and in favor of it Wednesday.

Voting to reject the authority's plan were Hacker, Mrs. Miller, Nims and Moneta Mathews. Voting in favor of the proposal were Allington, Duerschner and George Williamson. Jerry Warner and Lou Shackelford, absent Wednesday, originally supported the proposal.

Penal Complex Employe Knifed Twice In Back

A 62-year-old laundry supervisor at the Nebraska Penal Complex was stabbed twice in the back Wednesday morning as he worked in the laundry.

William Delaney, 1845 S. 47th, was listed in "satisfactory" condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital

Warden Robert Parratt said two inmates at the complex were being questioned in connection with the incident.

Parratt said a knife was found in the drain in the laundry room.

Another supervisor was in the laundry room when the incident occurred, Parratt said. Delaney was able to walk to the prison infirmary, from which he was transferred to the hospital.

Parratt said that no motive had yet been established for the attack.

Delaney had worked at the penal complex since 1972, Parratt said.

Seized Pills Caffeine Tablets

Omaha (AP) — An estimated 250,000 pills seized at Omaha's Eppley Airfield earlier this month were not what authorities thought they were.

Local vice and narcotics investigators, working with two California agents, seized the pills and arrested a man and woman April 14, after the couple got off a plane from San Diego.

The pills turned out to be caffeine tablets, which are not illegal, but officials said the couple was planning to sell them as "white cross" amphetamines.

No charges were filed against the two unidentified suspects, and they have since been released.

'Jetfoil' Service To Macao Planned

Hong Kong (UPI) — Hong Kong's hydrofoil company expects to start soon its "jetfoil" service between the colony and the Portuguese enclave of Macao.

The far East Hydrofoil Co. said it is testing the new water jet-propelled jetfoil developed by Boeing Aerospace The company said the jetfoil, with its computerized controls, can carry 284 passengers at 45 knots.

Planners Reject Normal Blvd. Rezoning Proposal

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A proposal to zone for business a small parcel of land lying south of Normal Blvd. went down to defeat at the hands of city-county planning commissioners Wednesday.

The action was expected.

The area south of Normal between 40th and 47th has been the object of zoning battles during the past few years as developers have wanted to build something more than just homes on the land.

Requirements Stricter

The problem is the land lies in the floodplain, imposing stricter building requirements on developers. People living across the street don't want businesses sprouting up in the area and instead want the city to buy the land for a park.

While most of the land south of Normal is vacant and zoned for single family use, one strip was zoned for apartments and another parcel was zoned for business.

Last year the City Council asked Planning Director Doug Brogden to come up with a compromise land use plan for the entire area. Brogden proposed single family homes.

The lawmakers rejected that plan, arguing that construction of homes under single family density requirements just won't occur.

No Solution Yet

However, while indicating they might go along with duplex or some type of multiple zoning for the entire area, they have reached no compromise.

Brogden said Wednesday he has supplied city officials with a report on the situation but that no more action has been taken. Planning commissioners said it was time to try and resolve the issue.

Since a major problem is the Antelope Creek floodplain, the commission asked that a study of the situation be made. The planners want the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District to re-evaluate the Antelope Creek watershed.

Commission Chairman George Williamson explained that if flood control measures could be taken to remove the area from the floodplain, the land could be opened up for residential development.

Change Okayed

In other action, the commission approved developer Karl Witt's request for a change of zone from highway commercial and light industry to single family near 20th and Fairfield. However, commissioners denied Witt's request for a zoning change from light industry and highway commercial to C Multiple. Instead, the planners say they want that land at 20th and Fairfield to be zoned single family.

Commissioners said multiple zoning would permit a greater housing density than is desirable for the area.

The commission also:

Special Permits

— Approved application of Farmers Co-Op Elevator of Emerald to install anhydrous ammonia tank, east of N.W. 84th near Hwy. 6.

— Approved application of Donna Stamm to operate child care center at 56th and Covey Court.

— Approved application of Herbert Heumann to operate off-street parking lot at 50th and Holdrege.

— Delayed action of application of Gary Gissler to alter nonconforming use at 22nd and Holdrege.

— Denied application of Ed Schmieding to amend community unit plan between 40th and 44th north of Cornhusker.

Vacations

— Approved vacation of west seven feet of the 12th St. right-of-way abutting Lot 1, Blk. 240, Original Plat of Lincoln, at 12th and B.

Cotton Farmers To Have Bad Year

College Station, Tex. (UPI) — Agricultural specialists at Texas A&M University predict 1975 will be a difficult year for cotton producers.

They say low prices have forced farmers to cut back cotton planting by about a year of the 1974 level, which in turn may force some fabric producing plants to close, or curtail operations.

E. Lincoln High-Rise For Aged Splits Planning Commission 4-3

Planners failed to reach a decision Wednesday on whether a Housing Authority complex for the elderly should be built in east Lincoln.

The City-County Planning Commission split 4-3 to deny the request. Since five votes are needed to forward a recommendation on to the City Council, another vote will be taken next month.

Residents of the Taylor Park East Neighborhood Association are opposed to construction of the four-story building on the site at Haverford and L.

Out Of Character

Four commissioners picked up on the homeowners' theme Wednesday — the complex would be out of character and thus detrimental to the neighborhood, the complex would deprive homeowners of their privacy and the proposal would be rejected if a private developer were proposing it.

Commissioners favoring the complex pointed out the authority has cut the building from five stories to four and from 102 units to 83 units in an attempt to make the building fit in with the area.

Art Duerschner contended that from an overall neighborhood standpoint, the building did fit in with the character of the area. He cited the proximity of St. Elizabeth Health Center, a bank and other high-rises.

Dwarfed By St. E's

"Compared to St. E's, this would be dwarfed," Duerschner charged.

Commissioner James Hacker said he would favor the plan if the building were constructed across the street, further away from residential homes.

Commissioner Bruce Nims contended that the site was a poor location because elderly living there would not be within walking distance of Gateway Shopping Center and other amenities.

Planning Director Doug Brogden told commissioners that a church or public school on that land would be more disruptive to homeowners than the living complex would be.

The two members of the commission who missed Wednesday's meeting voted in favor of the concept last July when the commission initially favored the proposal.

Commissioners Thelma Miller and Bob Allington changed their votes from last summer — Miller voted for it then and against it Wednesday, while Allington voted against it last time and in favor of it Wednesday.

Voting to reject the authority's plan were Hacker, Mrs. Miller, Nims and Moneta Mathews. Voting in favor of the proposal were Allington, Duerschner and George Williamson. Jerry Warner and Lou Shackelford, absent Wednesday, originally supported the proposal.

9 Nebraskans Receive National Merit Awards

Evanston, Ill. (AP) — Nine Nebraskans are among the 1,006 high school seniors in the country named Wednesday as winners of $1,000 National Merit Scholarships in the 20th annual competition.

A committee of professionals, skilled in the academic selection process, was convened to consider the 14,000 finalist applications for the scholarships.

Considered were an applicants academic record, extracurricular attainments, two sets of test scores, personal statements and the recommendations and characterizations of each applicant by his or her high school officials.

Nebraskans achieving National Merit honors include: Terry J. Curtiss, Alliance; Kathy E. Schawang, Falls City Sacred Heart; Daniel H. Kurtenbach, Greeley; Ann Dunlap, Norfolk; Steven D. Hillson, Norfolk; Sandra J. Remus, Maywood; Robert C. Huskey, Omaha Brownell-Talbot; Maryann Tyrell, Omaha Burke, and Joyce C. Mahon, South Sioux City.

Penal Complex Employe Knifed Twice In Back

A 62-year-old laundry supervisor at the Nebraska Penal Complex was stabbed twice in the back Wednesday morning as he worked in the laundry.

William Delaney, 1845 S. 47th, was listed in "satisfactory" condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Warden Robert Parratt said two inmates at the complex were being questioned in connection with the incident.

Parratt said a knife was found in the drain in the laundry room.

Another supervisor was in the laundry room when the incident occurred, Parratt said. Delaney was able to walk to the prison infirmary, from which he was transferred to the hospital.

Parratt said that no motive had yet been established for the attack.

Delaney had worked at the penal complex since 1972, Parratt said.

Seized Pills Caffeine Tablets

Omaha (AP) — An estimated 250,000 pills seized at Omaha's Eppley Airfield earlier this month were not what authorities thought they were.

Local vice and narcotics investigators, working with two California agents, seized the pills and arrested a man and woman April 14, after the couple got off a plane from San Diego.

The pills turned out to be caffeine tablets, which are not illegal, but officials said the couple was planning to sell them as "white cross" amphetamines.

No charges were filed against the two unidentified suspects, and they have since been released.

'Jetfoil' Service To Macao Planned

Hong Kong (UPI) — Hong Kong's hydrofoil company expects to start soon its "jetfoil" service between the colony and the Portuguese enclave of Macao.

The far East Hydrofoil Co. said it is testing the new water jet-propelled jetfoil developed by Boeing Aerospace. The company said the jetfoil, with its computerized controls, can carry 284 passengers at 45 knots.

Lancaster County Survey Reveals Crop Reductions

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A survey of farmers' planting intentions by the Lancaster County Extension Service at the request of a group of farm organizations indicates a sharp cutback in crop production in the county.

Cyril Bish, county extension agent, said the survey showed a corn acreage reduction of 35% and that farmers will use 22 pounds less nitrogen fertilizer on their corn than last year.

Of the 248 farmers who returned the extension service cards, 15% of those receiving questionnaries, 76 plan to grow corn compared to 80 last year.

Bish said the corn reduction was due largely to the harsh experience farmers had with the crops during last year's drouth. "I think a lot of this corn land is in wheat. They planted wheat after cutting the corn for silage last fall," he said

The survey card didn't include a question on wheat acreage.

Nearly all farmers indicate they will plant some grain sorghum but will plant less than last year and will use less fertilizer to raise the crop.

The average sorghum acreage per farm on the 245 farms that will grow the crop will be reduced by 13% and the amount of fertilizer an acre by 15 pounds an acre.

Soybean acreage will increase about 15% in the county with the acreage per farm jumping from 53 acres in 1974 to 61 acres in 1975.

Oat acreage will increase in 1975 by 21% over the '74 crop and apparently on the same farms with 62 farmers planting oats both years from the group of 248 cards.

	1974	1975
Corn	8,226	5,353
Sorghum	38,105	33,000
Soybeans	5,809	6,657
Oats	1,427	1,727
Total	53,567	46,737

These 248 farmers plan to reduce their total purchase of fertilizer compared to last year by 919 tons based on their stated reduction in nitrogen use per crop.

Bish said fertilizer is available. "I have noticed some reduction in price and black market fertilizer just isn't finding a market anywhere. There is a lot of it stacked around, but farmers aren't buying.

Bish said there were about 1,500 farms in Lancaster County. If the statistics hold true, it could mean fertilizer dealers in the county will be looking for a market for the nearly 6,000 tons of fertilizer farmers will be unwilling to buy at current prices.

Weather Slows Planting; Some Two Weeks Behind

Nebraska farmers are getting off to a slow start in planting their 1975 crops because of moisture and cool temperatures.

However, they aren't saying there's been too much rain, only that it has been somewhat untimely. Less rain now and more later would make for a better situation, they say.

Of 22 southeast Nebraska farmers surveyed Tuesday, one was planting oats. The other 21 were getting ready to apply fertilizer.

Don Ehlers of Roca was rushing to finish planting 25 acres of oats before showers resumed. "I turned down a load of fertilizer today so I could get the oats in," he said. "Some neighbors are fertilizing today."

Mrs. Bruce Carstens of Hallam said some oats had been planted but "it is too wet to work in the fields today."

Some farmers are probably two weeks behind. Normally, most of the state's oat and barley crops are seeded by this time, but the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reports only 20% in now.

Mrs. John Ronhovde of Eagle said: "The wheat looks good, and the pastures are very slow to start. My husband and the boys are getting fertilizer equipment ready today."

Marvin Hoffman, county extension agent at Syracuse, said some farmers were planting oats and fertilizing Tuesday. "It was too wet Monday, but they can get in surprisingly quick if the wind blows a little," he said.

Hoffman and Cyril Bish, Lancaster County extension agent, both noted the need for more rain. "The rains aren't hurting yet," Bish said. "We really need more moisture. Every little bit helps."

Dr. Don Hanway, head of the agronomy department at the University of Nebraska, said: "We like to see oats planted before this. When farmers get good days, they had better move. The most valuable day in the year to a farmer is spring planting time. A lost day now, when the weather will permit moving, is destined to cost quite a bit come harvest time."

Hanway advised farmers to get machinery in top condition so that they won't suffer delays in good weather. With huge modern farm equipment, he said, farmers can plant a lot of land in a hurry if they have a few days of good weather.

The big push coming up for farmers will be to get their corn in by mid-May for maximum yields.

A long spell of cold weather could force farmers to seek shorter-season varieties of corn, spelling trouble for seed companies, which would be asked to trade corn that takes 120 days to ripen for seed that matures in less than 100 days.

"All seed companies have some short-term varieties, but we could never supply the demand if no one gets any early corn planted," said Wes Zart of NC Plus Hybrids in Lincoln

Bridgeport Seniors Given Hero Awards

Hastings (AP) — Two Bridgeport High School seniors are the latest recipients of Hero Awards from the Nebraska Funeral Directors Assn.

Rex Schmidt and Terry Woznick were cited for their actions during the early morning hours of Feb. 9 when they helped an elderly Bridgeport couple from their burning home.

Officials said Rex and Terry were on their way home when they noticed smoke coming from the Emil Kleich home.

Getting no answer at the back door, Rex and Terry forced it opened and entered.

After all were safely outside, Mrs. Kleich remembered that she had forgotten her purse, which contained a large amount of money. Rex and Terry went back into the house and were able to find the purse. It was the only piece of personal property the Kleichs saved.

High Winds Damage Several Farmsteads

By The Associated Press

High winds and heavy rains lashed the southwestern and central portions of the state Tuesday night, and there was at least one report of a tornado sighting.

Damage reports from residents in southern Dawson, northeastern Frontier and northern Gosper Counties were numerous, but there were no injuries.

A number of farm buildings and at least one home were destroyed.

Mrs. Dennis Berke said tornado-type winds destroyed a garage and grain bin on her farm north of Eustis. She said a pickup truck was also overturned by the high winds.

"It came so fast, no one had any warning . . . It was here before you knew what happened," said Mrs. Berke of the storm that hit about 7 p.m.

"I saw a greenish cloud and I told my son 'there's a cloud to watch,' then it hit."

The Jim Appelt farm, located to the west of the Berke farm, lost a 16,000-bushel grain bin, an upright silo, feeding equipment and feedlot fencing

The storm also hit the Martin Schurr farm, which is located about seven miles south of Eustis.

"Pretty near everything is gone except the house," said Schurr's nephew, LaRaye Schurr.

Tony Janus of Eustis said he was working in a field when he saw a twister drop out of a cloud to the northwest of him.

At Elwood, the winds overturned a mobile home owned by Christian Smith. However, Mrs. Smith was at work at the time, and was not injured. A number of other homes in the Elwood area suffered moderate damage.

The Gosper County sheriff's office said power to the tiny community was out for several hours after the storm.

The National Weather Service in Omaha said it did not receive a report of the twister in the Elwood or Eustis areas, but that several other unconfirmed reports were made from the Norfolk, Kearney and Cozad areas. However, through Wednesday, the reports remained unconfirmed.

Assuming planting cutbacks indicated by the sampling, projected acreage of various crops this year would compare with 1974 acreage as follows:

	1974	1975
Corn	8,226	5,353
Sorghum	38,105	33,000
Soybeans	5,809	6,657
Oats	1,427	1,727
Total	53,567	46,737

These 248 farmers plan to reduce their total purchase of fertilizer compared to last year by 919 tons based on their stated reduction in nitrogen use per crop.

Bish said fertilizer is available. "I have noticed some reduction in price and black market fertilizer just isn't finding a market anywhere. There is a lot of it stacked around, but farmers aren't buying.

Bish said there were about 1,500 farms in Lancaster County. If the statistics hold true, it could mean fertilizer dealers in the county will be looking for a market for the nearly 6,000 tons of fertilizer farmers will be unwilling to buy at current prices.

Bridgeport Seniors Given Hero Awards

Hastings (AP) — Two Bridgeport High School seniors are the latest recipients of Hero Awards from the Nebraska Funeral Directors Assn.

Rex Schmidt and Terry Woznick were cited for their actions during the early morning hours of Feb. 9 when they helped an elderly Bridgeport couple from their burning home.

Officials said Rex and Terry were on their way home when they noticed smoke coming from the Emil Kleich home.

When no one answered their knocks at the door, the youths went to the rear of the home and saw flames coming from the roof.

Getting no answer at the back door, Rex and Terry forced it opened and entered.

The Kleichs were found in the bedroom, awake and terrified.

The two youths helped the couple get clothing, then Rex helped them out of the house while Terry called the fire department.

After all were safely outside, Mrs. Kleich remembered that she had forgotten her purse, which contained a large amount of money. Rex and Terry went back into the house and were able to find the purse. It was the only piece of personal property the Kleichs saved.

Accident Victim From Fairbury Is Misidentified

Lindon, Colo. (AP) — The Colorado State Patrol said Wednesday it had misidentified the victim of a highway accident victim.

The patrol identified the victim as Lynn H. Hunsberry and the name should have been Lynn H. Hunsberger. The victim was from Fairbury, Neb.

Hunsberger died Tuesday of injuries suffered April 16 in a single-vehicle accident near here.

Weather Slows Planting; Some Two Weeks Behind

Nebraska farmers are getting off to a slow start in planting their 1975 crops because of moisture and cool temperatures.

However, they aren't saying there's been too much rain, only that it has been somewhat untimely. Less rain now and more later would make for a better situation, they say.

Of 22 southeast Nebraska farmers surveyed Tuesday, one was planting oats. The other 21 were getting ready to apply fertilizer.

Don Ehlers of Roca was rushing to finish planting 25 acres of oats before showers resumed. "I turned down a load of fertilizer today so I could get the oats in," he said. "Some neighbors are fertilizing today."

Mrs. Bruce Carstens of Hallam said some oats had been planted but "it is too wet to work in the fields today."

Some farmers are probably two weeks behind. Normally, most of the state's oat and barley crops are seeded by this time, but the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reports only 20% in now.

Mrs. John Ronhovde of Eagle said: "The wheat looks good, and the pastures are very slow to start. My husband and the boys are getting fertilizer equipment ready today."

Marvin Hoffman, county extension agent at Syracuse, said some farmers were planting oats and fertilizing Tuesday. "It was too wet Monday, but they can get in surprisingly quick if the wind blows a little," he said.

Hoffman and Cyril Bish, Lancaster County extension agent, both noted the need for more rain. "The rains aren't hurting yet," Bish said. "We really need more moisture. Every little bit helps."

Dr. Don Hanway, head of the agronomy department at the University of Nebraska, said: "We like to see oats planted before this. When farmers get good days, they had better move. The most valuable day in the year to a farmer is spring planting time. A lost day now, when the weather will permit moving, is destined to cost quite a bit come harvest time."

Hanway advised farmers to get machinery in top condition so that they won't suffer delays in good weather. With huge modern farm equipment, he said, farmers can plant a lot of land in a hurry if they have a few days of good weather.

The big push coming up for farmers will be to get their corn in by mid-May for maximum yields.

A long spell of cold weather could force farmers to seek shorter-season varieties of corn, spelling trouble for seed companies, which would be asked to trade corn that takes 120 days to ripen for seed that matures in less than 100 days.

"All seed companies have some short-term varieties, but we could never supply the demand if no one gets any early corn planted," said Wes Zart of NC Plus Hybrids in Lincoln.

High Winds Damage Several Farmsteads

By The Associated Press

High winds and heavy rains lashed the southwestern and central portions of the state Tuesday night, and there was at least one report of a tornado sighting.

Damage reports from residents in southern Dawson, northeastern Frontier and northern Gosper Counties were numerous, but there were no injuries.

A number of farm buildings and at least one home were destroyed.

Mrs. Dennis Berke said tornado-type winds destroyed a garage and grain bin on her farm north of Eustis. She said a pickup truck was also overturned by the high winds.

"It came so fast, no one had any warning . . . It was here before you knew what happened," said Mrs. Berke of the storm that hit about 7 p.m.

"I saw a greenish cloud and I told my son 'there's a cloud to watch,' then it hit."

The Jim Appelt farm, located to the west of the Berke farm, lost a 16,000-bushel grain bin, an upright silo, feeding equipment and feedlot fencing.

The storm also hit the Martin Schurr farm, which is located about seven miles south of Eustis.

"Pretty near everything is gone except the house," said Schurr's nephew, LaRaye Schurr.

Tony Janus of Eustis said he was working in a field when he saw a twister drop out of a cloud to the northwest of him.

At Elwood, the winds overturned a mobile home owned by Christian Smith. However, Mrs. Smith was at work at the time, and was not injured. A number of other homes in the Elwood area suffered moderate damage.

The Gosper County sheriff's office said power to the tiny community was out for several hours after the storm.

The National Weather Service in Omaha said it did not receive a report of the twister in the Elwood or Eustis areas, but that several other unconfirmed reports were made from the Norfolk, Kearney and Cozad areas. However, through Wednesday, the reports remained unconfirmed.

Tenure Position Upsets Faculty

"Adoption of quotas on tenure would strike a severe blow to efforts to attract the kind of faculty member needed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln," said Faculty Senate President Richard E. Gilbert.

Calling a special senate meeting 4 p.m. Tuesday in Love Library auditorium, Prof. Gilbert said, "The precipitous nature of this action (by the NU Board of Regents) indicates clearly the board is not willing to involve the faculty in important matters of university policy.

"We must act with force against this situation," Gilbert said, responding to resolutions the regents adopted last Saturday.

Citing "grave concern over the percentage of tenured faculty within the university as a whole and within the Lincoln campuses in particular," the regents

—Deferred about 150 tenure recommendations for one month.

—Directed UNL Chancellor James H. Zumberge to present to the board in May a plan to insure that the number of tenured faculty at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year will not exceed 75% of the total number of eligible faculty members.

—Directed Steven Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, to conduct a study of NU tenure policies and to make recommendations to the regents intended to reduce the number of tenured faculty "over the next several years."

Prof. Gilbert, chemical engineering, said the Faculty Senate liaison, academic planning, academic freedom and tenure, and grievance committees have been invited to present resolutions on the regents' tenure actions at the special meeting Tuesday.

"All faculty members are urged to contact these committees with suggestions," Gilbert said, or "to write and present individual resolutions or both

Labor Union Leader Says He Supports Endorsement

Rex King, president of the Central Labor Union, said Wednesday he supports the union's endorsement of mayoral candidate Helen Boosalis.

King said reports that union officials upset with the endorsement attempted to delay public disclosure of the endorsements are unfounded.

The union, which includes all AFL-CIO locals in Lincoln, on April 12 voted to endorse Mrs. Boosalis and six candidates for the City Council and Lincoln School Board.

"Normally, endorsements don't come out until about two days before the election when we take an ad out in the paper," he said. "So whoever said some were trying to hide the fact is wrong."

King said he has already delivered Mrs. Boosalis a campaign contribution.

Geis Advocates Encouraging Arnold Heights Shopping Area

Airport Authority board candidate Don Geis said that the board should take "aggressive action" to bring a shopping center to Arnold Heights.

"I would support immediate action by the authority to attract private enterprise to a location on authority property, either new or renovated, by lease or otherwise, to provide a convenience shopping area," Geis said.

Geis said the authority should also encourage a restaurant to locate near production and business centers on authority property.

"Such a restaurant could serve residents of Arnold Heights as well since the authority has not provided them with a convenient means of reaching the restaurant at the terminal," Geis said.

Tenure Position Upsets Faculty

"Adoption of quotas on tenure would strike a severe blow to efforts to attract the kind of faculty member needed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln," said Faculty Senate President Richard E. Gilbert.

Calling a special senate meeting 4 p.m. Tuesday in Love Library auditorium, Prof. Gilbert said, "The precipitous nature of this action (by the NU Board of Regents) indicates clearly the board is not willing to involve the faculty in important matters of university policy.

"We must act with force against this situation," Gilbert said, responding to resolutions the regents adopted last Saturday.

Citing "grave concern over the percentage of tenured faculty within the university as a whole and within the Lincoln campuses in particular," the regents:

—Deferred about 150 tenure recommendations for one month.

—Directed UNL Chancellor James H. Zumberge to present to the board in May a plan to insure that the number of tenured faculty at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year will not exceed 75% of the total number of eligible faculty members.

—Directed Steven Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, to conduct a study of NU tenure policies and to make recommendations to the regents intended to reduce the number of tenured faculty "over the next several years."

Prof. Gilbert, chemical engineering, said the Faculty Senate liaison, academic planning, academic freedom and tenure, and grievance committees have been invited to present resolutions on the regents' tenure actions at the special meeting Tuesday.

"All faculty members are urged to contact these committees with suggestions," Gilbert said, or "to write and present individual resolutions" or both.

Labor Union Leader Says He Supports Endorsement

Rex King, president of the Central Labor Union, said Wednesday he supports the union's endorsement of mayoral candidate Helen Boosalis.

King said reports that union officials upset with the endorsement attempted to delay public disclosure of the endorsements are unfounded.

The union, which includes all AFL-CIO locals in Lincoln, on April 12 voted to endorse Mrs. Boosalis and six candidates for the City Council and Lincoln School Board.

"Normally, endorsements don't come out until about two days before the election when we take an ad out in the paper," he said. "So whoever said some were trying to hide the fact is wrong."

King siad he has already delivered Mrs. Boosalis a campaign contribution.

Geis Advocates Encouraging Arnold Heights Shopping Area

Airport Authority board candidate Don Geis said that the board should take "aggressive action" to bring a shopping center to Arnold Heights.

"I would support immediate action by the authority to attract private enterprise to a location on authority property, either new or renovated, by lease or otherwise, to provide a convenience shopping area," Geis said.

Geis said the authority should also encourage a restaurant to locate near production and business centers on authority property.

"Such a restaurant could serve residents of Arnold Heights as well since the authority has not provided them with a convenient means of reaching the restaurant at the terminal," Geis said.

Dissident Claims Czech System Operates On Corruption, Apathy

LONDON (AP) — Dissident Czechoslovak playwright Vaclav Havel said in extracts of a letter published here Wednesday that his country operates through "fear, corruption and apathy" but "the lid is starting to crack."

"The machine could suddenly fall apart and disintegrate overnight," Havel, who reportedly now works in a brewery near his home in northern Bohemia, wrote in an open letter to Czechoslovak Communist leader Gustav Husak.

The Times and Guardian newspapers published parts of the letter after it was first sent to the Czechoslovak news agency and some Western correspondents, according to the Guardian.

Havel, whose works include "The Garden Party" and "The Memorandum," said the most brutal forms of state repression are a thing of the past but political trials continue in Czechoslovakia.

He said people no longer fear for their lives but fear for their livelihoods.

Almost everyone takes bribes, the 39-year-old author said in the letter, "from the ministers down to the plumbers. The whole system subsists on bribery. Without bribes, no work would be done."

Havel said Czechoslovak rulers will let everybody think what they like, "so long as they publicly and vocally manifest their allegiance to the regime ... lying, betrayals, deceptions are the virtues of today. Truthfulness and integrity are suspect, despised and punished."

POSTCARD

by Dolphus

As night falls on Waikiki and luau torches lay golden pathways on the water, we give the fragrant maitai a vote of confidence.

The base of the mighty maitai is four jiggers of rum in a big old-fashioned glass. When it comes to the table, it's frosty with ice.

You take a machete and hack through a jungle of mint. A lavender vanda orchid floats on the surface. A spear of pineapple skewered to a scarlet cherry rises from the rummy depths.

The maitai — it means "good" in Tahitian — was invented by Trader Vic Bergeron. He put together a lot of other tropical drinks such as the "Missionary's Downfall."

The maitai sold better than all the rest. And any tourist, smelling the rum-and-fruity drink, can close his eyes and see again the Waikiki surf. Hear the trade wind blowing through the coco palms.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sad to say the maitai goes for $3 a pop at the top bracket hotels. Three puts such a dent in a $10 bill that you might as well give the last dollar to the waitress.

I was giving the maitai some action at the open bar of the Ilikai, the Aladdin's palace Chinn Ho built. The waitress said she'd had two walkouts that night.

She said: "You get to feeling who's going to be a walkout. You see a bunch of kids drinking Heineken's beer at $2 instead of island Primo, you keep your eyes on them."

☆ ☆ ☆

The first couple caught at the door. The waitress — an island born Japanese — ran after them

"Excuse me, sir. You forgot to pay your bill."

The second one: "He signed his name and a room number at the Ilikai. I had a hunch and called the front desk. No such person registered here

"So the front desk started calling around. Bingo! He was registered at the Hilton Hawaiian Village."

The Ilikai sent a bellman over to collect — $14, mostly maitais

☆ ☆ ☆

"I keep coming back to these sunshine-and-sugar cane islands. The Hawaii Visitors' Bureau man told me: "We get more travel writers than any other place in the world."

Before the tourists came, Robert Louis Stevenson fell in love with Hawaii. Melville jumped ship in Lahaina. Talked to whalers and wrote "Moby Dick."

Jack London sailed through the islands.

"No alien land in all the world has any deep, strong charm for me but that one; no other land could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking, through half a lifetime — as that one has done. Other things leave me, but it abides; other things change, but it remains the same."

(I wish I'd said that. But Mark Twain said it first.)

"For me its balmy airs are always blowing; its surf beat is in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades; its plumy palm trees drowsing by the shore; its remote summits like islands above the cloud rack; I can feel the spirit of its woodland solitude; I can hear the splash of its brooks; in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished 20 years ago."

☆ ☆ ☆

Poor Mark Twain. He came back on a sailing ship. "I couldn't sleep the night before."

A small boat put out from shore and hailed the captain. There was plague in Honolulu. Chinatown was burning. Smoke hung over Honolulu. No passengers were allowed to land.

The ship put out to sea. Mark Twain never returned.

China Says U.S.-Soviet War Ahead

TOKYO (AP) — China said that the United States and the Soviet Union have stepped up their fight for influence over Europe and that it will lead to war

While the Americans and the Soviets talk of detente, the arms race between them escalates, Vice Premier Chi Teng-kuei charged. He was quoted by the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua.

"In our view, this unabated contention between them is bound to lead to war," Chi said "The people of all countries, including the European countries, must get prepared."

Chi spoke at a Peking banquet honoring visiting Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans, who met earlier in the day with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

As night falls on Waikiki and luau torches lay golden pathways on the water, we give the fragrant maitai a vote of confidence.

The base of the mighty maitai is four jiggers of rum in a big old-fashioned glass. When it comes to the table, it's frosty with ice.

You take a machete and hack through a jungle of mint. A lavender vanda orchid floats on the surface. A spear of pineapple skewered to a scarlet cherry rises from the rummy depths.

The maitai — it means "good" in Tahitian — was invented by Trader Vic Bergeron. He put together a lot of other tropical drinks such as the "Missionary's Downfall."

The maitai sold better than all the rest. And any tourist, smelling the rum-and-fruity drink, can close his eyes and see again the Waikiki surf. Hear the trade wind blowing through the coco palms.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sad to say the maitai goes for $3 a pop at the top bracket hotels. Three puts such a dent in a $10 bill that you might as well give the last dollar to the waitress.

I was giving the maitai some action at the open bar of the Ilikai, the Aladdin's palace Chinn Ho built. The waitress said she'd had two walkouts that night.

She said: "You get to feeling who's going to be a walkout. You see a bunch of kids drinking Heineken's beer at $2 instead of island Primo, you keep your eyes on them."

☆ ☆ ☆

The first couple caught at the door. The waitress — an island born Japanese — ran after them.

"Excuse me, sir. You forgot to pay your bill."

The second one: "He signed his name and a room number at the Ilikai. I had a hunch and called the front desk. No such person registered here.

"So the front desk started calling around. Bingo! He was registered at the Hilton Hawaiian Village."

The Ilikai sent a bellman over to collect — $14, mostly maitais.

☆ ☆ ☆

"I keep coming back to these sunshine-and-sugar cane islands. The Hawaii Visitors' Bureau man told me: "We get more travel writers than any other place in the world."

Before the tourists came, Robert Louis Stevenson fell in love with Hawaii. Melville jumped ship in Lahaina. Talked to whalers and wrote "Moby Dick."

Jack London sailed through the islands.

"No alien land in all the world has any deep, strong charm for me but that one; no other land could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking, through half a lifetime — as that one has done. Other things leave me, but it abides; other things change, but it remains the same."

(I wish I'd said that. But Mark Twain said it first.)

"For me its balmy airs are always blowing; its surf beat is in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades; its plumy palm trees drowsing by the shore; its remote summits like islands above the cloud rack; I can feel the spirit of its woodland solitude; I can hear the splash of its brooks; in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished 20 years ago."

☆ ☆ ☆

Poor Mark Twain. He came back on a sailing ship. "I couldn't sleep the night before."

A small boat put out from shore and hailed the captain. There was plague in Honolulu. Chinatown was burning. Smoke hung over Honolulu. No passengers were allowed to land.

The ship put out to sea. Mark Twain never returned.

China Says U.S.-Soviet War Ahead

TOKYO (AP) — China said that the United States and the Soviet Union have stepped up their fight for influence over Europe and that it will lead to war.

While the Americans and the Soviets talk of detente, the arms race between them escalates, Vice Premier Chi Teng-kuei charged. He was quoted by the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua.

"In our view, this unabated contention between them is bound to lead to war," Chi said. "The people of all countries, including the European countries, must get prepared."

Chi spoke at a Peking banquet honoring visiting Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans, who met earlier in the day with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai.

Lincoln A&P Will Close Within Week

A&P's Lincoln supermarket at 4545 Vine St will close sometime this week depending on how fast remaining stock sells according to manager Charles Neal

The grocery, the only A&P outlet in Lincoln, will close along with two stores in Omaha Omaha area supervisor Jack Hegwood said the stores will begin selling out stocks next week and A&P is negotiating to sell its leases and fixtures

The Lincoln closing will affect about 20 employes

The shutdowns stem from a plan announced last month by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co of New York, one of the nation s largest food chains to shut down marginal operations at about a third of its 3,500 stores in the United States

Bali Hai' Bar Argues License Illegally Lifted

Attorneys for the Bali Hai bar in Lincoln Wednesday told the Nebraska Supreme Court that the Lincoln City Council illegally revoked its liquor license

The bar s license was revoked in 1972 during a period of lease negotiations when the bar was closed the brief filed with the court said The City Council can revoke a liquor license when a license holder has discontinued business

Bali Hai attorneys claimed a proper hearing was not held to inform the owner why the license was revoked

The revocation was affirmed by the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission and Lancaster County District Court

Back Pay Suit Filed Against Nebraska Firm

Kansas City (AP) — The U S Department of Labor has filed suit against a Plattsmouth, Neb , construction subcontractor to recover double the $7,286 10 allegedly due 12 employes from whom proper minimum wage and overtime pay allegedly was withheld

The suit filed in the U S District Court in Omaha names the Larry Gardner Co and its president, Larry Gardner

A spokesman for the Labor Department's Kansas City office said the suit alleges the firm failed to pay the applicable minimum wage to two employes and to pay at least time and one half the regular rate for overtime work to 10 others

Amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act last year gave the Labor Department authority to seek back pay due employes plus an equal additional amount as liquidated damages

Stock Prices Drop Sharply; Trade Slows

NEW YORK (AP) —Concern that the huge federal budget deficit may again raise interest rates helped push stock prices sharply lower Wednesday

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 11 65 to 802 49 and declining issues swept over advances 1,064 to 396 among the 1 819 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange

Trading began active but slowed throughout the day totaling a moderate 20 04 million shares compared with 26 12 million shares Tuesday

Standard & Poor s 500-stock index dropped 97 to 86 12 and the Big Board s composite index fell 50 to 45 64

Analysts said investors feared the federal governments deficit this year will push up interest rates rekindle inflation and cause a flight of money from stocks to bonds—all major factors in the bear market last year

The fear was underscored by a recent spurt in short-term rates and the government s report Wednesday that the $7 85 billion march deficit set a monthly record The Ford administration currently estimates the annual deficit this year at $34 7 billion, well above the $3 46 billion of last year

As the government finances that debt it will compete with private bond issues for investors dollars pushing up interest rates and maybe attract ing some money away from stocks said Ralph Acampora of Harris Upham & Co

Poor earnings reports for the first quarter contributed to some individual stock losses

Commodities Finish Higher

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures closed with small gains on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday

Trade was mixed but the pace and volume appeared to be lower

Soybean futures were mixed but wheat and oats gained 5 cents and corn 3 cents Soybean meal prices were steady to about $2 a ton higher while soybean oil prices were mixed Iced broilers were steady to about one-third of a cent a pound higher after a session of very light trade

Domestic gold futures gained $2 to about $3 an ounce reflecting a higher price paid for bullion in the major European markets before their close

Hogs, Cattle Post Gains

OMAHA, Neb (AP)—A slight lag in demand and continued moderate supplies nearly offset each other on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday, but hogs and slaughter cattle managed gains

For cattle, it was the third straight day on the upside, and they are now at the highest levels since last summer

Wednesday s hog receipts totaled 4,500 head Barrows and gilts opened slow, but the trade turned fairly active late, and the butcher trend was called steady to 25-cents higher

The sow trade was uneven and trended steady to 50-cents lower Bulk trade ranged from $37 25-$38 00

Lincoln A&P Will Close Within Week

A&P's Lincoln supermarket at 4545 Vine St. will close sometime this week, depending on how fast remaining stock sells, according to manager Charles Neal.

The grocery, the only A&P outlet in Lincoln, will close along with two stores in Omaha. Omaha area supervisor Jack Hegwood said the stores will begin selling out stocks next week and A&P is negotiating to sell its leases and fixtures.

The Lincoln closing will affect about 20 employes.

The shutdowns stem from a plan announced last month by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. of New York, one of the nation's largest food chains, to shut down "marginal" operations at about a third of its 3,500 stores in the United States.

Bali Hai' Bar Argues License Illegally Lifted

Attorneys for the Bali Hai' bar in Lincoln Wednesday told the Nebraska Supreme Court that the Lincoln City Council illegally revoked its liquor license.

The bar's license was revoked in 1972 during a period of lease negotiations when the bar was closed, the brief filed with the court said. The City Council can revoke a liquor license when a license holder has discontinued business.

Bali Hai' attorneys claimed a proper hearing was not held to inform the owner why the license was revoked.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Section 84-907, R.R.S. Neb., 1943, as amended, the State Board of Education will hold a public hearing on proposed revised standards of competency for the teaching profession. The proposed standards have been developed with the counsel of the Professional Practices Commission pursuant to section 79-1282, R.R.S. Neb., 1943, as amended. Said hearing will commence at 9:15 AM on May 9, 1975, at 233 South Tenth Street, Lincoln, Nebraska. Interested persons may appear at said hearing and state their views thereon. Interested persons may examine the proposed standards at the office of the Professional Practices Commission, State Department of Education, 233 South Tenth Street, Lincoln, during regular office hours.

Back Pay Suit Filed Against Nebraska Firm

Kansas City (AP) — The U.S. Department of Labor has filed suit against a Plattsmouth, Neb., construction subcontractor to recover double the $7,286.10 allegedly due 12 employes from whom proper minimum wage and overtime pay allegedly was withheld.

The suit filed in the U.S. District Court in Omaha names the Larry Gardner Co. and its president, Larry Gardner.

A spokesman for the Labor Department's Kansas City office said the suit alleges the firm failed to pay the applicable minimum wage to two employes and to pay at least time and one half the regular rate for overtime work to 10 others.

Amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act last year gave the Labor Department authority to seek back pay due employes plus an equal additional amount as liquidated damages.

Nuclear Plant Set To Reopen

Omaha (AP) — The Ft. Calhoun nuclear plant is expected to be back in operation next week, according to the Omaha Public Power District.

The plant was taken out of service in February for refueling, repairs and inspection.

The plant will reopen one week later than original estimates. But a spokesman said the Ft. Calhoun plant compares favorably with other nuclear power plants that have gone through initial refueling.

Stock Prices Drop Sharply; Trade Slows

NEW YORK (AP) —Concern that the huge federal budget deficit may again raise interest rates helped push stock prices sharply lower Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 11.65 to 802.49 and declining issues swept over advances 1,064 to 396 among the 1,819 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading began active but slowed throughout the day, totaling a moderate 20.04 million shares compared with 26.12 million shares Tuesday.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped .97 to 86.12 and the Big Board's composite index fell .50 to 45.64.

Analysts said investors feared the federal governments deficit this year will push up interest rates, rekindle inflation and cause a flight of money from stocks to bonds—all major factors in the bear market last year.

The fear was underscored by a recent spurt in short-term rates and the government's report Wednesday that the $7.85 billion march deficit set a monthly record. The Ford administration currently estimates the annual deficit this year at $34.7 billion, well above the $3.46 billion of last year.

"As the government finances that debt, it will compete with private bond issues for investors' dollars, pushing up interest rates and maybe attracting some money away from stocks," said Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham & Co.

Poor earnings reports for the first quarter contributed to some individual stock losses.

Riggs To Comment

Hollywood (UPI) — Bobby Riggs signed on as color commentator for "Celebrity Tennis," joining former pro star Tony Trabert for the syndicated series

Woman Begins Seventh Year With Transplant

Cape Town, South Africa (AP) — Dorothy Fisher, 45, has begun her seventh year with a transplanted heart

Miss Fisher, who was operated on by Dr Christiaan Barnard at Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town on April 17, 1969, spent the anniversary having a checkup at the hospital

She said apart from a limp resulting from a fall, she leads an active life of cooking, sewing and doing housework She also goes dancing regularly

Miss Fisher is one of three surviving heart transplant patients of Barnard

Chrysler Car Sales Plummet

Detroit (AP) — Chrysler Corp car sales in mid-April plummeted 41% from the same year ago period

Sales by General Motors, however, were down only 8% and American Motors' deliveries in the April 11-20 period were off only 7%, the smallest percentage decline for AMC this year.

Ford Motor Co was to report results later

Analysts had predicted domestic sales in the latest period would be 150,000, for a daily rate of 18,750 and Ford's sales were expected to bring the four auto makers' sales near that figure

It would be the lowest since mid-April 1961, when the companies sold an average 18,230 cars a day The selling rates for the first three months of the year and early April also have been at 14-year lows

Chrysler sales in the period were 17,275 for a daily rate of 2,159 A year ago the firm sold 32,845 cars in mid-April, a daily rate of 3,650 There was one more selling day in the year-ago period

For the calendar year, Chrysler sales were 278,266, down 29% from last year

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

If you are seeking an "ideal person," choose an individual who has the Moon in your Sun sign. If you are an Aries, select a person whose Moon is in Aries — and so on around the zodiac. This should aid in your study of astrology — and life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What appears to be stiff opposition could be proverbial "blessing in disguise." Nevertheless, be cautious, especially where property values are concerned. Someone wants you to expand operations too quickly. Know it and pull in reins.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message for valid hint. Be realistic. You get nothing for nothing. Know it and do something about revising plans. Eliminate element of self-deception. See individuals, situations as they actually exist. Accent is on what occurs behind closed doors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your ability to perceive opportunity is enhanced. You know what to do and when to do it. Key now is to have confidence. One in responsible position is willing to back you. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish rather than initiate project. Blocks, deterrents are temporary. Keep the faith! News from a distance will flash green light. Aggressive persons are on your side. Refuse to be frightened by unorthodox procedures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Stress originality, creative approacy. Deal with another Leo — and an Aquarian. Travel may not be such a good idea. Reservations get canceled; there are also delays and postponements. Written message is cryptic. Relative could be playing games.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Costs, profits and other areas of money are apt to be spotlighted. Your ability to teach and learn is emphasized. Aquarian is in picture. Accent is on separating fantasy from actuality — especially where money is concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify. Spread influence. Expand emotional horizons. Be versatile without scattering your forces. Display charm, humor. Deal with Gemini, Sagittarius types. Accept social invitations. Welcome chance to be entertained by one who has genuine desire for friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tear down for purpose of rebuilding. Don't be shy about revisions, investigations, questions. What occurs behind the scenes could have direct effect on your welfare. One close to you may ask you to go "out of your way."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends argue. You should strive to remain on sidelines without appearing indifferent. Not easy — but necessary. Gemini, Virgo and another Sagittarian could be involved. Be ready for quick changes, intensified relationship with member of opposite sex.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home, domesticity, diplomacy, fulfillment of a key desire — these are spotlighted. One "in charge" is confused. Know it and hold off on special favors, requests. Give more attention to partner, mate. Give yourself time to regain posture or confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Messages tend to go astray — or to be misinterpreted. Key is to trim fat, to see what is needed and what must be discarded. Pisces, Virgo individuals are in picture. Clandestine meeting is highlighted. You learn significant lesson.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money and how it gets that way is dominant theme. Pressures exist as you are given added responsibilities. Concern with what is hidden, obscured is evident. If single, you discuss marriage and whether you can afford it.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have the ability to teach, to dramatize and to captivate with your voice. The year features significant changes. If single, you marry. Married or single, your lifestyle becomes more exciting, more of a challenge. March and December should be your outstanding months. Gemini, Virgo persons play key roles in your life.

(Discover your live and money mates! Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll find answers in Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Man and Women.")

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

If you are seeking an "ideal person," choose an individual who has the Moon in your Sun sign. If you are an Aries, select a person whose Moon is in Aries — and so on around the zodiac. This should aid in your study of astrology — and life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What appears to be stiff opposition could be proverbial "blessing in disguise." Nevertheless, be cautious, especially where property values are concerned. Someone wants you to expand operations too quickly. Know it and pull in reins.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message for valid hint. Be realistic. You get nothing for nothing. Know it and do something about revising plans. Eliminate element of self-deception. See individuals, situations as they actually exist. Accent is on what occurs behind closed doors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your ability to perceive opportunity is enhanced. You know what to do and when to do it. Key now is to have confidence. One in responsible position is willing to back you. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish rather than initiate project. Blocks, deterrents are temporary. Keep the faith! News from a distance will flash green light. Aggressive persons are on your side. Refuse to be frightened by unorthodox procedures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Stress originality, creative approacy. Deal with another Leo — and an Aquarian. Travel may not be such a good idea. Reservations get canceled; there are also delays and postponements. Written message is cryptic. Relative could be playing games.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Costs, profits and other areas of money are apt to be spotlighted. Your ability to teach and learn is emphasized. Aquarian is in picture. Accent is on separating fantasy from actuality — especially where money is concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify. Spread influence. Expand emotional horizons. Be versatile without scattering your forces. Display charm, humor. Deal with Gemini, Sagittarius types. Accept social invitations. Welcome chance to be entertained by one who has genuine desire for friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tear down for purpose of rebuilding. Don't be shy about revisions, investigations, questions. What occurs behind the scenes could have direct effect on your welfare. One close to you may ask you to go "out of your way."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends argue. You should strive to remain on sidelines without appearing indifferent. Not easy — but necessary. Gemini, Virgo and another Sagittarian could be involved. Be ready for quick changes, intensified relationship with member of opposite sex.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home, domesticity, diplomacy, fulfillment of a key desire — these are spotlighted. One "in charge" is confused. Know it and hold off on special favors, requests. Give more attention to partner, mate. Give yourself time to regain posture or confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Messages tend to go astray — or to be misinterpreted. Key is to trim fat, to see what is needed and what must be discarded. Pisces, Virgo individuals are in picture. Clandestine meeting is highlighted. You learn significant lesson.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money and how it gets that way is dominant theme. Pressures exist as you are given added responsibilities. Concern with what is hidden, obscured is evident. If single, you discuss marriage and whether you can afford it.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have the ability to teach, to dramatize and to captivate with your voice. The year features significant changes. If single, you marry. Married or single, your lifestyle becomes more exciting, more of a challenge. March and December should be your outstanding months. Gemini, Virgo persons play key roles in your life.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
